CITY MUST UNITE FOR CIVIC REFORM

O'Laughlin Says Efforts for Betterment Are Too Diverse and Retard Each Other.

COST BIG; LITTLE DONE.

Chicago Could Gain Vast Advantage by Applying Business Methods to Its Own Projects.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Like the sun, rising in the purity of morn,
The city lay, a golden place,
Where freshness blest the busy marts;
Where health and cleanness, hand in hand,
Gave bodies to the people, and Bodies mind and moral tone;
Where beauty hung caressingly,
And Prosper wound his ringing horn.
—"The City Beautiful."

The people of Chicago are accustomed to doing big things. They see large. An undertaking that would appal others they tackle with a zest which means accomplishment.

It is not surprising, therefore, that the plans which have been prepared for a new Chicago should approximate the ideal. Nothing, for instance, could be more desirable than the scheme of the Commercial club, which deserves the careful thought and study of every citizen. But, unfortunately, it calls for the simultaneous and immediate adoption of projects, each of colossal magnitude itself. Consider what the plan contemplates:

First, improvement of the lake front.

Second, creation of a system of highways outside the city.

Third, improvement of railway terminals and development of a complete traction system for both freight and passengers.

Fourth, acquisition of an outer park system and of parkway circuits.

Fifth, systematic arrangement of the streets and avenues within the city, in order to facilitate the movement to and from the business district.

Sixth, development of centers of intellectual life and of civic administration, so related as to give coherence and unity to the city.

Lack of Unity Injurious.

It is true some of the projects are in course of execution, but in a haphazard fashion and lacking a united public opinion. There are societies and individuals who believe in all but devote themselves to one, others who believe in all but devote themselves to none. There are still others, and they are in the vast majority, who are content with conditions as they are, and fear increased taxation consequent upon improvement. There is a small proportion violently opposed to change not only for the tax reason but because of other additional expense to which they will be put. They are not farsighted enough to realize that whatever benefits the city, whatever makes the city attractive, will benefit them.

Thus, Chicago is a house divided against itself. But this is not all. The occupants of each room are at loggerheads. For instance, many business men, whose establishments are outside the loop, oppose the construction of a subway on the ground that it will destroy their business and concentrate trade inside the loop. Men and women who think only of beautifying the city fail to realize the enormous importance of an adequate harbor to care for the lake commerce which is essential to Chicago's commercial development.

More than this, there is a prejudice in the minds of the poorer people against plans because of organization by the wealthier element. They are disposed to sniff derisively at proposals which are for the advantage of all believing they will be of benefit only to the few.

Workers Divided Among Selves.

At the last session of the Illinois legislature legislation was enacted authorizing the city to issue bonds which will aggregate $16,000,000. The money is to be used for public improvements. By a referendum, to occur next spring, the people of the city will vote upon the amount of bonds to be sold and the purposes to which the proceeds shall be devoted.

There is absolutely no coöperation between the diverse societies and interests as to the projects for which these moneys shall be used.

Some desire one thing, some desire another. It is expected the mayor will make recommendation. More than this is required. There should be a program adopted upon which every one can agree, and that program should embody the aspirations for the new Chicago.

Chicago has a reputation for practicality in individual business.

Let it be practical in the development of the city!

There was a stoic philosopher, Epictetus, eighteen centuries ago, whose advice is as pertinent today as it was when uttered because it has the essence of truth.

"Practice yourself, for heaven's sake, in little things," he observed, "and thence proceed to greater."

In other words, while having a goal, form the flying V and buck the line of obstacles again and again until the touchdown is possible.

It will mean a stronger Chicago, for no beauty is enduring without strength.

Great Expense; Little Result.

When I was a small boy I was told that the way to learn to swim was to jump into deep water. I was almost drowned.

Thereafter I paddled about near the shore until I knew the movements and had strength and confidence.

I do not mean to compare Chicago with a boy, although it is boyish in many of its antics and attitudes. You are a youth conscious of strength but ignorant of the best means to employ it.

Bewildered by so many avenues along which it may be employed, you run in one, then back to the center, you run in another, a third, and so on.

During the last quarter of a century, according to John M. Ewen, the well known engineering and construction expert, you have spent $225,000,000 upon general improvements.

There is little to show for it.

I am told you have dragged the city from a swamp and raised the general level. But look at your streets!

To meet the needs of transportation, you have authorized surface and elevated roads. But look at your congestion!

You have spent millions to provide offices

BY I. E. SANBORN.

When Mordecai Peter Centennial Brown tossed young King Cole's little bounder to Frank Le Roy Chance yesterday, ending the fifth game of the city series with the score 1 to 0 in his favor, he not only terminated the civil war of 1909 but completed the design "Champions of Chicago," on which he and his teammates have been working intermittently for over a week, and pressed the electric key which flashed the news to the ends of the baseball map that Chicago Cubs have won back the title which went to the south side in 1906 and has remained there ever since without being contested.

Although deprived of their fondest hope—a fourth straight National league pennant and a chance at another world's banner—Chance's veteran diamond heroes still retain the name of "champions," although it may be dispayed in lower case nonpareil instead of sixteen point pica caps, and they have saved from the wealth of bunting in which they have reveled of late at least a few honorable remnant. They have nailed to their shattered mainmast for at least a year the colors which represent the athletic supremacy of the greatest baseball city in the land, whatever else it may be called by distinguished critics from over land or sea.

White Sox Die Game.

Nor are the former city champions, who surrendered their last stronghold and their sole remaining title of distinction yesterday, disgraced in their defeat, for they gave Chance's men a stronger argument all the way in this local strife than the Cubs had been given for two years previous by a team which proved the White Sox superior in American league tussles. Counted out of their own pennant race months ago, and pushed back into the shadow while others monopolized the limelight of public interest, Comiskey's riddled team rallied its forces to the battle cry of their stanch supporters and fought the veterans, whose championship ranks remained almost intact, with such gameness and spirit that their supporters will have no occasion to blush for them.

Right up to the last gunshot of the final battle the Sullivans were unsubdued. Even after being pitched to a standstill by the three fingered king of the slab, they came within one single hit of pulling out a narrow victory in the ninth inning of the final game, which would have prolonged the combat longer than the Cubs have been compelled to fight a post-season series since they made the White Sox go six games to beat them in 1906, and would have left them still a fighting chance to remain champions of the city.

Sox Have Fighting Chance.

That fighting chance was all they ever had in this year's series. A fighting chance was all their most loyal supporters down in their innermost hearts thought the team which finished fourth in the American league campaign, and a bad fourth at that, had against the scarred campaigners of three straight world's series, whom many a grudge of long standing spurred on to put forth every atom of strength to beat what was left of their only American league conquerors.

A fighting chance was all it proved to be for Sullivan's men, and they went down undisgraced before superior ability, of which the measure of superiority is well and fairly expressed by the result of the series, four games to one.

The final battle was far and away the best of the five and the only one which was won on its merits instead of its demerits. Brown, who practically ended the series by his own efforts, was opposed on the slab by G. Harris White, ex-dentist, who was the unanimous choice of Owner Comiskey, Manager Sullivan, and the White Sox rooters for the desperate task of staving off the final defeat if possible. Pitching under conditions which made baseball a hardship for all concerned, and which were eminently unsuited to his own frail physique, Doc White demonstrated that the confidence placed in him was justified by pitching the best game that has been delivered by a south side hurler during the series and compelling the new champions of Cook county to extend themselves at all times to beat him.

Sheckard's Hit Is Timely.

One vicious assault, in which the Cubs concentrated their hottest fire and in which Jimmy Sheckard turned loose the one timely hit which he has been saving up for the occasion for four calendar years, turned the tide against the slender southpaw. That attack netted four hits and the lone run which spelled victory. One pass was all that marred the doctor's slab work, and aside from the third inning and its epoch making result the Cubs could get only two hits off him.

But well as White pitched, Brown was his master and outpitched him at every turn, besides scoring with his own feet the only run of the day, which started with his own hit. Once only did Brown allow a safe hit off him in nine innings. Fred Parent was the lad who stood between the miner hurler and a no hit game with which to wind up his brilliant season's work. That long swat came with two out in the fifth inning, and there was nothing doubtful about it. Clean as a whistle it went into center field out of reach, but never again did a south side athlete reach first base of his own accord.

For eight innings Parent was the only

SAVE $600,000 FOR SCHOOLS

More but Less 'Fancy' Buildings to Be New Rule of Board.

MORE ROOM FOR PUPILS.

Space Devoted to Gymnasiums Will Be Used for Class Rooms.

A radical change in plans for the erection of new school buildings, a change which will eliminate the costly gymnasiums and assembly halls and which will result in a saving of nearly $500,000 a year and allow the board of education to erect two additional buildings minus "frills and gargoyles," was decided on by the buildings and grounds committee of the board yesterday.

Of the new buildings of the $250,000 type, of which ten will be erected this year, the plans will be changed to eliminate one wing containing an assembly room, a gymnasium, and two classrooms.

The decision to change the new buildings came as a result of a criticism of Joseph Downey, chairman of the committee and former building commissioner, to the effect that the board of education was paying from $40,000 to $50,000 too much for the new buildings. The fact that the 22,000 more pupils enrolled in the schools cannot be provided with seats was used as an argument for less elaborate buildings and a greater number.

Save $50,000 on Each School.

The congestion in the schools necessitated the placing of 8,000 pupils in the half day schools last year, and in placing 2,500 more in rented quarters. This year even greater congestion has caused the project of opening class rooms in school basements to be considered.

"We seem to be practically wasting nearly a half million dollars every year on frills and gargoyles in our new buildings," declared President Alfred R. Urion. "The gymnasiums and assembly halls are fine things, but we are hard pressed for ordinary school facilities. We need more buildings, and need them urgently.

"We need plain school facilities more than we need elaborate and costly accessories. By eliminating these luxuries we can save $50,000 on each new school and can build just so many more buildings."

A committee consisting of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent; Mr. Downey, and Theodore W. Robinson was named to investigate the whole question of congestion.

Will Fix Room for Gymnasium.

In cutting out the elaborate gymnasiums and assembly halls the board will not eliminate these features entirely. Gymnasiums and halls will be fitted up on a much more elaborate scale in other parts of the buildings.

The committee confronted a dilemma in the opening of a downtown continuation school. It was decided two weeks ago to abandon the Hoyne school and to locate the continuation school in the Athenæum building. An oral agreement for six rooms at $125 a month was said to have been obtained, but when Business Manager Guilford sought to arrange a written agreement the price was set at $250 a month for four rooms.

"This looks like a pretty loose piece of business," declared President Urion.

N. W. TRUSTEES HELP FRATS.

Voted to Grant Them Permission to Build Chapter Houses on the Campus.

It was voted at a meeting of the trustees of Northwestern university yesterday to allow the fraternities to construct their chapter buildings on the university campus.

The portion of the campus to be set aside for fraternity homes has not yet been decided upon by the trustees. Only two applications for building sites have been received.

The trustees have under consideration a plan whereby they will assist the fraternities in building their homes and take a mortgage on their houses.

JURY PLOT BARED BY "NICK" MARTIN

Ald. Kenna's Secretary Said to Have Told Inquisitors He Sold the Names of Venal Veniremen.

MAKES A STOUT DENIAL.

Joins with His Attorney in Asserting He Refused to Be Sworn and Made No Statement.

Nicholas Martin, under indictment with Commissioner John J. Holland and Willis Rayburn on the charge of jury "fixing," has made a complete and detailed confession to State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman, according to a definite, almost an official assertion last night.

According to his attorney, James A. Brady, not only did he decline to confess but refused to be sworn before the grand jury yesterday, or to talk at all, even when threatened with a bench warrant and jail.

The claim that he confessed continued positively with the statement that he faced the inquisitorial body and told in as few words as possible of the part he took in "fixing" Cook county juries. Bench warrants and a judge were needed, it was explained, for further warrants.

No warrants were issued last night, however.

Martin declared, according to the circumstantial account, that he merely was the tool of bigger conspirators, and that he did his work under the direction of one of the indicted men.

Said to Have Furnished Names.

The specific part to which he was declared to have confessed was of furnishing lists of names, fifty or sixty at a time, of men who were willing to serve as "fixed" jurors. For this he was said to have received $200 a list from one of the indicted men. The latter turned the list over to Commissioner Holland, according to the recital.

Sticking by the confession version Martin's presence before the grand jury was credited with being the aftermath of confession claimed to have been made by him a few days after his indictment.

So matter of fact was the narrative of detail that Martin was said to have testified before the jury to his signature to the original document.

Martin Promised Immunity?

Whether Martin was promised immunity from prosecution by Mr. Wayman is a matter of conjecture only. However, it is declared that he was given to understand that if he would "come across with the goods" the indictment against him would be nolled in the near future.

The work of obtaining Martin's confession was said to have been done by Mr. Wayman, Assistant State's Attorney Michaels, Detectives Loula, Keeley, and O'Keefe of the prosecutor's private staff, and John W. Weccard, president of the American Detective Service company. The latter is declared to have been working under Mr. Wayman's instructions for several months.

Martin was seen at night at Clark and Van Buren streets. He denied absolutely having made a confession to State's Attorney Wayman or the grand jury.

Martin's Version of Session.

"I have made no confession or admission of any kind to State's Attorney Wayman or any one connected with his office," said Martin. "One of Mr. Wayman's assistants some time ago tried to procure a statement from me regarding the jury 'fixing' case, but I told him I knew nothing about it. I known 'Billy' Rayburn, who was indicted with me, but I don't know Holland. If either of those men had any hand in 'fixing' juries, I don't know anything about it.

"Some time ago the statement was given out from the state's attorney's office that I had confessed. There was no truth in it. I have not confessed, for the simple reason that I know nothing about the matter.

"I refused to make any statement before the grand jury until I could consult with my attorney. I am standing on my rights."

Attorney Brady at night said "Nick" Martin had refused to make any statement before the grand jury.

"Martin came to see me after he left the grand jury room," said Attorney Brady, "and told me all that took place there. He was subpœnaed late in the afternoon on the street by one of the state's attorney's men and taken to the grand jury room.

Refused to Be Sworn?

"Martin refused to be sworn on the ground that he had not been given an opportunity to consult with his attorney. He refused absolutely to make any statement whatever regarding the alleged jury 'fixing' matter for which he has been indicted.

"Martin explained to the grand jurors that he was under $25,000 bonds for trial in the case regarding which questions were to be propounded to him. I don't know that any overtures or promises of any kind were made to my client, but I do know that he refused to talk.

"He was threatened with jail for contempt of court—at least he told me so—but he stood pat. An effort was made, I believe, to get Judge Tuthill to hear the matter, but he was unavailable.

"Martin will appear before the grand jury again today and I will be within call if my services are required."

Mason Again Before Jurors.

Previous to Martin's appearance Capt. Roswell B. Mason, chief clerk in the jury commissioners' office, spent four more hours before the grand jury. An important development of the day was said to have been brought out in the testimony of other clerks in the jury commissioners' office. It is said that these men contradicted the testimony of Capt. Mason in several instances. All of them probably will be called before the grand jury today.

It is also declared that Capt. Mason and all of the other clerks in the office signed an immunity waiver when they agreed to go before the grand jury.

W. V. Bogan, assistant chief clerk and Mason's right hand man, was one of the principal witnesses. Among the other clerks of the jury commissioners' office who testified were C. L. Caswell, W. V. Brown, T. H. Dwyer, A. C. Norocci, A. H. Green, and H. H. Russell.

According to custom, the grand jury should adjourn today, but it may remain in session all next week.

GIPSY FIRM FOR HIS PARADE

Begs Christian Opponents to Pray, Not Criticise.

POLICE CHIEF IS IN DOUBT.

Dr. Gunsaulus, Dean Sumner and Others Make Protest.

"Gipsy" Smith, evangelist, in his sermon at the Seventh regiment armory last night assailed the churchly critics of his plan to lead a parade of religionists through the red light district of the south side next Monday night.

In a blanket challenge to the opponents of the parade—who include in their number, Dean Walter T. Sumner, the Rev. Frank W. Gunsaulus, and Prof. Graham Taylor—the Romany preacher asserted that "whoever leaves the beaten path to be inventive for Christ invites persecution."

"If you think I am not doing my work right in Christ's name get out of your easy chairs and do it a little better," was his reply to the churchmen who think him sincere but unwise in his plan to parade the streets.

"All who approve stand up!" he shouted, and practically the entire audience stood up.

"Show your appreciation as well next Monday night," he admonished, speaking earnestly from the pulpit and the people applauded vigorously.

Asks Critics to Pray for Him.

"If you don't see as I do, don't criticise me, but pray for me," he continued.

"If I don't get hold of somebody, you can criticise me. But if I do get hold of somebody, let your criticism be silent. Pray for me.

"Unless I change my mind, and I don't think I will, I am going to preach here next Monday night on 'The Pool of Bethesda.' I shall have something to say of the modern 'Pool of Bethesda' in Chicago. Then we shall get into the streets and try to save the people who are lying at the 'Pool of Bethesda' in this city.

"I was called up and asked about a little criticism. I responded that I had absolutely nothing to say—that I am going on with my work as I think God wants me to do it."

"Gypsy's" challenge and the declaration that he would carry out the parade as intended stirred up a high pitch of enthusiasm among the people who still are on the qui vive to know what Chief of Police Steward's final decision will be.

Says Chief Gave Permission.

W. A. Peterson, chairman of the finance committee of the Layman's Evangelical council, declared flatly from the pulpit that the chief had given his permission to hold the parade.

Evangelist H. H. Van Meter privately assured newspaper men that Chief Steward had assured him the permit for the parade in writing will be delivered to him this morning.

At a late hour the chief was in a quandary as to what to do about it. It was plain that he had been led to consider the parade ill advised, largely on account of the putting of the "lid" upon the levee.

"I don't know whether I shall issue the permit or not," said the chief. "I have not decided. In my opinion, it is not good policy to lead a parade with bands through the south side district late at night. I wouldn't want to permit any other reputable organization to do it. If I issue the permit I shall reserve the right to lay out the line of march and to cut out the bands if I see fit."

The chief left it to be inferred that possibly a parade direct from the armory at Thirty-fourth street and Wentworth avenue to the Alhambra theater, at State and Nineteenth streets, where midnight services are to be held, might suit his ideas better than a parade through the "red light" district.

Summary of Clerical Objections.

The objections of the clerical critics of "Gipsy" may be summarized as follows:

1. That a parade would not do any good to the denizens of the "tenderloin."
2. That it would be spectacular and theatrical.
3. Many adults would enter the vice district for the first time and receive injurious impressions, despite their religious fervor.
4. Children concealed in the crowd would receive injurious impressions.
5. Undue publicity would be given to the "social evil" in Chicago.
6. That the plan is in direct contravention with the plans of the chief of police, which include the keeping of people out of the vice districts instead of leading them into it.

The critics of "Gipsy" do not impugn his motives, but declare he is a "dear, good fellow," who is mistaken as to the kind of treatment Chicago needs.

Think Gipsy's Plans Unwise.

"I love 'Gipsy' very much," said Dr. Gunsaulus, "but I feel that in this he is not doing the wisest thing. The parade would only serve to advertise the district and would not do any good in the way that 'Gipsy' thinks it would."

"I feel that it is a terrible mistake to give publicity to the social evil," said Dean Sumner. "I believe the moral effect of such a demonstration upon the participants through personal contact is bound to be bad."

Prof. Taylor acknowledged himself to be in full sympathy with Dean Sumner and Dr. Gunsaulus in disapproving of "Gipsy's" determined move.

National, state, and county Prohibition leaders at the Grand Pacific hotel joined in a signed statement at night indorsing the proposed demonstration in the levee.

"We intend carrying the war into Egypt if necessary," said Chairman Alonzo Jones after the meeting. "This demonstration is one of the best means of showing how we can wage war if it is demanded of us."

WAR SIGNALS ON THE CAMPUS.

Frisky Freshmen of Chicago University Post Notices Intended as Challenges to Sophomores for Class Rush.

University of Chicago campus was placarded by freshmen yesterday with assertion that the sophomores are a crowd of "boneheads," and unless they "wipe their smirking faces three times upon terra firma when they bring their low ordered intellects in the presence of the knights of 1913" they will regret having been born.

This step on the part of the freshmen is a reversal of the general order of things.

"It looks as if the freshmen mean business," said James Dymond, president of the sophomore class. "It's up to us to prepare for the worse"—mind you he didn't use the superlative "worst."

A class rush has not taken place on the Midway campus in years. President Judson does not fear any outbreak, but he will take precautions against the possibility of a rush.

FIND CHILDREN; KIDNAPERS GONE

Chicago Police Hold the Viviano Boy and Girl, Found Shivering in Street by Woman.

PARENTS ON WAY HERE.

Hasten from St. Louis; Abductors Hide Their Tracks After Frightening Victims Into Silence.

Tomaso and Grace Viviano, children kidnaped in St. Louis last July and held for a $25,000 ransom, have been found wandering, abandoned, on the streets of Chicago.

Picked up at first as wanderers from home they were held by the police awaiting inquiry from parents for a day before their identity was established.

Last night Capt. J. N. Schoppe and Lieut. A. F. Adieseno from the Fourth precinct in St. Louis, where the Viviano residence is situated, positively identified the children.

Suffering from exposure and with a well developed attack of pneumonia the little girl was taken to the Passavant hospital and placed in the care of physicians. The child cries constantly when her cousin is out of sight, and to keep her contented the boy also has been quartered at the hospital.

Summons Children's Parents.

Capt. John Rehm of the Chicago avenue police station wired the parents of the kidnaped children, Peter and Justina Viviano, in St. Louis and they are expected to arrive here this morning.

Upon their arrival it is expected several strange features in connection with the case will be cleared up, it having been reported at St. Louis in the evening that the Vivianos recently had paid $2,500 of the $25,000 ransom demanded by the kidnapers.

Immediately after the discovery of the identity of the children detectives from central, Chicago avenue, and the Hudson avenue stations were detailed to search the neighborhood where they were found in an effort to capture the kidnaper. No trace of the custodians of the boy and girl or place of custody has been discovered.

Though appearing to have been fed well—but not comfortably clothed—both children have been frightened into silence and it was with difficulty they were persuaded to talk.

When the little girl was placed in the care of Matron Dolan at the Chicago avenue station it was discovered that she was without underclothing and was clad only in a thin white dress. Physicians who examined the child said her condition was serious. The boy was dressed in a pink gingham Buster Brown suit. Both appeared to have suffered much from the cold.

Woman Finds Little Wanderers.

Mrs. F. Hahn, proprietor of a milk depot at 1346 Larrabee street, found the children in front of her house between 6 and 7 o'clock Thursday evening. She picked the girl up in her arms and started for Zindt's drug store at the corner of Larrabee street and Clybourne avenue. The boy started to run away, but was overtaken by children of the neighborhood and brought back to the drug store.

In answer to a telephone call from the pharmacy, policemen from the Hudson avenue station took charge of the abandoned victims of kidnapers. They were turned over to the Chicago avenue station during the day.

"The little ones were standing in front of my home, helpless like, and looked to me as though they were lost," said Mrs. Hahn. "No one was with them when I first saw them. They were so cold that they must have wandered for hours. The little girl was crying and was so tired that she could hardly stand. The boy was afraid of me at first. I no more had the little girl in my arms than she put her head over on my shoulder and fell asleep."

Kidnapers Cover Tracks.

Policemen in the evening questioned conductors and motormen on the cars which run through the Hudson avenue precinct, striving to get some sort of description of whoever might have carried the children to the district. If they have been kept in custody in Chicago since their kidnaping it is not presumed that their place of imprisonment has been in the neighborhood where they were found.

"The story is the old one that has countless duplicates in the history of kidnaping," said Capt. Rehm. "The people who stole the children were unable to collect an exorbitant ransom. So they dropped their charges where they would be found, taking care to get well away themselves. The same thing happened about a year ago, when an Oak street boy, son of Italian parents, was kept in hiding several weeks. Finally the police found him wandering in Harrison street, near the station."

Before the police determined the children must be given medical attention they were housed in the matron's quarters at the Chicago avenue station. Wrapped in heavy blankets Grace fell into a slumber from which she seldom could be awakened. Only the most strenuous persuasion pulled the boy away from his diminutive charge.

Boy Quiets Crying Child.

Once the girl awakened when Tomaso was across the room. She began to cry, and in an instant the boy had jerked away from his new acquaintance and was at her side, covering her face with kisses. She soon fell asleep again.

Attempts to photograph Grace were opposed by her valiant little defender until he was convinced by every form of sign language that it wouldn't hurt. Then when the flash occurred his first thought was to put his arms around her and comfort her.

Detective Louis Parodi of the Chicago avenue force tried to engage the boy in conversation, but efforts to learn where he had been or who he had been with met with little success. During the evening he became friendly with a CHICAGO TRIBUNE reporter, climbed on his knees, and did the best he could to answer questions.

In broken English and by means of pictures drawn while the boy looked on he made it plain that he and his little cousin had been in a wagon with two horses where the driver was a "fine" man; that he and the little girl had gotten on a "chain," and that the whistle blew when the train moved; that he had lived in a house that the boy did not presume to be far from the police station, and that he had been told his father would come and get him.

Says "Justina" Will Come.

Tomaso insisted that "John" would be here tomorrow and that Grace would not ery or be cold any more when "Justina" came.

The two children disappeared from their homes in St. Louis on Aug. 2, 1909. Grace Viviano is the daughter of Peter Viviano, who is a wealthy macaroni and wholesale fruit dealer of St. Louis. Tomaso is her cousin.

At noon on the day of their disappearance Grace was seen in a drug store in the neighborhood in company with Sam Turrisi, an Italian who lived at the Viviano residence.

At 4 o'clock on the afternoon of that day Mr. Viviano received an unsigned letter directing him to put $25,000 in a certain place and threatening the life of his daughter if he refused. Viviano turned the matter over to the police department, and search for the kidnapers, which has been country wide in its extent, was begun.

Seeks Turrisi as Accomplice.

Turrisi was not seen again, and the St. Louis police sent out bulletins asking for his arrest and detention on suspicion of complicity with the kidnapers.

In reply to questions the children seemed to admits acquaintance with Turrisi, but made no statement which would lead to the belief that Turrisi had been their captor while they were in Chicago.

The police of St. Louis during the day received a tip that Turrisi had been seen in Chicago, and this fact was responsible for the prompt arrival of two officers from the Fourth precinct.

"The children dropped completely out of sight the day they were kidnaped," said Capt. Schoppe. "Extra effort was put forth to find them, but without revealing even a clew. We thought at the time that they had been spirited out of the city. It is possible that they have been in Chicago for several months.

Could Not Raise Ransom.

"At the time the kidnapers made their demand on Viviano he was not in a position to raise the enormous sum demanded for a ransom. If they had asked a smaller amount he probably would have procured it.

"I doubt now our ability to get much from the children. The little girl is too young to know what has happened and the boy is so terrified that he cannot talk. It is possible that when the parents arrive we can get some clew."

"I am certain the children have been terrified into silence," said Matron Dolan. "When they are alone with me they tremble and want to cuddle close when they hear a heavy footfall. Both the boy and girl are of remarkably good blood, I know. They are perfectly clean and well behaved. But they have been frightened nearly to death if they have been made the victim of no other punishment. If any crime should be punished with hanging I think it is kidnaping."

Parents Still in Doubt.

The fathers of the children visited police headquarters in St. Louis at night and there expressed themselves as doubting their children really have been found. They are skeptical because there were similar reports some weeks ago that the children had been found in Pennsylvania and later in Chicago.

They said they would come to Chicago at once, however, to identify the children. In the event they identify the children there will be a big celebration among the Italians of St. Louis on their return home.

The fathers of the children are well to do and their reputed wealth made them subjects to repeated attacks from what was believed to be the "Black Hand." Several attempts had been made to blow up their factories with dynamite.

Pay Part of Ransom?

Night Chief of Police Gillaspy at St. Louis said at St. Louis that he had learned on good authority that the parents of the Viviano children actually had paid $2,500 of the $25,000 ransom demanded to the kidnapers at a small town near Collinsville, Ill., and had been allowed to see and fondle their children.

A woman figured in the case, he says, who took them from the room in which the ransom was paid ostensibly to prepare them for their return home. She immediately disappeared with them, he says, and when the parents ran out of the room to search for her the man escaped. This man was not Turrisi, he says.

Twice before this occurrence, Gillaspy says, the parents took trips to Ramona park, St. Louis county, and met emissaries of the kidnapers. On the first trip, he says, they paid $225 earnest money, and the second, about a week later, $250.

He also says that subsequently the Vivianos received a letter directing that they mail a certain ransom in an inclosed envelope, directed to an address in Webster Grove, St. Louis county. This was turned over to the police and a search resulted in the arrest of a relative of the Vivianos residing near Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue. He was arrested, but the Vivianos said they did not believe he had written the letter and refused to aid in the prosecution, Gillaspy says. The incident was kept secret by the police.

The original demand for the $25,000 ransom was received in a letter in a fine Italian hand, describing how the money was to be delivered and signed "Mouth Shut." It stated that the children were safe, but had a postscript which said: "Pietro, I pray you save my life."

Parallel in Guinta Case.

The Chicago police are working on the theory that Turrisi was assisted in stealing the children by the same men who kidnaped Giuseppi Guinta, 7 years old, from in front of his home, 79 Oak street, Sept. 19, 1908, by members of the so-called "Black Hand."

The Guinta child's father, who is a grocer, received several letters after the boy's disappearance in which a demand of $5,000 was made on him for his son's return. Later letters were sent to the father asking but $1,000.

Guinta reported the kidnaping of his son to the Chicago avenue police a few hours after it occurred, but detectives failed to get any trace of him.

The night of Oct. 13 Guinta received a telephone message that his child was at the Grand Central railroad depot, Harrison street and Fifth avenue, and for him to get the child there at 6 o'clock. Guinta notified the police and they found the boy as he alighted from a railroad train. Guinta is said to have paid the $1,000 for the return of his child.

NATIONAL POLISH ALLIANCE NAMES CHICAGOAN PRESIDENT

M. B. Steczynski Is Again Selected by Acclamation at Election Which Is Held in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—After a stormy session tonight the National Polish alliance selected officers for the coming year, the first part of the night's session being devoted to a clash over the failure to erect a monument to Pulaski at Washington. The fight over this monument, which Col. Smolinski, U. S. A., retired, declared was to be erected later, according to statements made to him by cabinet officers, was the reason for the delay in securing the appropriation.

M. B. Steczynski, Chicago, was reelected president of the national organization by acclamation. J. K. Ufiewski, Chicago, anti-administration candidate, withdrew.

Other Chicagoans chosen were: C. F. Czechowics, secretary; Michael Majewski, treasurer; Dr. Kuflewski, chief examining physician.

HERO QUITS KILLING HIMSELF.

Wheeler Brand's Nightly Obituary Sent "Fourth Estate" Audiences Home Gloomy, So the Play Is Changed.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Wheeler Brand does not kill himself nightly anymore—Sundays excepted—in Wallack's theater. He began not to kill himself tonight.

He is the leading character in Joseph Medill Patterson and Miss Harriet Ford's play, "The Fourth Estate," and he is played by Charles Waldron. The somber ending of the play, it was found, did not send the audience home in the happiest of spirits, so it was changed.

This necessitated the rewriting of part of the dialogue, and most of Thursday night was spent in rehearsing the new ending. Tonight the revised version was seen for the first time, and was heartily applauded. So there are no more obituaries for Wheeler Brand.

MORE LIGHT SHED ON ECKELS' ESTATE

Court Records Show Claims Against It Aggregating Approximately $1,250,000.

ASSET VALUES SHRINK.

John P. Hopkins Asks Return of Stock Given Originally to Secure Loan.

The financial straits of the estate of the late James H. Eckels, president of the Commercial National bank and at one time Mr. Cleveland's controller of the currency, were further disclosed by an examination of the records of the Probate court yesterday. In these straits Mr. Eckels, it appears, had struggled for several years before his sudden death in April, 1907. Additional claims against the estate were revealed, which, if allowed, would bring its indebtedness close to $1,250,000. Also there were revealed several transactions which showed Mr. Eckels' earnest efforts during the last few months of his life to stem the tide of financial difficulties.

In addition to the list of claims already published, other claims which originally were filed against the estate were disclosed during the day, as follows:

William Salomon & Co.	$56,804
The Securities corporation	10,000
National City bank, New York	82,771

Bank Claim Filed Too Late.

The claim of the National City bank, as appears above, was filed on July 13, 1908, three weeks after a previous claim for an exactly similar amount had been filed. The first was filed on June 24, the final date for filing of claims. This claim was allowed by Judge Cutting. The second claim was filed, according to the records, after the final date and was not allowed.

The claim of the Securities corporation was continued for hearing a number of times and subsequently was dismissed on Oct. 8, 1906. The disposition of the claim of Salomon & Co. does not appear in the records.

The relation of Mr. Eckels to John R. Walsh's ill fated Chicago National bank forms a brief chapter in the records. The record sets forth that on July 17, 1907, Judge Cutting issued an order granting leave to the executors of the estate to surrender stock of the Chicago National bank, which had been conveyed to Mr. Eckels in trust.

Transfer Ordered by Court.

Among the documents filed with regard to the administering of the estate is an order of Judge Cutting granting leave to the administrators to assign and transfer to Finis E. Marshall of New York forty shares of capital stock of the Phœnix National bank of New York City. The petition filed by Marshall states that about Nov. 1, 1906, he sent to Mr. Eckels fifty shares of Phœnix bank stock to be sold for him. He states that he heard nothing from Mr. Eckels and wrote him concerning the transaction. On March 29, 1907, Mr. Marshall states that he received a letter from Mr. Eckels stating that he had mislaid and just found the stocks and inclosing $376.25 in payment. The stock is $20 a share at par. Mr. Marshall stated in his petition that the market price of the stock was $1,881 and that he wrote in reply to Mr. Eckels that he might keep ten shares of the stock for the amount Mr. Eckels sent him if he wished, but to return the remaining forty shares. The petition avers that the forty shares were returned by the administrators on Judge Cutting's order.

Claim by John P. Hopkins.

John P. Hopkins, formerly mayor of Chicago, made a claim against the estate for $39,365. Mr. Hopkins in his petition said:

"Your petitioner further represents, upon information and belief, that the said James H. Eckels, deceased, after receiving 850 shares of stock of the Universal Adding Machine company, delivered a portion of said shares to Charles F. Spalding for the purpose of securing a loan of money from said Charles F. Spalding."

The inventory of Mr. Eckels' personal property filed in court contains an item of sixty shares of Universal Adding Machine company stock. Mr. Hopkins' petition prays that this stock be turned over to him by order of the court and that he be allowed "as damages against the said estate for the wrongful conversion thereof the value at the date of said conversion of the remaining 290 shares of the stock of the said Universal Adding Machine company."

An effort to learn further concerning this transaction from Charles F. Spalding, 46 Astor street, met with the response that he was confined to his bed by illness and was unable to discuss the matter.

Gilbert Proves Notes Were Paid.

The assets of Mr. Eckels' estate, which approximates $500,000 if the items which appear in the inventory are taken at par value, were shown to be decreased by $8,000, the amount of two notes drawn by Hiram T. Gilbert. The notes were listed as assets but Mr. Gilbert satisfied the court that they had been paid prior to Mr. Eckels' death and asked that they be surrendered by the administrators. The notes were ordered canceled and returned to Mr. Gilbert.

In the inventory of the estate appear holdings of stock of the Goconda Mining company and of the Seattle Lighting company which are marked "doubtful," but which amount to thousands of dollars if taken at par value. There also are listed several personal notes amounting to several thousand dollars which are marked "desperate." The Goconda Mining stock and bonds was the collateral upon which Mr. Eckels obtained a loan of $25,000 from Roger C. Sullivan.

Largest Claim Is Dismissed.

The dismissal of the largest claim against the estate—that of the Morton Trust company, New York, for $264,787.55—was explained in the records in a way to shed light on the manner of some of Mr. Eckels' investments. Mr. Eckels joined with Farson, Leach & Co. in purchasing a $300,000 participating certificate of the Chicago City railway underwriting syndicate. Ninety-five per cent of the price of the certificate, which originally was made out to F. A. Valentine, was paid. Farson, Leach & Co. paid $28,500 and Mr. Eckels paid $256,500, borrowing money of the Morton Trust company and depositing the certificate as collateral.

Judge Cutting granted leave to the administrators on Feb. 8, 1909, to consent to the sale of 40 per cent of the certificate to John Farson for a price sufficient to pay 40 per cent of Mr. Eckels' note to the Morton Trust company. But the certificate had no real market value, because, according to the papers which accompanied the transaction, it was participated in by P. A. Valentine, John J. Mitchell, and George W. Perkins. By agreement the certificate was returned to the administrators and then turned over to the Morton Trust company.

Other Orders of the Court.

On Sept. 22, 1909, Judge Cutting granted an order of leave to Farson & Leach to sell stock of the United States Realty company, which Mr. Eckels had given as collateral for loans, and to use the proceeds in reducing the claims against the estate. On Sept. 28, 1909, Judge Cutting granted leave to the administrators to accept an offer of A. G. Becker, whose claim against the estate was $110,841.67, to take over 800 shares preferred and 800 shares common stock of the International Harvester company, "in satisfaction of the claim of said Becker arising out of the agreement for the purchase of said stock on the joint account of said parties."

Husband Missing Since April.

Caroline Schwenk, 2416 Belmont avenue, has failed to find any trace of her husband, Henry Schwenk, who disappeared from home last April. At that time the couple and a year old baby girl were living at 1681 Elston avenue. The husband was employed at Sears-Roebuck establishment, earning good wages, but had not been in good health since an operation, which the wife thinks left his mind affected.

Poet's Daughter Who Will Lecture Here.

Chicago women of the club, society, and art worlds are to have an opportunity next month to learn of the work and methods of the late poet and artist, William Morris. His daughter, Miss May Morris, is coming to Chicago for a lecturing season which will extend from Nov. 1 to Nov. 18.

Miss Morris bears the distinction of having been her father's only "apprentice." She learned his methods in his workshop, supplementing the knowledge she gained there by study in the art schools and museum at South Kensington, England. For many years before her father's death Miss Morris had charge of the designing and embroidery departments of his shop. It was during this time that some of her most important work was done for America—notably, a pair of silk curtains called "The Fruit Garden."

While here she will deliver a course of lectures at the Art institute, the Englewood and West End Woman's clubs, the Polytechnic society, and a number of homes in Oak Park, Evanston, and Lake Forest.

RUSH TESTS FOR INSPECTORS

Civil Service Board Shifts Examinations to Nov. 15.

NEW AGE SYSTEM BEGUN.

Retiring Board Passes on Old Captains and Policemen Next Week.

The indications are that several new inspectors of police will be appointed before the first of the year. It can only be surmised which of the present ones are to be retired. In fact, that depends upon the results of the examinations to be conducted by the retiring board, and neither Chief Steward nor Elton Lower, president of the civil service commission, will make public at this time who is on the list to be examined.

There are 111 names on the list of members of the force who either have passed the age of 62 and are therefore compelled to take the physical and medical examination, or else have been recommended to the retiring board by Chief Steward for examination on account of reported physical inability to perform their duties. Some of these men, it is admitted, are commanding officers.

The latest indication, however, that new blood will be needed in the ranks of inspectors and captains before long came yesterday when the date for the civil service examination for inspectors and captains was put ahead to Nov. 15, it having originally been set for the middle of December.

Three Eligible for Inspectors.

The present eligible list for inspectors contains only three names and that for captains contains five names. Under a new plan which will be put into operation next week the physical condition of both police and fire departments is expected to be greatly improved.

The new plan was made possible yesterday by the action of the finance committee which appropriated $3,500 to be used for the purpose of conducting a continuous and automatic system of physical and medical examinations for all members of both departments, together with a system of records, to be kept in the office of the civil service commission showing at all times the physical condition of every man.

Each man will be given a thorough examination once a year by competent physicians and they will be advised on any weaknesses in their constitutions. Mr. Lower believes the life of the men in both departments will be prolonged ten years by this means.

Tests Begin Next Week.

It has been shown at previous tests made by the retiring board that men have been suffering for years from diseases which have finally proved fatal.

Beginning next week the experts for the retiring board will begin their examinations, and each day of the year will take thirty men, fifteen from the police force and fifteen from the fire department. Careful records of all men will be kept.

The automatic dropping of men whenever they are shown to be unfit for further duty will be of great benefit. Heretofore men have been kept on the force for years after they were physically unfit, simply because no one reported them to the retiring board.

Miss Macarthur Goes East Today.

Miss Mary R. Macarthur of London, suffragist and secretary of the British Women's Trade Union league, will depart for New York at 2:30 on the Twentieth Century limited. A delegation of her Chicago friends, headed by Mrs. Raymond Robins and Miss Mary E. McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement, will accompany her to the train. She is to speak in New York tomorrow at a woman's suffrage meeting arranged for her by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont.

CATHOLIC SPEAKERS PRAISE THE WORK OF MRS. RODGERS.

1,400 Meet to Pay Tribute to Newly Elected Treasurer of American Federation of Catholic Societies.

Seated under crossed flags, one a papal emblem and the only representative of its kind in Chicago, and the other "Old Glory," Mrs. Elizabeth Rodgers last evening received the tribute of a long line of Catholic speakers, who addressed an audience of 1,400 assembled to do her homage.

The occasion was the result of her recent election as treasurer of the American Federation of Catholic societies. She is the only woman member on this board, made up of bishops, archbishops, and others.

Among those who eulogized the work done by the guest of honor were Julia C. McDonnell, secretary of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters; Mrs. W. A. Murdock, grand president, Auxiliary of Locomotive Engineers; John F. Keating, national president, A. O. H.; Quinn O'Brien, and P. H. O'Donnell.

CRIPPLE TAKEN AS SWINDLER.

Albert H. Squires Is Arrested on Charge of Defrauding Physicians on Propositions for Insurance Policies.

Albert H. Squires, a cripple, was arrested yesterday on complaint of Dr. Alfred A. Hermann, 9144 Commercial avenue, on a charge of obtaining money by false pretense.

He entered Dr. Hermann's office in the morning and represented himself as the Chicago agent for the Health and Accident Insurance company of Toledo, O. It is said Squires promised to have Dr. Hermann appointed one of the physicians for the company, if he would take a policy.

Dr. Hermann said he recognized Squires as the man who had swindled him previously on a similar proposition in Newark, O., so he told him to come back in the evening. In the meantime the doctor notified the South Chicago police station, and Squires was arrested when he returned to the office. The police say Squires swindled Dr. J. W. Stanton of 9900 Commercial avenue on the same proposition.

Alpha, Ill., Bank Is Robbed.

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 15.—The Farmers' bank at Alpha was entered early today, the safe was blown, and $2,500 was taken. There is no clew to the identity of the robbers.

ARMOUR PLANNING N. Y. TRACTION DEAL

Maturing Plans for Construction of a Tunnel for Freight Business.

TAKES UP OLD FRANCHISE

Wall Street Convinced Chicagoan Is Responsible for Latest Subway Activity.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—J. Ogden Armour is preparing to invade the citadel of finance in New York.

The Chicago capitalist is not satisfied with his recent victories in the board of directors of the National City bank, where he has had two of his former employés, Samuel McRoberts and Joseph T. Talbert, made vice presidents. He has about matured a far-reaching scheme to become a traction magnate in this city in about the same manner in which he acquired control of the freight subway system of Chicago.

The latest Armour scheme was made evident today when there was filed with the public service commission a proposition by Krauthoff, Harmon & Mathewson, lawyers with offices in the National City Bank building, to hear an application for permission to construct a tunnel system in Manhattan and Brooklyn for the New York Postal Dispatch company. Mr. Krauthoff, senior member of the firm, who for years has been Mr. Armour's chief legal adviser, could not be found in the city today. The tunnels are to carry parcels and freight.

No Light as to Clients.

Mr. Harmon when asked the direct question as to whom his firm represented in the matter he answered, as if he had not expected the question:

"We are not ready yet to tell who our clients are."

Mr. Harmon described the history of the franchise granting the privilege for the proposed tunnels. The charter was originally granted by the legislature in 1808. That was before the constitutional amendment was adopted taking away from the legislature the exclusive power to grant franchises in a city without the consent of the municipal government.

About three hundred feet of the tunnel was dug in 1871 south of Broadway and Warren street. It then was given the name of the Broadway underground. Since then no further work of tunneling has been done. The franchise has changed hands several times since, however. It afterward became known as the New York arcade.

Charter Amended in 1897.

In 1897 a comprehensive amendment to the charter was obtained permitting the use of electricity as the motive power, the original scheme contemplating the use only of pneumatic force. Following this amendment to the charter the concern was given the name of the New York Parcel Dispatch company. It was in this name the property, which consists only of a blanket franchise in perpetuity, has come into the hands of its present owners, the chief of whom Walh street is convinced is J. Ogden Armour.

L. B. Stillwell, an electrical engineer of 100 Broadway, has been employed preparing complete plans for the electrification of the system.

TRAIN KILLS A NEWCOMER.

Luigi D'Achille Struck by Illinois Central Engine—Other Casualties on the Tracks.

A few hours after his arrival in Chicago yesterday, Luigi D'Achille was killed by an Illinois Central railroad train at Twenty-third street. His body was hurled fifty feet out of the path of the engine, which was running at forty miles an hour.

John Ericson, 85 years old, 9900 Ewing avenue, was killed by a Pennsylvania railroad engine in South Chicago.

John Lennon, 2504 Princeton avenue, died at St. Luke's hospital as the result of injuries suffered on Thursday when he became wedged between a street car and a wagon at Randolph street and Wabash avenue.

KANSAS WANTS CHEAP BERTHS.

Railroad Board Demands $1.50 Rate from Pullman Company, as Obtains in Oklahoma.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Pullman company must put into effect a maximum berth rate of $1.50 and a maximum seat rate of one-half cent a mile by Nov. 15 or the state board of railroad commissioners will begin proceedings to compel these rates. The board served notice on the company today for a reduction, demanding the same rates in Kansas as have been given Oklahoma.

TRY WOMAN FOR SHOOTING

Mrs. Meckling Accused of Trying to Kill Charles Bender.

Declares Domestic Trouble Was Due to the Defendant.

Mrs. Mary Meckling went on trial yesterday before Judge McEwen to answer a charge of attempting to kill Charles Bender, against whom she has begun a breach of promise suit, demanding $100,000.

Bender testified that the woman fired two shots at him as he was going up the steps of his home, 1225 Sheffield avenue. He admitted, however, that his wife left him in 1906 because of Mrs. Meckling. He also admitted having quarreled with the defendant.

"I was just going up the steps," said Bender, "when 'Bang!' went a gun right behind me. I took one look over my shoulder and ran into the house followed by another bullet.

Witness Identifies Defendant.

"The woman then ran and I came out and watched her. I know it was Mrs. Meckling."

Harry Griesbach and Mrs. A. Frankenbauer, who live in the same house with Bender, testified to hearing two shots in rapid succession. They ran downstairs and found Bender, who pointed at the fleeing figure of a woman in the dark.

Griesbach was positive in his identification of Mrs. Meckling as the woman who ran away.

Calls Suit Blackmail.

After the Griesbach and Frankenbauer testimony the case was continued until Monday. As he left the courtroom Bender declared that it was a case of blackmail.

In September, 1906, Mr. Shuster became a member of the Philippine commission and secretary of public instruction in the falands. He resigned from the commission several months ago.

11 BOY BIKE THIEVES TAKEN.

Confession of One Member of Gang Solves Mystery of Recent Disappearance of Many Wheels.

Eleven boys charged with being members of a bicycle thief gang were arrested yesterday by Rogers Park police, who expect to take five others into custody soon. The names of those arrested were withheld.

After they had been questioned they were taken to their homes. The parents promised to have them on hand when their cases are called in the Juvenile court.

According to the confession of one of the boys, they would start out at night five in a crowd. When they saw a bicycle one of them would jump on it and ride home with it, putting it in a barn. Eight bicycles have been recovered and the boys have given the police the names of several bicycle dealers to whom they sold stolen wheels.

DIES IN ROBBERY TO PAY A WIDOW

Mrs. Ernestine Wolf of New York Says Lamar A. Harris Promised Her $2,000.

SHOWS PROMISSORY NOTE.

Los Angeles Judge Says Widow Was Under Hypnotic Spell of the Bandit.

Did Lamar A. Harris take the desperate chance of life and death to repay a loan of $2,000 from Mrs. Ernestine Wolf of New York and Los Angeles?

Had he a hypnotic hold over her, as her Los Angeles friends claimed last night?

Or were their associations those of business woman and lawyer?

These questions were raised last night following the widow's arrival in Chicago and her identification of the body of Harris at Highland Park.

She said he had promised to repay her the money if he died in the attempt and that the loan was one of business purely.

Judge Tells of Love Letters.

In Los Angeles it was stated that she had been sent from New York to get her away from Harris.

Judge Henry M. Willis there said:

"The New York woman who identified the body of Lamar Harris is a member of a good Los Angeles family. I know who she is and have letters in my safe that she wrote to Harris from New York, where she was sent by her parents in an effort to free her from Harris.

"Harris, when drinking, was able to make all women, men too, believe he was very wealthy. This was the way he made love to women in every city he visited. I have letters from girls in Chicago, Salt Lake, Kansas City, and New York—all devoted love letters.

"Harris seemed to hypnotise them—this woman from New York is an example. She followed him everywhere until the family, fearing a scandal, sent her to New York, hoping she would forget him. I have expected she would appear in Chicago to identify and claim the body."

Widow Produces Proof.

Mrs. Wolf, who is the widow of Daniel L. Wolf, after positively identifying Harris' body in the undertaking rooms at Highland Park branded the late bandit as an embezzler and produced papers purporting to show the communication which passed between them in her effort to collect the money.

According to her story Harris was in a desperate frame of mind when he visited her at her residence, 246 West Forty-fourth street, three weeks ago and promised to reimburse her at all hazards. She says his visit followed one of hers to the coast, when, she says, "she intended to finish him."

She asserts they had several stormy interviews about the money, and that when she showed him he was guilty of a penitentiary offense he compromised on a $1,500 debt by giving her a note for $2,000, which was to bear 10 per cent interest.

Her identification of the body was on a dramatic order. After gazing intently upon the features of the dead man for a moment or more, she remarked that he formerly wore a mustache and beard, but said the convincing mark was a bullet wound over his heart.

Find Bullet Mark Over Heart.

"He and my husband were great friends, and I heard him remark to my husband on several occasions: 'They can never kill me. They tried it once, and I have the old mark over my heart.'" Undertaker Prior turned back the sheet, and, sure enough, there was the old wound.

"He was one of the best hearted men I ever met. He never turned down a seeker of alms in his life," she continued, "and my candid belief is that he figured on making a good haul and then going back to Los Angeles with a 'big front' and settle all his bills."

Mrs. Wolf is believed to have been the mysterious woman who phoned to Undertaker Prior from New York and later wired from Philadelphia that she was coming. It is believed that she represented herself in these messages as a sister of the dead man, though she denied it last night. She learned of the holdup and suicide from the New York papers of Thursday and that evening boarded a train for Chicago, arriving at the Union station over the Pennsylvania at 8:55 and taking the first train for Highland Park, arriving there about 10:40. Her intention was to register at the Palmer house, but upon arriving there in company with a reporter for THE TRIBUNE she changed her mind and went elsewhere.

Woman's Story of Friendship.

She had a satchel well filled with telegrams, insurance papers, and personal communications from the law partners of Harris and expressed her determination to sue the estate. She said if the money she claims was not forthcoming from that source she would hold the law firm responsible. The story is best told in her own words.

"We lived in Los Angeles about six years," she said, "but soon after the death of my husband, who was a produce broker, I moved to New York with my child and I earn a livelihood by writing songs. Harris had been my husband's attorney and naturally I turned to him when a question was raised over his insurance money.

"My husband died suddenly, and that was the reason the insurance companies didn't want to settle. Harris collected all told about $10,000 for me and held out $1,500. Because of the trouble and expense I was put to and for the reason that I threatened to make him trouble he compromised by giving me a note for $2,000 with 10 per cent interest.

"The outstanding claim was for $5,000 against the Ætna Life Insurance company. Finally Harris wired me that he had a chance to compromise for $2,500, and I told him to accept. After that it was impossible to get in communication with him. Repeated telegrams to his partners brought back word that Harris was not on the coast.

Confronts Harris with It.

"Finally I wrote to the insurance company and received in reply this wire [producing the original]:

"'Mrs. Wolf, New York: Twenty-five hundred dollars paid March 9 by draft to order of Harris & Harris, as your lawyers, immediately following receipt of your acceptance of compromise. WALTER C. FAXSON.'

"I hastened to Los Angeles and confronted Harris with the telegram, and he broke down. He said: 'Yes, I know you could put me in the penitentiary for this, but think of my good wife and my good old mother.'

"I became chicken hearted, and accepted $1,000 cash he gave and took the note, which reads [original produced]:

"'On demand I promise to pay Ernestine Wolf $2,000, with interest at the rate of 10 per cent per annum. LAMAR A. HARRIS.'

"He agreed to pay me the additional amount because of the big expense I was put to. I had to remain on the coast for a month getting the matter straightened out, and then there was the additional cost of hiring a governess to look after my child.

Harris' Desperate Promise.

"When I returned home I found that a friend had sent me newspaper clippings showing that Harris was in trouble at home because he had overdrawn his bank account. He called upon me three weeks ago with his friend McBlair, and I showed him telegrams from his partners declaring that they did not know his whereabouts.

"He told me he had been visiting relatives in Tennessee; that he was going direct home and that immediately upon his arrival he would send me a draft for the full amount. I told him then that I had waited long enough and that if he didn't keep his word I would commence criminal proceedings.

"He seemed affected over keeping me out of my money, and when he left my house he took my hand and said: 'Mrs. Wolf, I'll get you that money right away if I die in the attempt.' Well, I knew it took only five days for him to reach home, and when the draft was not forthcoming I again began sending telegrams of inquiry. Then when the New York papers spoke of 'L. Harrison' and mentioned McBlair I knew it was Harris. I hurried on just to make sure.

"I can see it all now. He was not naturally bad, and his worst fault was his drinking. I am surprised to hear of his infatuation for Minnie Harrington. He never seemed to care much for women. He would go on sprees for a week at a time and then go to a Turkish bath. I feel certain that he had hoped to procure several thousand dollars and then go back home, settle up and begin life anew.

"I am convinced that he believed he killed Marshal Sheahen or he would not have committed suicide. He had many influential friends who would have settled all his debts if he had only come forward and shown himself. These influences would have kept him out of jail on anything short of murder."

Mother Issues Statement.

The body of Harris either will be buried in Chicago or cremated and sent to Los Angeles. Word to this effect was received in a statement issued in the evening by the former attorney's mother at her residence in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Harris, the mother, supplemented her statement of the previous day with a declaration blaming alcohol for the man's ruin and death, and concluded as follows:

I still love Lamar Harris, whom I knew as a son. His wife feels the same toward the man who was her husband. We will bury the shell in Chicago, or else we will have it cremated, as was the wish often expressed by my boy, because it represents what was once the abode of a noble and generous man."

Three Identify Body.

As the body lay in the little back room of the undertaking shop of Henry M. Prior during the day three more persons who knew Harris in Los Angeles confirmed the identification of the remains.

Harry Cardell, a representative of the New York Life Insurance company in Los Angeles; G. M. Feider, a barber in Los Angeles; and C. P. McDonald, president of the Los Angeles Planing mills, all looked upon the body and declared the man was Harris.

Acting Commander of the detective bureau, James Gleason, set at rest the vague story of Harris being about to marry a woman in the nether regions. Gleason has had charge of following up the trail blazed by Harris in his gay times here last week. According to Gleason, the only woman who has been seen with Harris besides Minnie Harrington, the "girl in blue," was Mrs. Joseph Leighton, who was always accompanied by her husband.

Girl in Blue to Quit Stage.

Miss Harrington, still garbed in a suit of blue, spent the day in seclusion. To her friends she announced she would quit the stage as soon as the tour of her company was completed.

"This is the last straw," she said. "It is hardly fair to connect me with this trouble, but I suppose I am lucky to escape with my own life. Many times Lamar wanted me to leave the company and go with him. I told him time and again I could not and would not. Besides, if I did I never could land down a stage job again.

"More than once he said he was simply going to carry me off. Every time I got into a taxi with him I actually was afraid that he would try and do it—carry me off. Of course, he thought a good deal of me, but every one that knows me at all knows that I didn't care for him. He was a good fellow, but that's all.

"So I'm going to quit. I'm going back west to my folks. Every time there has been the slightest chance to put my foot in it I've always put not only one foot but two in.

Confirms Stories About Stage.

"I used to think that all the stories they told about the stage were exaggerated. But I can tell you that it's a hard life. When you're on the road the everday life is just two things—hotel and theater. And they get mighty tiresome.

"A girl simply can't help getting acquainted with fellows in every town she strikes. Either one of your friends or somebody else's friends knows this fellow or that and if you're in a party eating after the show you are just simply bound to meet man.

"The worst of it is that a girl in the short time she is in each town can't size up a fellow. They all look alike—on the surface. They all seem like dandy fine fellows, and so far as fellowship goes they usually all are. They all like to have a good time.

"Well, a girl on the stage strikes it every so often just like I have now. She meets what seems a genuine good fellow—he turns out to be this."

Kidnaped Children Who Have Been Found in Chicago.

[From a photograph taken for THE TRIBUNE.]

TOMASO AND GRACE VIVIANO

Tomaso and Grace Viviano, the children kidnaped in St. Louis last summer, were found wandering in the streets of Chicago Thursday afternoon. In spite of diligent search, the police have discovered no trace of their kidnapers, who demanded $25,000 ransom from the parents, who live in St. Louis.

SUPPRESS HOLDUP ON DRIVE

Police Conceal Robbery of Two Girls by Negro.

MAKES THREAT OF DEATH.

Susie and Edna Browne Victims Near C. H. Hulburd's Residence.

A highway robbery on the best section of the Lake Shore drive, in which two young women fought with a desperate negro holdup until he threatened them with death, has been suppressed with care by the police.

Miss Susie and Miss Edna Browne, daughters of F. F. Browne, publisher of the Dial, were the victims of the holdup which occurred at 7 p. m. last Friday in front of the residence of Charles H. Hulburd, 1138 Lake Shore drive.

They were attacked while walking toward their residence, 120 Oak street, on a boulevard where automobiles pass almost every minute. The negro assailant sprang from behind a clump of bushes and snatched at a handbag carried by one of the girls.

While the thief battled with the one girl the other called wildly for help. He jerked the purse away from her and she rushed at him furiously and recovered it.

Threatens to Kill Girl.

"Shut up and give me that purse or I'll kill you," said the thief as he made another rush and overpowered the two girls.

He escaped with the handbag and its contents, a gold watch and a small amount of money, and fled to Elm street, turned west, and disappeared in an alley.

Frightened and trembling with excitement, the girls ran home and told of the robbery. Mr. Browne immediately notified the police of the Chicago avenue station and a detail was sent out to work on the case.

Mr. Browne watched the newspapers carefully for two or three days for an account of the capture of the robber and for the story of the robbery, but none appeared. He also read the papers carefully to see if any other robberies had occurred in the neighborhood, but if any others had been perpetrated they were as carefully suppressed.

Writes to Chief Steward.

The next step was to write a letter to Chief Steward acquainting him with the conditions in the fashionable residence neighborhood and giving an account of the robbery of Friday evening.

The reply came promptly, couched in polite and assuring language. He had obtained a report on the robbery, and had set the machinery of the department in action with a view to apprehending the robber. No report of the arrest of the robber has been made.

Chief Steward said last night he had made no effort to suppress the news of the holdup. The letter reached him in ordinary course, he said.

The actual suppression, it was conceded by those acquainted with police routine, would have been done at the police station where the original report was made, Chicago avenue.

CHICAGO LAWYER DISBARRED.

Supreme Court Refuses New Trial to Walter C. Parker, Accused by Client.

Walter C. Parker, a Chicago lawyer, was disbarred from practice in the courts of Illinois by the Supreme court yesterday. The decision was handed down at the last term of court and a new trial was denied yesterday. Parker was alleged to have misappropriated $1,500 which was turned over to him by the heirs of the estate of Thomas Mooney.

"CHICAGO DRY" FIGHT URGED

J. K. Shields Is Determined to Make Local Option Test.

STRUGGLE IN THE SPRING.

Letters from 140 Ministers Declare for Battle.

James K. Shields and the Anti-Saloon league of Illinois are now satisfied that the fight to make Chicago anti-saloon territory, under the Illinois local option law, should be made at next spring's election, according to a statement made by Mr. Shields yesterday.

Mr. Shields sent out letters to representative ministers of Chicago and out of 150 replies 140 declared for making the battle. The national convention of the league will be held in Chicago, beginning Dec. 6, when the attack on the saloons will then be launched.

A number of downstate cities are now in the throes of a wet and dry contest. Being in counties not under township organization they may vote on the saloon issue in connection with the election Nov. 2. Jacksonville, Metropolis, Jonesboro, Pinckneyville, Virginia, and Du Quoin are now dry under the local option law and a bitter fight is on at each of them.

ADMITS HE URGED HIS WIFE TO ENTER INTO LIFE OF VICE.

August Mootz, Accused by Spouse, Fined $200—Court to Care for Four Children.

August Mootz, a carpenter with four children, was accused yesterday by his wife of attempting to place her in a disorderly resort. He admitted the truth of the charge before Municipal Judge Crowe in the Sheffield avenue court.

"I would like to send you to prison for the rest of your natural life," was the court's comment.

Mootz, who lives at 5832 North Paulina street, was arrested Thursday night on complaint of his wife, Margaret, who charged him with disorderly conduct. Judge Crowe fined the man $200 and costs—the maximum—after hearing Mrs. Mootz's story. The fine was suspended until Oct. 19, to give juvenile officers an opportunity to place the children, as Mrs. Mootz asked. She wants to go to work.

MOTORCYCLE VICTIM IS DEAD.

Roderick Hollett, Who Was Injured by Wreck of His Machine, Expires in the Evanston Hospital.

Roderick Hollett, who was injured in an accident Thursday evening while riding with his brother George on their motorcycle, died yesterday in Evanston hospital. George Hollett is still at the hospital, but physicians believe he will recover. His arm is broken.

The brothers were found lying unconscious near their wrecked motorcycle at Ridge avenue and Foster street, in Evanston. How the accident occurred the police were unable to learn. There were no lights on the motorcycle and the police believe it crashed into a wagon in the dark.

The boys' father, Attorney R. P. Hollett, who lives at 1044 Lake Shore drive, Evanston, is on the Atlantic and will arrive at Liverpool today. Roderick was 18 and George is 22 years old.

UPHOLD DR. EVANS; NO CENSURE VOTE

Committee Rejects Ald. Emerson's Demand Regarding Street Cleaning Charges.

BOOSTS LICENSE PRICES.

Proposed Ordinance Taxes Every Concession in Amusement Parks of Chicago.

By a vote of 6 to 1, Ald. Emerson of the Eighth ward (South Chicago) lost out on his plan to censure Health Commissioner Evans for permitting "night scavengers" to charge more than the legal rate for their work. The matter occupied the attention of the council health committee yesterday afternoon, and resulted in a vindication for the commissioner of health, despite the fact it was shown that the overcharge has been made with the consent of Chief Sanitary Inspector C. B. Ball.

A nice question was raised at the hearing, which will be thrashed out another time, as to whether the city has any right to fix the rate that individuals, firms, or corporations shall charge for work that is competitive.

The ordinance which Dr. Evans is charged with having permitted to be violated fixes the charge at 10 cents a square foot for the removal of night soil, but, according to the testimony of contractors, it was shown that the rate is so low that in many cases the contractor would lose money if he adhered to it, and consequently little attention has been paid the ordinance rate.

Scavenger Attacks Evans.

Ald. Emerson had an array of witnesses to prove that the contractors had been charging 20 cents instead of the ordinance rate. He also had one man, Addison Morrow, who declared that he had been driven out of business by Commissioner Evans, but he was forced to admit that he never had supplied himself with the iron wagons and other equipment the ordinances called for.

"This man," he said, pointing to Dr. Evans, "had me arrested and thrown in a cell because I wouldn't put a whole lot of knickknacks on my wagon to suit him. It would cost me $600 to fit up a wagon the way he wants it. What does he know about scavenger work. You can't teach me anything about that, sir," he shouted, addressing the commissioner of health. "I've been at the business for ten years and know more about it in a minute than you will ever know. Yes, I'm on my ear now, and I don't give a d— what I say or who is here," he exclaimed as some one protested that he was talking outside the question.

Commissioner Evans showed that the overcharge matter had not been called to his attention until a few days before Ald. Emerson introduced his resolution of censure in the council, and that when his attention was called to the alleged violations he had promised to take the matter up for consideration. He said that he was at work on a proposal which he expected to submit to the committee in a few days for a revision of the present ordinance, which has proven unsatisfactory. This matter will be taken up by a subcommittee composed of Hoy, Taylor, and Foreman.

No Second-Hand Wreaths.

The health committee recommended an ordinance prohibiting the sale within the city limits of any floral designs, wreaths, or moss that had been taken from the graves in any cemetery.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Hay, who drafted the ordinance, explained that it had come to the notice of city authorities that there was a considerable traffic in second hand floral designs, which were sold by cemeteries outside the city limits to florists in the city. The wire frames and moss on these set pieces were used over and over again, and he declared that it was deleterious to the health of the community to have these pieces, which frequently had been in close proximity to the bodies of persons who died of contagious diseases, going back into other homes.

Some $300,000 a year may be added to the city's revenue by an ordinance which was considered by the license committee during the day, and which undoubtedly will be recommended to the council as soon as it can be printed. This ordinance, which has been prepared by a subcommittee composed of Nolan, Ryan, and Pringle, provides for an increase in the licenses of amusement parks, also a larger license for theaters and other forms of entertainment.

License for Each Show.

The main feature is that under the terms of the proposed ordinance the amusement park managers will be required to take out a license for each separate concession or entertainment inside the park gates to which an admission is charged. Hitherto a blanket license issued to the park covered all the shows within the walls.

According to the terms of this ordinance, theaters or shows charging 5 cents admission will have to pay $200 a year; those charging from 10 to 50 cents must pay $300; those charging no more than 75 cents shall pay $350; and where the admission is more than 75 cents the license fee will be $750. These same rates apply to all theaters, whether in amusement parks or not.

Holds Up Gas Permits.

Frank T. Fowler, member of the board of local improvements, who has organized a new department of the board to look after the issuing of permits to tear up streets "under reserve," has made good on his threat to bring to time the People's Gas Light and Coke company. During the day he caused sixty-six permits, which the company had applied for to tear up streets under reserve to be held up until the company announces its willingness to do the work according to the new rules of the board.

Presbyterian Brotherhood Convenes; Adopts Resolutions.

PRAISE FOR GIPSY SMITH.

Call Present Time to Strike Hard Blows for Righteousness.

The Chicago Presbyterian brotherhood yesterday entered upon an active crusade for a better and cleaner Chicago, bright with religious fidelity, human fraternity, and civic honor. Resolutions were passed applauding the moves already made to supplant indecency and inertia in Chicago with wholesomeness and red blooded activity in public life.

It was declared at the meeting that the present is a "white hot" opportunity for bold, strong strokes, and a scheme was suggested for a massmeeting of all the lay churchmen in Chicago at the Coliseum, to swell the boom for bigger and better things.

The "keenly suspected alliance" between officers of the law and the vicious element was contrasted sharply with the religious fervor engendered by "Gipsy" Smith's mission.

It was declared that one of the first things the churches can do is to make Chicago a cheery place for the boys away from home who are "lonely" by providing wholesome and attractive places of amusement to crowd out the gaudy eyesores which wreck young manhood.

All Favor an Uplift.

All the speakers advocated a genuine uplift in Chicago. The resolutions follow:

Resolved, That the Presbyterian Brotherhood of Chicago puts on record its deep sense of the critical moral significance of the present moment in the history of the city.

That the profound public expression already enacted by the mission conducted by Gipsy Smith; the widespread indignation at known and suspected connection between officers of law and exploiters of crime and vice; the stirring call from the city's journalism for united and militant assertion of the love of righteousness and honor, and the feeling general that it is time to set forward a better and greater Chicago, all confirm the current hour a white hot opportunity for bold, strong strokes in behalf of nobler standards for the city.

That as men of the church we recognize and accept the peculiar responsibility of confessed Christians for consistency, candor, and courage in such a crisis.

That we enjoin on the council of the brotherhood a special obligation in this time for positive leadership.

That we trust the council will align the Presbyterian brotherhood with other denominations to aid the speedy realization in Chicago of that reign of right in Chicago which our Master named the kingdom of God.

Urges a Demonstration.

Dr. Hardin urged that the Presbyterian men of Chicago should be called to meet with the men of all the churches of Chicago in the Coliseum for a demonstration of that earnestness of purpose which is felt all over the city for a cleaner and better Chicago.

Prof. William Mather Lewis, head master of Lake Forest university, took for his subject "The Chicago Boy."

"The poor mother who gives her 8 or 10 year old baby beer to drink and diseased meat to eat is not near so bad as the rich man who gives his 16 year old son an automobile and a pocket full of money and then takes no interest in that son's associates," said he.

"The mother may be educated in time, but there is no hope for the father."

Prof. Lewis said he had stood in front of saloons and theaters on South State street, below Van Buren, and on West Madison street, near Halsted, and on Clark street north of the river, and had seen young boys of 10 years come out between acts and go into the saloons and come out again, with the devil's fire already planted on their faces and the devil's talk already rolling from their nicotine stained mouths.

Sees Appeal in "The Tribune."

"I was led to this investigation," he said, "because I noticed a letter in THE TRIBUNE of Sept. 1, signed by 'Lonely,' and if I had been a stranger in Chicago the chances are 1,000 to 1 that the unwholesome place would have got my patronage also.

"A crying need in Chicago today is for meeting and amusement places, brilliantly lighted and attractively furnished, which will push in among the dives. You say they can't compete. I say that a warm, pleasant room, with games and music, moving pictures, and some whole hearted fellows in charge, would have thousands of youths a year.

"The reason many a boy adopts as his ideal some sporting character of low morals, while he shuns the model whom his parents urge him to imitate, is because the former is strong along those physical lines which are a boy's greatest joy, and the latter repels by his lack of physical skill and interest.

"A man does not need to be a Cobb or a Wagner to interest a boy, but he must know the difference between a base hit and the bleachers.

"Do you know over 90 per cent of the boys in Chicago are profane, and that thousands between the ages of 8 and 10 smoke and chew?"

The following were elected as officers of the Chicago Union for the ensuing year: President, Judge Charles G. Neely; first vice president, George Lazear; second vice president, Henry P. Crowell; treasurer, Carroll H. Sudler; and secretary, Calvin H. Mills.

STEWARD SHOWERS BLOWS ON LEVEES

Chief Issues New Rule Forbidding Painting and Shuttering of Windows.

EMIGRATE UNDER GUARD.

Women Who Leave Vice District Will Be Barred from Residence Sections.

Painted and shuttered windows in houses in the levee districts were ordered removed by Superintendent of Police Steward yesterday. The inspectors of the different police districts and Capt. Cudmore of the south side levee district were called in conference with the chief in the afternoon and received the new order pertaining to the windows and shutters.

"Such windows are an admission of inefficiency on the part of the Chicago police department," said he. "Women in these houses must keep away from the windows. I will not tolerate soliciting from windows nor half closed doors. The houses may have window curtains.

"If a resort is not operated in accordance with police regulations it will not stay open long."

Steward Explains Theory.

Chief Steward also took measures to prevent future infractions of the rules for the regulation of these districts which he has put in force.

"If you have ever been out west, where the prairies are infested with the pest of gophers and prairie dogs, you may have noticed that when you approach one of these little animals it immediately disappears in a convenient hiding place, only to pop out again when you turn away," explained the chief. "Now, these men who live on the earnings of unfortunate women, and the women, too, are like gophers. When a policeman comes along they are not to be seen, but as soon as he has passed by, why, out they pop again. I am trying to devise some way of catching them before they have had time to pop into their retreats.

"The only violations of my orders, according to reports I have received, are violations by persons who depend upon their cleverness in getting out of sight when danger is near."

Protects Residence Districts.

Chief Steward during the day received detailed reports from each inspector in charge of districts in which vice centers are located, but refused to divulge their contents. The reports, he said, contained a complete outline of what had been done in each district to suppress vice, the number of arrests made, number of places closed, and the number of men and women driven out.

The chief instructed his subordinates in these districts, including Capt. Cudmore, to learn as near as possible the destination of every woman of bad reputation who moved out of the vice centers.

Orders also were issued designed to prevent the immigration of these characters into the residence districts. As a result every newcomer in a district is being scrutinized.

The chief is planning a tour of the vice districts within a few days. He will use an automobile to go from one part of the city to another, but will make the rounds of the saloons and houses on foot. The exact time of his tour will not be known even to the commanding officers of the districts.

White Slaves as Witnesses.

All girls rescued from lives of white slavery hereafter will be held for witnesses, instead of being sent to their homes, by virtue of Chief Steward's instructions. In every case where there is evidence of pandering, the girl in the case is to be held for the purpose of facilitating the capture and punishment of those who are responsible for her incarceration.

The chief said that he had come to the conclusion that it did no lasting good to rescue a girl from a life of shame if the root of the trouble was not reached through the arrest of the persons who lured her into it.

Ten men were arrested during the day, in a raid on a saloon owned by Mrs. Otto Boehim, 5859 Ashland avenue. The men were playing cards and when arraigned before Judge Fry were fined $1 each.

Saloonkeepers and proprietors of cigar stores and restaurants express pleasure because of the chief's order against drinking by policemen.

MANY PERILS LIE IN CENTRAL BANK

Financial Idea Which Will Be Placed Before Congress Holds Dangers.

WALL STREET MAY RULE.

Raymond Says People Should Prevent Power Going to Certain Interests.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—If there is any one thing which ought to be pounded into the consciousness of the American people at this time it is the fact that their future prosperity and the welfare of the whole country requires that they should keep their eyes and their ears wide open, that they should study this vast currency question carefully and that they should not commit themselves or allow other people to commit them to any new policy, however alluring in its promises of reform, until it has been fully discussed and understood in all its bearings.

The time is particularly ripe for a change in our currency and banking system. In the first place its defects are manifold. We have a wide range of paper money representing totally different theories of finance and all circulating side by side at the same time. Moreover, our currency is so rigid, so lacking in elasticity, that it fails to provide money enough in time of stress, and loads us down with too much when there is no demand for it.

We have gone through a money panic and recovered completely. The tariff is settled for good or bad for a number of years. There is every indication of renewed prosperity lasting for some time to come. There couldn't be a better time in which to make a change with the least possible disturbance to business and social conditions.

People Must Watch Changes.

On the other hand, there is the greatest danger that the people may be led away after strange gods and may bitterly regret the alleged reforms which are to be instituted. It is more than probable—in fact, it is absolutely certain—that any attempt to reform the banking and currency system of the country will be seized upon by designing people to exploit themselves and their interests at the expense of others, and of the nation at large.

So certain is this to be the case that the people ought to assume an attitude of suspicion and scrutiny in regard to every last plan of financial reform, no matter where it may originate. The mere fact that President Taft has declared for a central bank does not make the central bank a good thing, in spite of the recognized honesty and intelligence of the chief magistrate.

The mere fact that Canada has a good banking system which supplies the needs of the dominion admirably does not make it certain the same system would be at all valuable for the United States. The bank of France reaches down into almost every hamlet, but it is by no means certain that a system of branch banks which does the work so well there would be tolerated by the people of the United States, who have been brought up to worship individual effort and enterprise.

Changes Must Protect All.

No banker should dictate the details of the banking system, but no banking system should be established which could not run the gantlet of the objections of experienced and patriotic bankers. No currency system should be adopted which would not protect the poorest of the people, and yet no currency should be devised which would impede business operations or which would reduce the value of accumulated capital by the fraction of a cent.

The banking and currency system to be devised in place of our present preposterous scheme, need not necessarily be wholly new. On the contrary, it might well retain those features now in existence which have proved themselves to be good and particularly well adapted to our American development.

The magnates of Wall street should not impose upon the farmers of Iowa any financial trick which will rob the farmers of the fruits of their hard toil, but, on the other hand, fantastic schemes of financial development hatched out at the corner grocery should not be backed up by the force of votes unless they meet the approval in the long run of those men who have made a business of finance and who may fairly be presumed to know what they are talking about, in spite of the fact that their individual interests may be at times opposed to those of the plain people.

Explanation of Central Bank.

There are several things which will be brought up for discussion during the coming year while the monetary commission is preparing its report, and which will be talked of even more vigorously after that report is submitted to congress.

In the first place there is a central bank scheme, which has the approval of President Taft in a general sort of way and which is more than likely to be recommended by the monetary commission. Then there is the mere expedient of the issue of credit notes based not upon government securities but upon commercial paper, by individual banks or local associations of banks.

Both these schemes involve the disappearance of the government from the business of issuing paper money or promises to pay. It might still retain the function of issuing certificates of deposit calling for specific amounts of gold or silver coin, but it would have to call in all its greenbacks and it would ultimately, if not at once, cease to be a guarantor of the note issues of national banks, the credit of the government thus being withdrawn from all direct participation in creating a foundation for the currency. Almost all the schemes proposed involve first of all this retirement of the government from the business of issuing paper money, and this is the first thing the people will have to get into their heads at the outset of the coming discussion which legislative prophets say is certain to become the great issue of the country inside of the next twelve months.

Scheme Works in Europe.

There are some good arguments both for and against the establishment of a great central bank. The theory works well in France and Germany. It involves a practical monopoly of the right of issuing notes, and it is a bank of banks, because it does business with other banks which are either actually or indirectly its branches. Its notes are issued, based upon the commercial paper or bonds or other securities offered by the individual banks and rediscounted by the central institution.

For the benefit of people who want to know what President Taft has recommended, the simplest way perhaps is to cite the instance of the bank of France. It is a great private concern which is managed by a board of directors or regents, chosen by the shareholders. The republic appoints one of the shareholders as governor of the bank, who has the veto power over the board of directors.

The bank of France has the exclusive right of issuing notes, and they are legal tender. It has numerous branches and subsidiary offices reaching down into the smallest towns and villages. Through these branch offices it discounts paper presented to it with a minuteness which would cause even the smallest of our country banks to open their financial eyes in amazement. They think nothing in the bank of France of discounting a note for $2, and at one time, it was said, as is reported by Mr. Horace White, there were 1,000,000 discounts in the bank of France, the largest of which did not exceed $20.

French Bank a Monopoly.

The bank has a monopoly, but nobody seems to worry about that. There used to be other note issuing banks, but they had to go out of the business. The currency is absolutely stable and beyond suspicion. The rate of discount is always low, and, moreover, the Bank of France is said to be the largest continuous owner of specie in the world.

Whether a central bank which works well in France or Germany would be suited to this country is a thing which will have to be determined, and it is this thing above all others which the people will have to study out for themselves. Whether our multitude of individual banks can be persuaded to put themselves into the position of becoming branches of a central institution, or at least dependent upon it for their supply of currency, is at least doubtful.

More important than all other things is the danger that such a great central institution might be captured by certain vast financial interests and administered for their benefit and in such a way as to give them control of the credit of the country. This is a positive and real danger. It may possibly be prevented or safeguarded against, but it should not be ignored or overlooked.

Functions Must Be Defined.

It does not follow that a central bank will necessarily be perverted to unworthy ends, but before any such institution is started in the United States there ought to be a pretty clear understanding as to what its functions will be, and whether it will be given power to control the finances of the country in any way unfair to the people or to the other banks.

On the other hand, it is quite possible that some system might be devised by which the national banks themselves shall be given authority to issue currency based on their ordinary assets, with proper supervision and abundant safeguards, necessitating perhaps small local associations, but avoiding the necessity for a great central bank of issue which might or might not be responsive to the demands of political localities and which might or might not treat everybody alike.

Somewhere between these two propositions will probably be found the outcome of the new scientific American system of currency and banking.

AWAIT RETURN OF LORIMER BEFORE TRYING TO NOMINATE.

Republican Bosses of Sixth Congressional District Fail to Agree—"Dry" Party Is Busy.

The Republican bosses in the Sixth congressional district made an ineffectual attempt last night to get an agreement as to how the successor to William Lorimer shall be nominated. They were much farther apart concerning the personality of the candidate who will be put into the running.

Senator Lorimer is somewhere between here and Europe, his immediate entourage not knowing exactly where. He has given no intimation of his plans or ideas, it was said, and pending word from him the further consideration was postponed until next Monday afternoon.

The senator is expected to land in New York this morning and is due to reach Chicago some time tomorrow.

As indicated by James L. Monaghan, Senator Lorimer's personal representative in the Thirty-fourth ward, the plan, if O K'd by Mr. Lorimer when he gets to Chicago, is to call a delegate convention in the congressional district and then and there to make a nomination which will be certified to Secretary of State Rose and to County Clerk Haas.

County Clerk Haas has indicated he will be guided by the opinion of Assistant County Attorney Struckman and will place the name of the candidate so nominated upon the official ballot as the Republican nominee. The convention will be held some time next week, by necessity not later than Saturday.

The condition of things in the Second senatorial district is considerably different, due to the stand of the board of election commissioners, through the decision of their attorney, Frank D. Ayers. The commissioners say they will recognize no party nominations by the Republicans or Democrats because, by the Ayers opinion, there is no primary law in force and no legal method of nominating candidates whose names may be placed on the official ballot.

The Prohibition party, unaffected by the peculiar condition of affairs which has arisen, has taken the aggressive, and an official call was issued for a congressional convention to be held Thursday night, Oct. 21, at Washingtonian hall, 1531 West Madison street. A senatorial convention to nominate a candidate for the Zaabel vacancy will be held at the same place and time.

It is the intention to nominate strong candidates for both places for the special election of Nov. 23 and to make a hard fight.

The Shurtleff "cow" committee, which is to investigate the Chicago milk pasteurization ordinances and to delve into the northern Illinois milk business generally, will be called to meet in Chicago some time next week, possibly next Wednesday.

The new Illinois insurance commission, which is to investigate the fire insurance rates in the state, will meet in Quincy next Tuesday.

SEEKS TO ANNUL MARRIAGE.

Mother of Carl H. Hanna Asserts He Was Not of Age When He Wed Miss Leavitt.

New York, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Edmund K. Stallo, mother of Carl H. Hanna, said today she would begin the necessary legal proceedings to annul the marriage of her son and Miss Gertrude Leavitt without delay. She asserted that her son was not of age when he married Miss Leavitt on July 30 last, and that the ceremony had been performed without her knowledge.

Friends of young Hanna said today that he had declared that no one would ever separate him from his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna are now in Boston visiting at the home of Guy S. Leavitt, a brother of the bride. They expect to return to the home of Mrs. Marion B. Phelps, a sister of the bride, at Pelham Manor tonight or tomorrow.

Next Tuesday the Hannas will go to Duluth, Minn., where Mr. Hanna is employed.

TAFT MEETS DIAZ ON BORDER TODAY

Each Crossing Line Will Be Alternate Guests of Respective Nations.

STATEHOOD AGAIN THEME

President Entertained by Indians, to Whom He Gives Good Advice.

PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM TODAY.

Arrives at El Paso, Tex., from Albuquerque .... 9:40 a. m.
Leaves El Paso for San Antonio, Tex. .. 8:00 p. m.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—President Taft ended a day in which he made the residents of this section glad by speaking in favor of statehood for Arizona and New Mexico, and tomorrow at El Paso, Tex., will meet President Diaz of Mexico.

President Diaz arrived at Ciudad Juarez, across the river from El Paso, this morning. He will cross the Rio Grande river into United States territory tomorrow. Gov. Campbell of Texas, with his staff, is at El Paso.

After the ceremonies in El Paso the president will cross the river to Juarez to return Diaz's call, and make a second trip into Mexico in the evening to be the guest of Diaz at a state banquet.

Arriving here at 5 o'clock the president was greeted by one of the largest audiences of his territorial trip of three days, and aroused intense enthusiasm by a repetition of the declarations that he favored statehood for the two remaining territories, and would do all in his power to see that the long deferred hopes of Arizona and New Mexico are gratified.

Entertained by Indians.

The president spoke from a platform and later was entertained at a banquet by the Commercial club. Following the banquet the president stopped half an hour at the Montezuma ball, an annual function of the Mardi Gras order.

At Laguna, a township made up entirely of Indians, the president was met by a committee of Indians and had one of the most unique entertainments of his trip. The president was showered with presents. There were blankets of gaudy color, Indian beads, and other offerings the red men had fashioned in his honor. The plaza, the wall, and the roofs of the adobe houses were lined with Indians, the squaws being attired in fantastic costumes. There was hardly a squaw that did not have a papoose in her arms or swung on her back. Indian boys and girls were arranged in a long row to welcome the president. As the president was leaving the plaza after the weird music of the tomtoms had died away and the last steps of the Comanche dance had been taken the children sang a song of New Mexico to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland."

Tells Redmen to Be Good Men.

From the plaza the president went to the church, an adobe building. In a speech spoken slowly and with emphasis on each syllable in order that all who spoke English at all might understand, the president assured the Indians of the good will of the government and urged them to be good farmers and good artisans. He was warmly applauded and every Indian wanted to shake his hand.

In his address to the Indians Mr. Taft said:

"I want to convey to the Laguna and Acoma Indians, who I understand constitute those present, the good will of the government of the United States. I hope that the Indians I am addressing are working industriously in the vocation which they know, agriculture and in other branches of industry. I hope that their flocks, their herds, and all the products of the soil may be profitable to them, and that they may continue to live in comfort under the auspices of the government that is pledged to look after their welfare. I hope the children are being educated so they may grow up to be good men and women and good citizens of the United States."

In his address to the people of New Mexico the president said:

"Now, my friends, I might as well make the announcement now, so as to relieve any doubt on the subject, that I was elected on a platform that declared in favor of the admission of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states, and that so far as I can properly exercise any influence as the chief executive, for, bear in mind, I am not the legislator, I expect to exercise that influence to carry out that promise of the platform on which I was elected.

State Will Not Be All Heaven.

"You are looking forward to statehood as if it were heaven. Well, I venture to think that there will be a considerable difference between heaven and that state after you become one; that you will have a great many responsibilities that you don't have now and a good many difficulties, the weight and burden of which you don't now appreciate. There are a number of preliminary steps that you have to take.

"Don't put into your constitution a provision as to the length of the linen sheets to be put in a hotel. It may be that they ought to be limited. It may be that they ought to be made of a certain size. I sympathize with that feeling myself. But the constitution is not the proper place to put it. You want to trust your legislature and you ought to follow the model of the constitution of some of the older states which also have modeled after the constitution of the United States.

"I want, if we are responsible for your coming into the union, as I am willing to be and as the Republican party is willing to be, that you should justify that admission by making yourselves a progressive but at the same time a conservative community."

President Taft and Postmaster General Hitchcock were notified by wire of the resignation of Third Assistant Postmaster General Lawshe. Mr. Hitchcock recommended that action on the resignation be deferred, in the hope that Mr. Lawshe may find himself in a position to withdraw it. Mr. Lawshe has been at Fort Bayard, N. M., all summer. His health having given indication of a breakdown, Mr. Hitchcock told Mr. Lawshe to spend the summer in New Mexico and try to recuperate. Now that the summer is ended, it is believed that Mr. Lawshe, not feeling sufficiently strong to resume work at this time, wired his resignation. He will be urged to continue his leave for some time longer, in the hope he will not have to press his resignation.

Arrival of Diaz Party.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 15.—President Diaz, accompanied by his minister of war, Gen. Manuel Gonzales Cosio, Señor Olegario Molino, Gov. Enrique Creel of Chihuahua, and the members of his staff, arrived in Juarez at 2 o'clock today. As the presidential train reached the station a salute of twenty-one guns was fired. The party will remain on the train until tomorrow, when the president will enter a carriage and be driven into American territory.

OBITUARY.

BRIG. GEN. RICHARD C. DRUM, U. S. A., retired, a veteran of the civil war, and for years adjutant general of the army, died yesterday in Drummond, Md. He entered the army as a private in a Pennsylvania regiment in 1846, and reached the grade of brigadier general in 1880, retiring in that grade in 1889.

WILLIAM LINDSAY, former United States senator from Kentucky, died at his home in Frankfort yesterday. The Court of Appeals and lower courts adjourned in respect to his memory. The funeral will take place on Sunday at 2 p. m.

COL. HENRY R. HARRIS, ex-congressman and third assistant postmaster general during the first Cleveland administration, died at his home at Odessadale, Ga., yesterday. He was 84 years old.

AGED MAN THREATENS TAFT

Prospector Is Arrested in New Mexico After Queer Actions.

WILKIE SCOFFS AT "PLOTS."

Berkman Sought in Texas but Is in New York.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Shouting "Where is Taft? I want to kill him," Thomas Thorpe, an aged prospector, approached Policeman Guvera today a few minutes after President Taft and his party had reached Albuquerque.

Thorpe was arrested. He had acted queerly and asked Chief of Police McMillan questions which aroused the chief's suspicions and he ordered his men to watch Thorpe.

Chief Wilkie of the United States secret service stated today in El Paso, Tex., that no plot is known to exist having for its object harm to either President Taft or President Diaz. He called the stories of plots "rot," after having run down a score of clews and finding them baseless. A large number of Mexicans have been arrested as suspicious characters.

Secret service men of Mexico and the United States searched today in San Antonio for Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, reported to have been seen there. Dispatches from New York say Berkman is in that city.

Wilkie in Charge of Protection.

Chief Wilkie has entire charge of the work of protecting the presidential party and has been directing matters personally. He has been at El Paso for several days looking after the arrangements of his service in connection with the meeting of Presidents Taft and Diaz.

As the head of the service he is not required to report to Washington. He has not found so far as can be learned anything as to any unexpected condition of affairs at the scene of the coming presidential exchange of greetings.

The public feature of that ceremony was canceled at the instance of the state department, and the state department's intervention in the plans would mean that word had come either from the Mexican embassy or at Washington, or through the American embassy at the City of Mexico, indicating the desire of the Mexican government that the international handclasp should be in private, instead of a function with great crowds at hand.

Chief Wilkie has been looking into the situation all along the line from Chicago down to the Mexican border, in touch not only with his own men but with authorities at all points directly or indirectly concerned in the trip.

Berkman in New York; Surprised.

New York, Oct. 15.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist and associate of Emma Goldman, was found at his rooms in New York tonight. When informed that secret service men were looking for him in San Antonio he was much surprised.

"I have not been in San Antonio recently, and do not intend to go there," he said, "and I cannot imagine what this reported flurry is about.

"Emma Goldman is in Philadelphia, but will return to New York on Sunday in order to be present at a massmeeting here to protest against the execution of Ferrer in Spain."

C., B. & Q. PRESIDENT'S WIDOW GIVES HARVARD $30,000 FUND.

Money to Be Held in Trust for Establishment of Scholarships in Memory of Charles Elliott Perkins.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—The Harvard university corporation has received from Mrs. Edith F. Perkins of Burlington, Ia., widow of Charles Elliott Perkins, for years president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, a gift of $30,000.

The fund is to be held in trust for the establishment of scholarships at the institution in memory of her husband. The scholarships are to be given only to graduates of schools and colleges in Iowa.

The income of the fund is to be divided among four or more scholarships on the following terms:

One undergraduate scholarship of at least $300, to be offered annually to bona fide residents of Des Moines county upon graduation from the Burlington High school, or if such high school be given up, the public school which takes its place in the city of Burlington, the award to be subject to the recipient's admission to Harvard college as a freshman or special student. If no award is made or the recipient fails to be admitted, the income is to be added to the principal.

Two undergraduate scholarships of $300 each, to be offered annually to students from Iowa high schools.

YOUTH TARRED AND FEATHERED BY OHIO COLLEGE STUDENTS.

Drastic Punishment Threatened to Hazers Who Took a Freshman to Woods for Night "War Dance."

Alliance, O., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The authorities of Mount Union college threaten to inflict drastic penalties on the upper classmen who smeared Foster Whitten, a freshman, with tar, feathers, and leaves, in the woods near the college last night.

The faculty learned of the hazing when Whitten appeared in class today, contrary to the orders of the hazers, with his skin scoured off from efforts to get rid of the tar, and with his hair all cut off except for the scalp lock.

The hazers, masked, broke into Whitten's room after he had gone to bed. They carried him in a blanket to the woods, and took along his pillows. Running out of feathers, they used leaves. They did an Indian war dance around him.

WITHDRAW A POSSIBLE INSULT.

Members of State Building Association League Table Resolution Which Might Offend Auditor.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A report recommending a committee to confer with the state auditor regarding a more thorough examination of Illinois associations was withdrawn at the annual meeting of the Building Association league of Illinois today when some delegates feared the recommendation might be construed as an attack upon the state office.

The recommendation was part of a report made by E. L. Chapin, chairman of the league's law committee, and referred to a recent case in Chicago where representatives of the state auditor discovered a shortage in the association. Quincy was selected as the place for holding the next annual convention.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, J. W. Maple, Peoria; first vice president, Frank J. Hajicek, Chicago; second vice president, A. J. Williamson, Quincy; treasurer, Lake W. Sanbron, Galesburg; secretary, B. G. Vasen, Quincy.

President Maple was given authority to name the delegate to represent the league at the national convention to be held at Charlotteville, N. C.

CRANE TO REVEAL MORE TO PUBLIC?

Walter Fisher Says Former Minister Will Tell Real Cause of Recall.

BLAME PLACED ON TAFT.

Chicagoan Only Followed His Advice and Example, Friend Alleges.

New York, Oct. 15.—Charles R. Crane declined today to reveal what his friends declare are the real reasons for his retirement. One of these friends, however, Walter L. Fisher of Chicago, intimated strongly that the incident was far from closed, and that revelations which would be made in due time would show Mr. Crane to have been the victim of a political intrigue.

"While Mr. Crane's official relations are definitely ended," said Mr. Fisher, "there are many things connected with this matter of such a character and importance that the American people must continue to be deeply concerned in them. Mr. Crane has preferred not to go into them now, because of the possibility that a public discussion at this time might be harmful to the public interest.

"So far as the personal indignity and official embarrassment that has occurred has been due to publicity, the responsibility is on the department of state and not on Mr. Crane. He did not even trust his telegram to the president to the ordinary agencies, but took it to the president's secretary, to be sent in cipher. Not until Secretary Knox gave out his astounding statement to the press did Mr. Crane make any public statement, and even then he purposely omitted many important and significant matters, because it might injuriously affect public interests to mention them now.

Article Unknown to Crane.

"In the long ride across the continent to Washington Mr. Crane did not mention the reason for his recall. He could not, as he did not know that the offending newspaper article had been published, and did not see it until the day after he reached Washington. It is deeply significant that none of the scores of newspaper men whom he met on his journey mentioned this article or any 'canards' concerning an American protest to Japan. The importance of the article may be judged from the fact that it was not suspected of being the cause until the tip was given in Washington, and not from Mr. Crane.

"It is due to Mr. Crane also to note that, in carrying out the president's wishes that he should do some vigorous public speaking, and in the absence of instructions from the state department, Mr. Crane carefully confined himself to the lines laid down by Mr. Taft himself in the famous Shanghai speech, ringing with vigorous Americanism, and so definitely friendly to the Chinese that it ended all talk of the dismemberment of China. When he 'let them have it hot' Mr. Crane talked only of the common interests of America and China, and he received no criticism from the department of state.

Says Public Needed Lessons.

"Those who are so concerned about whether he was pro-Japanese or anti-Japanese seem unable to understand a man who has been first, last, and all the time simply pro-American; and as the American minister to China, also pro-Chinese. His only thought in connection with the offending newspaper article was that if the government should decide that its interest in the 'open door' demanded a protest, the American press should then be prepared to discuss it intelligently and effectively.

"The possibility of a protest was so much a matter of common knowledge that the offending article in which it was mentioned attracted no particular attention. It was not until after its connection with Mr. Crane's recall leaked out in Washington that the Japanese embassy sent to the newspaper office for a copy of the article.

"The effort to involve Mr. Millard as the real cause of Mr. Crane's recall is equally unfounded. Mr. Millard had a commission to write some magazine articles on the far east and asked if there was any objection to his traveling on the same ship with Mr. Crane, who consented, with the approval of the president, with whom Millard had once traveled.

Taft Had Praised Millard.

"It will be recalled that Mr. Millard also addressed that celebrated Shanghai meeting, and that Mr. Taft then publicly spoke of him as one 'who has written much and well on the far east, and has given close attention to the statistics of the trade between China and the various countries of the world.'

"The fact that because Mr. Millard is vigorously pro-Chinese he is put down as anti-Japanese may throw some light on the present situation. But the entire matter can be understood and discussed more intelligently and safely as the facts become public property in the future."

Rumor Cause of Recall?

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Such Washington officials as have not proceeded to forget the Crane incident were regaled today with the latest and most novel version of the difficulty between the dismissed minister to China and Secretary of State Knox. According to this story, the whole trouble was occasioned by the inability of two humorists to comprehend each other's style of wit—the two humorists being none other than Mr. Crane and Mr. Knox.

A close friend of Mr. Crane, in discussing the regrettable feature of the affair, said that the budding minister in his New York speech before the Asiatic society merely was delivering himself of a humorous sally when he referred to the "present holdup policies" of the American government in connection with the Hankow railway loan.

"That was just Charley Crane's delicious play of humor which all of us who know him have delighted in for years," said this friend. "The only trouble was that Knox didn't see the point of the joke."

It was upon this speech that Mr. Knox congratulated Mr. Crane, according to the Chicagoan's friends.

"Mr. Knox's congratulations were in the line of quiet sarcasm," commented a government official. "The only trouble was that Crane didn't take the hint."

Baker Is Given Promotion.

Edward C. Baker, the state department official from whom Mr. Crane obtained his information concerning the American attitude toward the China-Japanese convention which he is accused of confiding to a correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, has been appointed consul at Antung, China. Mr. Baker was acting chief of the division of far eastern affairs at the time of his conference with Crane. No blame was attached to Mr. Baker for his part in the affair, as he trusted in the discretion of Mr. Crane. The assignment is a promotion.

Mr. Baker has been in the consular service since 1906, when he was appointed vice consul at Foo-Chow. In October, 1907, he was transferred to the post of vice consul at Amoy. In the fall of 1908 Mr. Baker was detailed for duty as assistant chief in the far eastern division of the state department. He has been in charge of that division since Willard D. Straight, its former chief, resigned from the consular service several month sago to become the Peking representative of an American syndicate of capitalists.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 15.—At the closing session today the American Hardware association declared for ship subsidies in order to promote foreign trade.

These officers were elected: President, Robert N. Dudley, Nashville; vice president, J. D. Moore, Birmingham; secretary treasurer, F. J. Fernly, Philadelphia.

The American Manufacturers' association elected Robert Garland of Pittsburg president.

WOMEN TEST OFFICE SEEKERS

New York Suffragists Don't Like Old Party Candidates.

W. R. HEARST PLEASES THEM

Answers Questions Which Gaynor Completely Sidesteps.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Socialism and prohibition and the type of independence represented by William R. Hearst are at a premium just now in the suffrage camp at 505 Fifth avenue, while Democracy and Republicanism have been pronounced utterly without the pale. This is because some of the candidates for mayor of Greater New York have been just too mean for anything about the questions that Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont submitted to them a short time ago.

Otto T. Bannard, Republican, has been weighed in the balance by Mrs. Belmont and found wanting. Out of nine simple questions he answered only three correctly and any one who has ever been to school can see at a glance what sort of percentage that would give him.

As for Candidate W. J. Gaynor, indorsed by Tammany, he flunked the whole paper. He didn't even attempt to answer a single question, although the board of examiners gave him extra time, thinking he might be a bit nervous.

Hearst Pleases with Answers.

As for Mr. Hearst, all those who saw his paper agreed it couldn't be marked less than 100, although he lumped all of his answers into one. That was a small matter, indeed, said the board when it is taken into consideration that he expressed an unequivocal belief in women's suffrage and ended with an eloquent tribute to the magnificent work done for the cause at the Belmont headquarters.

Alfred E. Manierre, the Prohibition candidate, answered every question in a manner that was entirely satisfactory to the suffragists, and so did Edward F. Cassidy, the Socialist candidate.

The board of examiners gave out a statement during the day which, after expressing the disapproval of the national association regarding Mr. Gaynor's treatment of Miss Maude Malone at his Carnegie hall meeting, went on to say that the advocates of women's suffrage could expect no support from him nor could the women of Greater New York hope in the event of his election he would sign an equal pay bill or that he would appoint women as members of the board of education.

Gaynor Ridicules Women's Test.

Mr. Gaynor dismissed this statement from his further consideration with the assertion:

"It seems incredible that any woman who is loyal to the highest interests of her sex could give the slightest influence or assistance to my candidacy."

Mr. Hearst went to Brooklyn at night and delivered an address in support of his candidacy.

Gaynor did not speak at night, but Bannard, the Republican fusion nominee, delivered a series of addresses in Manhattan.

Bannard continued to avoid personal attack in his speeches, but dwelt upon municipal issues, matters of finance, and the like.

"I do not stand for wholesale hysterical overturning," said Mr. Bannard; "the vacuum cleaner is more quiet and more thorough than the old time athletic broom. It cleans house without filling the air with dirt."

Hearst Takes Fling at Gaynor.

Mr. Hearst's speech was in characteristic vein and bristling with thrusts at Gaynor.

"As the object of the independent movement," he said, "has been not merely to provide a mayor but more to provide the mayor, whoever he may be, with honest, efficient, and progressive associates in office, I cannot see why Gaynor should fly into such a fury of passion every time the independent movement is mentioned. It cannot be that he prefers to be surounded with an administration of Tammany grafters."

State Senator McCarren's illness was perhaps the most vital feature of the day's politics here, although a ruling of the board of elections formally awarding to the Hearst supporters the title and party emblem of the Civic alliance was a cause for rejoicing in the independent ranks.

Ivins Again Scores Gaynor.

William M. Ivins issued a long statement during the evening, again attacking Gaynor and concluding with this statement:

"I have made a careful survey of every assembly district both in New York county and Kings county (Brooklyn), and I am satisfied there is absolutely no doubt about the election of the fusion city ticket and the defeat of the Tammany ticket in New York county."

COOK WILL PROVE M'KINLEY CLIMB?

Explorer Asks Scientists to Go After the Records He Left Behind.

CLAIMS HIS GUIDE LIED.

New York Extends Official Welcome to the Brooklyn Man After Long Wait.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Dr. Frederick Cook today branded as a lie the affidavit of Edward N. Barrill, the guide, who says Dr. Cook did not reach the summit of Mount McKinley, the feat which was doubted by many explorers and which was used as first argument that Cook did not reach the north pole.

Dr. Cook hinted that he would begin action to prosecute Barrill for perjury. He claims to have proof Barrill was given money for his testimony.

Dr. Cook later announced that to disprove Barrill's statements he had taken preliminary steps to organize an expedition to ascend Mount McKinley to procure the records which he says he left there after his ascent. He has requested Anthony Fiala, the arctic explorer, to head the expedition, and has asked Prof. H. C. Parker of Columbia university to accompany Fiala.

Telegrams were sent to both Fiala and Parker tonight and their answer is expected tomorrow.

Statement as Made by Cook.

Dr. Cook made the following statement tonight:

"Upon my return from Atlantic City today I conferred with a confidential agent whom I had sent to Montana to investigate stories which had reached me in Kansas City to the effect that strong inducements had been offered Edward N. Barrill, the guide who accompanied me to the summit of Mount McKinley in the summer of 1906. This confidential agent returned from Montana this morning, and for good reasons I do not care at the present time to make his name public.

"After thorough investigation there he reports to me that an offer of a considerable sum of money was made to Mr. Barrill on the condition that he prepare and sign an affidavit which would be calculated to discredit my claim that I succeeded in scaling the Alaskan peak. This offer, so my representative informs me, was made to Mr. Barrill in the presence of C. G. Bridgford, a reputable citizen of Hamilton, Mont., who is associated with Mr. Barrill in the real estate business.

"Barrill at that time, according to the statement of Mr. Bridgford to my representative, declined to make such an affidavit, and informed the men who had requested him to swear that I did not reach the top of Mount McKinley that to make such an affidavit he would have to 'commit perjury and sell his own soul.'

One Statement Against Another.

"Several days after this proposal was made to Mr. Barrill he, in company with Frederick Prinz, who was also a member of my Mount McKinley expedition, joined Walter P. Miller, the official photographer of that expedition, in Missoula, Mont., and accompanied him to Seattle and Tacoma. It was while on this trip, I am informed, that Barrill made the affidavit which was printed in New York for the first time yesterday.

"Since Barrill and myself were the only two members of the party to reach the top of Mount McKinley, it is now simply a question of my word against his statement. Within the next forty-eight hours, however, affidavits made by prominent citizens of Hamilton, Mont., will be made public, and will be to the effect that during the last three years Barrill has continually rehearsed the Mount McKinley story and has at all times insisted that we succeeded in reaching the summit of the mountain. No one has been found in Hamilton who can testify that at any time he has ever heard Barrill tell the story as it is related by his in his sworn affidavit.

Says Others Uphold Him.

"I have today received numerous telegrams from reputable citizens of Montana who have talked with Barrill and are willing to make affidavits as to his former version of the Mount McKinley trip.

"I have tonight forwarded a telegram to Anthony Fiala, asking him to head an expedition to Mount McKinley to bring back my records. Another telegram has been sent to Prof. Herschell C. Parker of Columbia university, who accompanied me in the early stages of my last Mount McKinley expedition, asking him to join Fiala on this expedition. I have the assurance that the necessary funds for the expedition will be forthcoming, and the expedition will be entirely under the supervision and direction of Mr. Fiala.

The preliminary arrangements for the trip will be made at once and the expedition will start as soon as the weather permits next year."

Dr. Cook today received the freedom of the city as conferred by the board of aldermen. He also was presented with a gold medal by the Arctic Club of America in recognition of the discovery of the pole.

Before the honor was bestowed, President McGowan of the board announced that "I deem it fair to Dr. Cook to say here that he wanted this action postponed until after all his proofs had been produced, but we declined because it was believed that the sentiment of the board was belief in Dr. Cook, and I believe the city of New York believes in him."

Seek a Speedy Settlement.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The University of Copenhagen today was requested by the National Geographic society to renounce its first claim to an examination of Dr. Cook's observations made during his search for the pole.

The request was made because of the failure of the society in conjunction with the American Geographical society and the American Museum of Natural History to have Dr. Ira Remsen, president of the National Academy of Sciences, immediately to name a committee of eminent American scientists to pass upon the validity of the evidence submitted by Dr. Cook and Commander Peary.

Dr. Remsen had indicated his willingness to act only after he had been requested to do so by both explorers and had secured authority by the council of the National Academy of Sciences at its meeting about Nov. 20. Up to the present time Dr. Cook has not acted upon the suggestion.

"Foremost Impostor of Age."

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—"I much regret that the student lecture committee has chosen to bring before an Ann Arbor audience a man who will go down in history as perhaps the foremost impostor of this age," writes Prof. William H. Hobbs, concerning Dr. Frederick Cook, in a statement to be published in the Michigan daily tomorrow.

Discussing Cook's career, Prof. Hobbs dismisses as impossible the explorer's claim of ascending Mount McKinley. The student lecture association has a $3,600 contract with Cook for a lecture next Wednesday evening.

STILL BELIEVE POLE CLAIM.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 15.—The affidavit of Edward N. Barrill is believed to have weakened the American explorer's position that he ascended the mountain to its apex. Public opinion, however, still favors his claim that he reached the north pole.

Peary Lauded by Roosevelt.

NAIROBI, Oct. 15.—Col. Roosevelt today sent a cablegram to Commander Peary at Portland Me., saying:

"I deeply appreciate your cable and congratulate you from my heart. All Americans, and, indeed, all civilized mankind, are your debtors. You performed one of the greatest feats of the ages."

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—Orville Wright had the honor of making his farewell flight in Germany before the kaiser near Potsdam this evening.

It was the first time his majesty had seen the flying machine in operation, and throughout Wright's dashing twenty-five minute flight, which was executed in spite of a wind blowing from twenty-five to thirty miles an hour, the kaiser gave vent to constant outbursts of enthusiasm and excitement. When the aeronaut alighted from the machine his majesty rushed up to him and wrung his hands.

It was only by the greatest good luck that Wright was able to fly for the kaiser's benefit, as the machine narrowly escaped destruction by fire yesterday. Wright said tonight:

"It was my turning and curving movements while at the height of 250 feet that seemed to interest the emperor most. After I came down he stood talking to me for nearly three-quarters of an hour and showed most astounding knowledge of the technical details of aeroplanes. I think I never was asked so many or such intelligent questions before.

"The kaiser even knew all about our patent infringement suits and floored me by picking the particular part of our machine on which the suits are based. It was long after dark before he satisfied his appetite for knowledge about the machine. As he was about to go he handed my sister Katharine a splendid, large autographed photograph of himself inscribed with today's date as a souvenir of the occasion."

In order to show the versatility of his machine Wright flew several times directly round and over the kaiser and once he flew so low that the kaiserin seemed to fear there was danger and observers noticed that she pulled the kaiser away. One of the imperial adjutants, who was commenting on the kaiser's keen interest in the flight, was heard to remark that the flying machine had an altogether different future as regards the German army after today's events.

Aeronaut Injured in Fall.

JUVISY, France, Oct. 15.—At the aviation exhibition today Aeronaut Richter fell with his machine Monitor from a height of fifty feet, suffering a broken thigh and the loss of an eye.

Mix Gets Bennett Trophy.

ZURICH, Oct. 15.—It is announced that the committee having in charge the recent balloon race for the Gordon Bennett trophy has definitely awarded the trophy to Edgar W. Mix, the American competitor, who landed in Russian Poland.

TRY FOR BALLOON HONORS.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15.—A. B. Lambert and S. L. von Phul left here late today in the balloon St. Louis No. 3 in an attempt to better the Lahm cup record of 721 miles established Wednesday by A. H. Forbes of New York and Max Fleischmann of Cincinnati. Lambert sailed as pilot and Von Phul as aid.

If the present trip is not successful another will be made with Von Phul as pilot and Lambert as aid.

Wilbur Wright Gives Surprises.

College Park, Md., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—There were several surprises in store for those who witnessed the experiments of Wilbur Wright with army officers here today. In addition to four successful instruction flights in which he was accompanied by one of the two officers who are being trained in the handling of the government's aeroplane, Mr. Wright shifted one of the front elevating planes.

This plane was fastened rigidly in the rear of the main planes at a point a little below the level of the upper of the two main planes. The object was to secure more steadiness to the machine, and the experiment produced splendid results.

The other surprise was a flight with Lieut. Humphreys when it had become so dark the machine could not be seen. The noise of the motor was all that marked its progress.

TOO WINDY FOR AIR FLIGHTS.

Unfavorable weather conditions yesterday caused another delay in the airship exhibitions at the Hawthorne racetrack. Glenn H. Curtiss and Capt. T. S. Baldwin spent most of the day at the course, and both were ready to fly any time the wind died down.

It didn't die down, however, and as darkness approached a disappointed crowd boarded trains, automobiles, and street cars for the city.

Both machines were ready for flight. Capt. Baldwin's dirigible, after being inflated with gas, was held down with ballast. Curtiss showed his biplane to the spectators. He may fly today.

FOUR NATIONS AT BIG BANQUET.

Official Representatives of Several Governments to Attend Association of Commerce Dinner.

Representatives of four nations will be guests of honor at this year's dinner of the Chicago Association of Commerce, to be held at the La Salle hotel next Friday evening.

International trade, especially that between the United States and the other countries of the western continent, will be discussed, making the fifth annual dinner of the association no less significant than that of last year, when the Taft-Bryan banquet was held.

The speakers will be Señor Francisco L. de la Barra, ambassador from Mexico; Gen. Carlos Garcia Velez, minister from Cuba; Senator R. Durand of Montreal, former speaker of the Canadian senate, and Huntington Wilson, assistant secretary of state at Washington.

ZELAYA DEFIES THE REBELS

President of Nicaragua Says the Country Is Loyal to Him.

ACCUSES GUATEMALAN CHIEF

Declares Points Captured by Juan Estrada Are Unimportant.

New York, Oct. 15.—President Zelaya of Nicaragua cabled tonight concerning the revolutionary movement as follows:

"Managua.—Gen. Juan Estrada, governor of the department of Zelaya, on the Atlantic coast, who has proclaimed himself president, was urged on by Estrada Cabrera and supported by Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, who compromised with those who left the Conservative party and thus betrayed the government.

"Gen. Juan Estrada holds in his power the Bluefields region from Cape Gracias and Rama to San Juan del Norte, none of which places are of great military importance.

Says Country Is Loyal.

"The country, indignant at the rebellion of Estrada, has made an enthusiastic manifestation of sympathy with the government and proclaimed its loyal support. The government is well prepared to resist the movement against it and has dispatched several regiments to the scene of action.

"Gen. Aurelio Estrada, who has done good service for his country and who is a brother of the insurgent leader, has issued a proclamation denouncing him as a traitor and offering his own services to the constitutional government. ZELAYA."

Estrada Cabrera, referred to by President Zelaya, is president of Guatemala.

REBELS CAPTURE PORTS.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Advices received today at the state department show that martial law has been declared in Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and that President Zelaya has decreed the Atlantic ports closed as ports of entry. It also is reported that the entire east coast of Nicaragua is in the possession of the revolutionists and that the revolt has extended to the western part of the country.

The closing of these Nicaraguan ports is proving an embarrassment to the steamship lines which have received goods for shipment there, and the state department has been asked as to what course should be pursued with respect to these shipments and also with respect to mails.

No Action by America.

The state department has referred the latter matter to the postmaster general for reply and with respect to the shipment of cargoes the department has made no response, but it is believed that freight landed at closed ports now in the hands of the revolutionists is liable to confiscation as smuggled goods should the Zelaya government subsequently secure possession of them.

The revolutionists now are in possession of Bluefields, Corinto, Greytown, Rivas, Cape Gracias, Rama, and San Juan del Norte. The exact number of the adherents of the revolutionary leader, Juan Estrada, is not known.

ARREST INDIANA MERCHANTS AS SEQUEL TO $100,000 FIRE.

Louis and Nathan Salinger of Goshen and South Bend Are Indicted on a Charge of Arson.

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Louis and Nathan Salinger of Salinger Bros.' general stores in Goshen and South Bend were arrested today. The men were indicted by the grand jury of the Elkhart Circuit court on a charge of arson.

The Economy store, which was to have been sold out in Goshen and which occupied three store rooms, was burned on the night of Oct. 1, the blaze resulting in a loss of nearly $100,000. The blocks belonged to Haines Egbert and Mary Schaefer. Egbert was insured for $12,000, but Mrs. Schaefer was insured for only $3,500. Two adjoining buildings owned by Haines Egbert and W. D. Platter were damaged.

The Salinger brothers had decided to confine their business to the South Bend store alone and had engaged a Chicago salvage company to sell out the stock. The fire occurred at the end of the second day of the sale about 7 o'clock in the evening. Thirty or forty insurance companies had policies on one or another of the buildings or stocks.

Paris Banker a Suicide.

PARIS, Oct. 15.—William Sternes, a Parisian banker, committed suicide today near Lyons. He suffered from neurasthenia. According to the Petite Parisian he was connected with the Franco-American bank.

EUROPEAN CITIES SEE NEW RIOTING

Mobs Attack Spanish Consulates as Result of Execution of Ferrer.

WILD SCENES IN CORTES.

Bomb Outrage in Barcelona Only Hostile Incident in the Country.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Practically all of the continental capitals today saw revivals of the rioting which has been done to show sympathy for Prof. Ferrer, the Spanish leader who recently was executed in Barcelona after being convicted of inciting riot.

The disorders in Spain itself, however, were confined to violent scenes at the opening of the cortes, according to the reports which escaped the rigid censorship, and a bomb explosion in Barcelona, which wounded four men.

Italy was the scene of the greatest of the troubles of the day. At Pisa a great mob attempted to burn the cathedral and damage the famous Leaning Tower. They were beaten back by the police after burning one of the doors of the cathedral. At Florence fourteen soldiers were wounded while driving back a mob which attacked the palace of the archbishop, and in Rome the general strike continued unabated due to the urging of the Ferrer sympathizers. Three thousand strikers engaged in a fight with the police in Naples and many were wounded.

The French rioting centered in Toulon, where a mob broke into the cathedral and the police were forced to charge several times before dispersing them. All of the Spanish consulates in Portugal are under guard because of the attacks made on several of them.

Brisk Skirmish in Paris.

A meeting of protest was held in Paris this evening, after which the manifestants, instead of marching towards the Spanish embassy as the police anticipated, started for the Sacred Heart cathedral, which crowns Montmartre heights. A division of police with a strong contingent of police dogs succeeded in reaching the cathedral first and drove the mob down the stairways leading from the heights after some fighting.

A demonstration in Geneva tonight culminated in serious rioting, during which the mob overpowered the police and wrecked the offices of the newspaper La Tribune. Many persons were injured.

The Democratic Union, which is an independent radical organization in Berlin founded by the late Dr. Theodore Barth, held a big indignation meeting today as a result of the execution of Ferrer and telegraphed its sympathy to Ferrer's daughter.

The Socialists have called three meetings in Berlin for Sunday, and at Frankfort also there will be a gathering of Socialists. The newspapers of all shades of opinion are discussing the Ferrer case, most of them in words of condemnation.

The storm has risen to such heights in Rome that the pope granted no audiences today. He was not allowed to walk in the vatican gardens, the officials fearing an attack would be made. Assaults and abuse of clergymen on the streets are frequent in Rome.

Bitter Fight in Naples.

All the workmen of Naples, except the employés of the street railway companies, participated today in the general strike. Three thousand of the strikers held a meeting and afterwards paraded through the city. During the march they attacked a street car, but the police charged and dispersed them. A few of the men were wounded.

Later the strikers rallied and reached the monument erected to the memory of the martyrs of the Parthenopean republic of 1799, where fiery speeches were delivered. The strikers passed the monument bareheaded and went to the municipality building, with the intention of forcing the mayor to lower the flag to half mast. Again, however, the police charged and dispersed the procession.

A dispatch from Florence says that the rioters, driven back from their attack on the archbishop's palace, erected a barricade of wire netting across the street. Into this netting the horses galloped, many of them being thrown with their riders. Fourteen of the soldiers were wounded, four seriously.

Five ringleaders of Wednesday's rioting in Paris were sentenced to imprisonment for periods varying from two to six months.

Spain Is Comparatively Quiet.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

MADRID, Oct. 15.—A bomb was exploded early today in the street fronting the bishop's palace in Barcelona. Flying pieces of the metal seriously injured three policemen and a citizen.

The opening of the cortes here was a noisy event, and at one time it seemed as if a fight between the rival deputies was inevitable, but hostilities did not materialize. There was much excitement while the deputies were assembling, and everybody prepared for trouble.

When the row was at its height a section of the Conservative deputies rushed towards the Republicans with violent gestures. A clash was prevented only by the ushers and some of the calmer representatives throwing themselves between the rivals. The hubbub then slowly subsided.

Majority Cheers the King.

Señor Maura read the decree and then the customary cheers for the king, country, and army were invited. A great majority responded heartily, but some others only shouted "long live Spain." Amid a variety of republican cries the most noteworthy was, "Yes, long live Spain, but Spain with honor."

The Heraldo today declares that the present government has caused the world to point the finger of shame at Spain and exhorts liberals of all shades of opinion to rise "against a government which treats as anarchists those who do not kneel before the clerical spectre."

The Universo Catholic says that it is not surprised at the Ferrer manifestation, which it considers an indication that "the anarchistic and Masonic forces are inspiring a rebellion against all idea of government and justice." The paper denounces certain Spanish newspapers which it says are trying to provoke disorders by reprinting accounts of what has happened abroad.

The Imparcial today says that the country is on the verge of a precipice and holds "Premier Maura responsible for the present situation," adding:

"The patience of the country has reached an end. The protestations abroad prove that there is a common patrimony of liberty and democracy."

Cuban Students in Riots.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—The students of the university and the institute today made a joint demonstration against the action of the Spanish government in executing Ferrer. Several hundred of them paraded with a black flag and banner bearing the portraits of the king and queen of Spain inverted. There were many anarchistic cries and insulting epithets directed against the king and queen.

The students intended to attack the Spanish legation, but the police prevented them. Mounted police flanked the paraders throughout their march, in order to prevent violence.

Bomb Damages Spanish Consulate.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 15.—Five thousand workmen held a demonstration today during which violent speeches were made against the execution of Ferrer and a Spanish flag was burned. A Socialist demonstration has been arranged for Sunday. A bomb was exploded today at the Spanish consulate in Rosario and the consulate building was damaged.

NEW YORKERS TO PROTEST.

New York, Oct. 15.—A meeting to denounce the execution of Francisco Ferrer will be held in Carnegie hall on Tuesday night next under the auspices of the international labor and conference.

Women Who Plan a Convict Farm.

MRS. MARY IDE

MRS. CLARA A. LUCAS

By keeping criminals at work in agricultural pursuits, Mrs. Mary Ide of 4153 Kenmore avenue declared the state can effect their physical, mental, and moral regeneration. She has studied the penal farm systems in Germany, Denmark, and several American states.

Another Chicago woman, Mrs. Clara A. Lucas of 4009 Kenmore avenue agrees with Mrs. Ide's theories, and has offered 4,000 acres of Colorado farm land in Cheyenne county to be used as a farm for Illinois criminals. It is planned to seek state legislation to permit the execution of the plan.

Mrs. Lucas and her husband, Dr. David Ellsworth Lucas, were at the head of one of the relief corps sent to care for the Galveston flood sufferers.

DISTRUST CRAZES A SAVANT

Swedish Professor in Asylum; Sequel to Bomb Outrages.

DEADLY MESSAGES BY MAIL.

Prof. Ekenberg Becomes Insane from Brooding Over Suspicion.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—As a sequel to recent bomb outrages in Sweden, Prof. Martin Ekenberg, doctor of philosophy and a well known Swedish scientist, has lost his reason and today was taken to an asylum.

The professor's mental condition is attributed to his knowledge that he was suspected of complicity in if not of being the author of the crimes.

Bombs Sent Through Mails.

On Oct. 9 Jon Hammer, director of the Swedish Export association, received in his mail a bomb that in exploding tore away the thumb and forefinger of his right hand, while flying bits of metal cut gashes in his face.

On the same day a similar instrument of death was mailed to John Sjoeholm, a manufacturer of Gothenburg. The nature of the latter package was suspected and the intended victim escaped.

It was charged that the crimes were committed by a secret committee of the Young Socialist party, which had sentenced to death certain prominent anti-socialists.

Prof. Ekenberg, who is a resident of this city, recently returned from Stockholm, and it was not long after the outrages that rumors connecting his name with the affair reached his ears.

Denies Charge by Telegraph.

Sjoeholm was Ekenberg's personal friend, and to him he telegraphed emphatically denying any connection with the Young Socialists.

Nevertheless the fact that he had been suspected so preyed upon Ekenberg's mind that last night he became violently insane.

KING OF GREECE MAY QUIT THRONE

Sensational Acts by Monarch and Legislative Statesmen Indicate Crisis.

SONS RESIGN FROM ARMY.

Situation Believed to Be Incompatible with George's Retention of Place.

ATHENS, Oct. 15.—It is not at all improbable that King George may soon end his reign by stepping from the throne.

The climax to recent events in Greece's career came today in sensational acts by the monarch and the legislative statesmen, which may result eventually in abdication.

Premier Mavromichalis, having announced the desire of the royal princes to have the bills relating to their services in the army adopted, the chamber of deputies today without discussion voted the bills abolishing the right of the crown prince to hold the position of commander-in-chief and of the other princes to hold military commands.

Another Step in Revolution.

The adoption of the military reform bills veils another step in the military revolution, which yet may involve the abdication of King George.

It is understood that his majesty feels acutely his abandonment by the great powers in the matter of Greece's aspirations for the annexation of Crete and has seriously considered the possibility of being compelled to abdicate as an outcome of the disappointment of his people.

Last night the temper of the deputies appeared to be in favor of rejecting the military bills, but the members of the Officers' league warned the chamber of the dangers which would result from such rejection, and the bills passed the first reading.

Tells His Sons to Resign.

Today King George, who has been living in retirement at Tatoi since the recent militia movement, on being informed of the possibility of another revolutionary move, drove in an automobile to the capital and instructed his three sons formally to resign their army commissions.

This done King George summoned Premier Mavromichalis to the palace and informed him that he had persuaded his sons to resign because he was reluctant to permit the chamber of deputies to suffer at the hands of the military revolutionists for his loyalty to the crown.

The chamber of deputies met at 5 o'clock this afternoon. A painful silence followed the premier's announcement of the decision of the princes and thirty loyalist members arose and quitted the house. The chamber then voted the bills.

Officers' League Dominates.

King George's unexpected act of self-renunciation and the fact that the chamber now is completely dominated by the officers' league is regarded in many quarters as being incompatible with his majesty's dignity and his retention of the throne.

Crown Prince Constantine held the position of commander-in-chief of the Grecian army; Prince Andrew was a captain of the Grecian cavalry, and Prince Christopher a sub-lieutenant in the infantry.

MAN BEHIND ACTRESS' WISH TO QUIT STAGE FOR RELIGION.

German Woman Seeks Divorce So She May Marry Ex-Lieutenant of Salvation Army.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The case of the actress Frau Hedwig Wangel, who recently retired from the stage in order to devote herself to religious work among the poor, has entered a new phase.

Frau Wangel, who is living in an obscure village near Dresden, wrote to her parents expressing a desire to obtain a divorce from her husband, Stabernack, the musician, in order that she might marry Karl Hess, a former lieutenant in the Salvation Army. Her father applied to the police for assistance in recovering the care of his daughter, and, accompanied by an officer, has gone to his daughter's residence for the purpose of bringing her back to Berlin by force, if necessary.

Hess, who is a photographer by profession, entered the Salvation army in 1907, but later was dismissed, owing to his conduct in love affairs. He subsequently was reinstated, but now has been dismissed again for refusing to sever his acquaintance with Frau Wangel.

A Practical Theory

Dr. A. Reed's theory was to make a shoe that would relieve the jar of the human system and eliminate fatigue, so common in these days of hard pavements. After several experiments he found that a soft pliable cushion built in the sole of the shoe was the revelation of comfort to which he had aimed.

This cushion protects the feet inasmuch as it allows the curves of the feet to sink into the cushions, distributing the weight of the body to equal parts of the feet. The cushion is a non-conductor of cold and protects the feet from corns, bunions, callouses, etc.

Only the wearer can realize the comfort they contain.

These shoes are made in all the up-to-date styles in both Men's and Women's.

CIVIC CONGRESS PLANS NEW WORK

National Meeting in New York Will Seek to Co-ordinate Activities.

MAY GET MEN 'HIGHER UP'

Former Employes of Sugar Trust Decide to Turn State's Evidence in Fraud Case.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE.
New York, Oct. 15.

A call was issued today by the governors of the American Civic alliance, inviting all the civic and other educational organizations in every part of the United States to send their representatives to a national civic congress to be held in New York City, Dec. 6 to 11. The congress is called to consider and devise a means for coördinating civic activities throughout the country, and also to consider and devise more effective methods for the study and solution of political problems. The gathering is to be nonpartisan and open to all organizations interested in public welfare.

Civic Congress to Consider Ways and Means.

Henry Clews, the New York banker, is chairman of the board of governors of the alliance, and the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill of this city is secretary. Interested in the movement are prominent men throughout the country in all walks of life.

Word has been received here from Pittsburg that the Rev. Bayard Craig has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Lenox Avenue Union Church of the Disciples of Christ of this city. Dr. Craig was for six years chancellor of Drake university at Des Moines, Ia.

It came out at the federal building today that several former employés of the sugar trust who were indicted for conspiracy to defraud the government through the false weighing of sugar on the Havemyer & Elder piers in Brooklyn have decided to turn state's evidence and as a result the government hopes to fasten responsibility for these frauds which have cost the trust itself upward of $2,000,000 to date on one or more of the high officials of the corporation.

Will Turn State's Evidence in Sugar Case.

The federal grand jury took the case up again today with former Special Treasury Agent Brazinsky, who took part in the raid when the fraudulent scales were seized. District Attorney Wise nor any other federal official concerned in the matter would discuss it, but it is known the government long has been looking for just the sort of testimony it now seems likely to obtain. The evidence shows that some one "higher up" must have had knowledge of what was going on.

For fifty-two years Louis Nicolovlan had been cashier and office manager for Scheffer, Schramm & Vogel, bankers and commission merchants, 470 Broome street, and in that time he had lost fourteen days. On Tuesday the tall, straight, black haired old man did not appear at his desk. It was almost preposterous to think of him, though he was 97 years old, as sick, yet no word came from him.

Cashier for One Firm 52 Years; Quits.

Today, after three days' absence, the old man walked into the private office of Carl Scheffer, senior member of the firm, and remained there a long time. When he came out he walked to his old desk and, weeping, bade it a silent farewell. Then he went out. In the last few days his ninety-seven years had at last forced him to recognize their claim. He had voluntarily retired. For the rest of his life he is to get a pension of half his salary.

Since Howard F. Conger, son of Col. J. W. Conger, one of the wealthiest residents of Cleveland, boarded a Metropolitan line steamer in Boston last Monday night nothing has been seen of him. When the steamer reached New York Tuesday he did not leave the boat, and when the door of his stateroom was unlocked his suitcase was found inside and the berth apparently had not been occupied.

Mystery in Disappearance of Passenger.

The steamboat company notified his family in Cleveland and his brother, Frank Conger, came here and today asked the police of New York and Boston to help him find the missing man. Conger was 31 years old and unmarried. He came here from Cleveland two years ago and engaged in the automobile supply business. His family fears that he fell overboard during the trip from Boston to New York and was drowned.

Hans Steiner, the Metropolitan opera house chorus master, who has been held at Ellis island while a special board of inquiry investigated charges made against him, was released today and allowed to come to New York. Karl Neininger, a chorus man who was held with Steiner, was ordered deported to Germany.

Chorus Master Is Released.

FINALE IN CIGARET BRIBERY; MONEY GIVEN TO CHARITY.

Closing Scene Enacted in Attempt to Influence Member of Indiana Legislature in 1905 to Vote Against Bill.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The closing scene in the attempt of O. A. Baker, agent of the American Tobacco company, to bride Representative Ananias Baker to vote against the anti-cigaret bill was enacted in the Criminal court today, when Prosecutor Elliott R. Hooton opened a sealed envelope containing the five $20 bills that Oscar A. Baker is alleged to have sent to Representative Ananias Baker in 1905, and asked that a court record be made of the fact that he had turned the $100 over to the Home for Aged and Friendless Women.

Along with the bills a bit of evidence was disclosed which might have made O. A. Baker's conviction certain had Ananias Baker lived to testify against him. It was a typewritten note received by Ananias Baker while the latter was a state representative in 1905. Below the typewritten note the following was written with a lead pencil:

"Have no fear, Baker. I never violate a confidence."

FEAR TO REGISTER ON FRIDAY.

As a Consequence of Superstitious Fear Few Applicants Appear in Western Land Drawings.

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 15.—The superstitious fear of Friday again kept away applicants in the opening of the Cheyenne river and Standing Rock reservations, and the day scored the lowest total since the opening, at all points. The registration is more than half done now, and indications are that it will fall far below the conservative estimate of 100,000 made at the opening. More than 80,000 will have registered at Aberdeen, but the outside points have failed to come up to expectations.

for your city administration. But look at your public buildings!

You have not forgotten the need of a commercial port. But look at your harbor!

You have had ideas as to the beautification of the city. Is Chicago beautiful?

How Cure Can Be Done.

I know there are excuses. There is a French proverb, which, freely translated, says: "To understand all is to forgive all."

But things have been done in and by Chicago which are beyond the pale of forgiveness.

I am not referring to the laxity which for years disgraced your city administration, to the granting of franchises and contracts from which the people, with Ulyssian efforts, are freeing themselves. I am not referring to the evil practices which prevail in your police force. I am not referring to your corrupt politics.

These are things which a better moral tone in the community has dealt with and may be depended upon to handle.

But to do the many things which are so huge as almost to cause one to catch his breath, not only should the moral tone be developed but unity of purpose is essential.

How can this be obtained?

First, by education along sane and similar lines.

Second, by the general adoption of a public opinion.

Third, by the general adoption of a plan contemplating the construction of a proper foundation and then the erection of the beautiful edifice which should be Chicago.

It may be objected that there has been education. I am not unaware of this fact. All of it is advantageous. It means much for the present and the future. But what I object to is the lack of coördination, the failure to move along recognized lines, all leading to the common center of the public good.

Education to Unite Opinion.

I am told there is a public opinion. This I emphatically deny. There are public opinions. The views of one organization conflict with those of another and arouse discussion and bitterness. The views of one individual of influence clash with those of another. Inevitable, it may be suggested. But Chicago has demonstrated upon occasions that it is capable of uniting practically all divergent elements into a battering ram which has brought results.

Proper education will develop a united public opinion and a united public opinion will cause the adoption of a comprehensive plan for the adequate and satisfactory development of the city.

So let Chicago get together. Let the millionaire citizens get in touch with the poorer citizens. Let the poorer citizens vie with the millionaires in working for the interests of all.

The time is ripe for action. Upon the horizon looms the decision of all the voters as to the disposition that shall be made of the proposed bond issue.

That bond issue should serve as the basis for the Better Chicago.

I am informed it is the purpose of the mayor to appoint in a few days a committee of one hundred citizens, representing the Commercial club, various organizations, and men who are of the people, for the purpose of determining the best means to expend the proceeds of the bond issue.

Projects Which Need Money.

This committee is none too large. It should be the executive branch of an organization comprising all the people of Chicago.

It should consider the things to be done not only with a view to meeting pressing needs but it should so arrange its recommendations as to insure a first step in the accomplishment of the great work necessary to make Chicago what it ought to be.

It must distribute the bond money among the following projects so as to get the best results:

New city hall, upon which $1,000,000 has been spent and which will require between $5,500,000 and $6,000,000 to complete.

Southwest land and water tunnel and pumping station at Roseland, which will cost $2,100,000, of which $900,000 has been appropriated.

Bridges of the center pier types which are at Lake, Fuller, and Indiana streets and which must be removed and span bridges constructed and erection of new span bridges in place of those at Washington and Orleans street, total cost about $4,000,000.

Central police station extension so as to provide accommodations for Municipal court and health department, cost $1,800,000.

Fire department reorganization, including additional houses and equipment, fireboats, etc., cost $2,850,000.

Police department stations, cost $1,500,000.

New water system, cost between $7,500,000 and $12,000,000.

New sewerage system, in downtown district, cost $1,000,000.

Harbor development, ultimate cost of which will be $10,000,000.

Subway construction, cost estimated from $60,000,000 to $80,000,000.

Things Which Must Be Done.

It will be necessary also to consider:

Removal of elevated roads around the loop district.

Extension of sanitary canal system, which is designed to take care of a population of only 4,000,000.

Electrification of railroads and suppression of smoke nuisance.

Construction of new boulevards.

Extension of park system.

Consolidation of all governing bodies in the city, which would result from a new charter.

The above are the mountain peaks of the city's needs. Colossal as they are in the aggregate, in detail they are comparatively easy of prompt and satisfactory solution.

I cannot close this series of articles without expressing admiration for the numerous evidences of civic spirit which abound here. It is one of the finest things about Chicago.

But the mere presence of civic spirit is not enough.

It must be active.

PELLAGRA QUEST NOW UNDER WAY

SEEKING CORN AS CAUSE.

Possible Commercial Damage Becomes One Important Phase of Inquiry.

Illinois starts in to find out what and why is pellagra. Gov. Deneen announced a high grade commission last night to start early next week the work of following the trail of the disease which has stirred up the state institution authorities and has badly scared the Illinois corn growers.

The "golden corn" has been charged with responsibility for pellagra. This is the commision as given out at Springfield:

Dr. Frank Billings, president state board of charities, Chicago.

Dr. George W. Webster, president state board of health, Chicago.

Dr. Howard T. Ricketts, University of Chicago.

Dr. Oliver S. Ormsby, Chicago.

Dr. H. Douglas Singer, Kankakee.

Dr. Harry Sands Grindley, University of Illinois.

Dr. W. J. McNeal, University of Illinois.

Dr. Webster Discusses Plan.

Dr. George W. Webster, who is the head of the Illinois state board of health and a member of the investigating commission, said last night that the work is of far reaching importance.

"The state of Illinois must get at the true situation immediately," said Dr. Webster, "and it is safe to say that this investigation will be pushed through as rapidly as possible.

"In the first place pellagra has taken hold of the state institutions, notably at the general hospital for the insane at Bartonville, and at Kankakee and Elgin. It is reported from several other sections in the state not connected whatever with state institutions.

"It is due to the people of the state generally, to the inmates of the state institutions and to their friends and relatives that prompt steps be taken by the state to ascertain the cause of the disease and to put a stop to it.

Of Commercial Importance.

"In the second place, it is of important commercial consequence to the great corn growing state of Illinois to ascertain the truth of the charge that spoiled corn is responsible in the first instance for the spread of pellagra. That charge has been made and will be thoroughly investigated by the commission. In my judgment, the commercial aspect of the question is of the utmost importance to the state."

The commission named by the governor is the first to seek the definite reason for the spread of pellagra, which heretofore seems to have been such a rarity as to have baffled the Illinois authorities when it was first noted in the Bartonville hospital.

Health Board Tests Ready.

The state health authorities, in connection with the state board of charities, has made a preliminary examination of conditions at Bartonville and bacteriologists are now "testing out" what was discovered on the first visit to the institution. The results of these tests will be in readiness for the new commission when it meets some time next week for the purpose of organizing and planning the course of the investigation.

GOSSIP OF DETROIT WOMEN GIVES CLEW IN MURDER CASE.

One Told "Secret" at Party and Dr. George A. Fritch Was Rearrested When Chauffeur Confessed.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Women's gossip is reponsible for a new development in the Mabelle Millman murder mystery. It was at a tea party in Michigan avenue a woman said:

"I know a woman who could tell a whole lot about Dr. Fritch if she wanted to."

She answered under a pledge of darkest secrecy that this woman was Mrs. Anthony Doemer of 310 Michigan avenue.

Some one sent an anonymous letter to Sheriff Gaston and some one else sent one to Capt. McDonnell of the police, and William Jansen, with an eye to the $1,000 reward, gave Prosecutor Van Zile direct hints. All this caused the reassembling of a special grand jury.

Mrs. Doemer was questioned and gave information that led to the rearrest of Dr. George A. Fritch and to the detention of his chauffeur, "Chris" Leach. When the chauffeur got into a cell he broke down and told about carrying three bags of something to the river near Ecorse and throwing them in.

It was near Ecorse that the dismembered parts of Miss Millman's body were found.

AUTO KILLS TWO; HURTS SEVEN.

Bride and Cigaret Manufacturer Dead in California as Result of Accident.

AUTO FATALITIES OF YEAR.....221

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 15.—Mrs. H. C. Edwards, wife of an Oakland dentist, and C. N. Anargyros, an Oakland cigaret manufacturer were killed and seven others injured in an automobile accident in a suburb of Oakland early today. The car skidded on a curve and struck the curb. It then struck a hydrant and turned turtle. Mrs. Edwards was a bride of six weeks.

Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Mathew Sergo was found guilty last night by a jury in Judge Scanlan's court of causing the death of John Jovanovics, a verdict of manslaughter being returned. Jovanovics was killed at the Dolese & Shepard stone quarry.

Heiress, Though 65, Bound to Get a Husband.

LAST MATE TOO MUCH WED.

But Miss Suffern Has Found Another in "My Simon."

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Miss Jeanette Suffern, the eccentric heiress of Suffern, N. Y., and who is really Mrs. Hiscock until she gets a formal annulment, said today that she would find a satisfactory husband if she has to keep on marrying and divorcing candidates until 80 years old. She is 65 years old now.

"You can say, too," Miss Suffern added, "that I will not enlist the services of a matchmaker again. They don't know their business, and besides, they're too expensive."

Matchmaker Sues for Fee.

This statement, Miss Suffern admitted, applied particularly to David Tobin, manager of Van Horn's livery stable at Ridgewood, N. J., who started suit against her in the Ridgewood district court today, claiming she agreed to give him $250 if he furnished her with "A man who would marry her."

"I introduced Miss Suffern to 'Bob' Hiscock, a hostler at my stable," explained Mr. Tobin. "A few hours after that she was married to Hiscock by Justice of the Peace Keyes at Paterson. That was on Sept. 23. Hiscock, it transpired, already had a wife and has disappeared, but that isn't my fault. I carried out my contract when I got her a man who would marry her."

"My Simon" Her Latest Choice.

"Tobin didn't get me a husband," Miss Suffern said when seen at Paterson, where she is staying with friends. "Hiscock was already married, and my lawyer says I am just as free as I ever was and can marry my Simon."

Miss Suffern explained that "my Simon" was her latest prospective husband, who also is a hostler. Thursday night she and "my Simon" went to Justice Keyes to be married. He refused to tie the knot, saying he had married her once and believed she would have to get an annulment.

New Financial Plan for Missions.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—The closing session of the centennial convention of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions was held this evening. The convention has marked the beginning of a new financial plan by which it is hoped to place the board and its mission work beyond the need of funds. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Samuel B. Capen, LL. D.
Vice president—Henry C. King, D. D.
Foreign department—James L. Barton, D. D., secretary; Enoch F. Bell, assistant secretary.
District secretaries—Middle, Charles C. Creegan, New York; interior, A. N. Hitchcock, Chicago; Pacific coast, H. M. Teaney, Berkeley, Cal.

MORRISON REFUSED A PENSION.

Former Illinois Congressman Who Died Recently Had $2,700 to His Account at Washington.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—On the books of the pension office is the sum of $2,700 which was due Col. William R. ("Horizontal Bill") Morrison, a former congressman, of Waterloo, Ill., at the time of his death recently. It represents a Mexican war pension which had accrued for twenty-two years but which the colonel steadfastly had refused to draw.

It appears, according to Henry C. Bell of Illinois, who formerly was deputy commissioner of pensions, that soon after the passage of the Mexican war pension act in 1887, Gen. John C. Black, then commissioner of pensions, mailed Col. Morrison a certificate of a pension of $10 a month as a complimentary act.

Mr. Morrison replied that he did not need the pension, and declined to draw it. The pension, however, remained in effect, and in 1901 amounted to $1,500. Mr. Morrison, having his attention again called to it, asked if it could be paid to his wife in case she survived him. He was given an affirmative answer, and the pension continued to accrue. Col. Morrison, however, survived his wife.

SOCIALISM SEEN AS LABOR'S PERIL

Bolters from Ohio Meeting Are Given Support of the National Body.

BIG FIGHT IS IN SIGHT.

Faction Refuses to Give Up Charter Which the Larger League Revoked.

Toledo, O., Oct. 15.—That the split in the Ohio Federation of Labor is part of a Socialist movement to injure the American Federation of Labor is the declaration of a resolution adopted tonight by the bolters' faction of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

The resolution intimates that Max Hayes of Cleveland, who was one of the leaders of the fight to seat electrical workers and central labor union delegates in opposition to the wishes of the national council, desires to head an opposition organization of union labor.

The "bolters'" convention elected a full set of officers and a delegate to the American Federation convention, which meets at Toronto on Nov. 8, as did also the old state federation, which was captured yesterday by the "insurgents." The latter today refused to give up the charter which was revoked by the national council.

Resolutions of the "Bolters."

The resolution adopted by the federation as now recognized by the national council is directed to "all trade unionists in the state of Ohio," and reads:

"The division which took place in the Ohio State Federation of Labor is primarily caused by the hostility of the Socialists toward the American Federation of Labor. By every process they have conspired to cripple and make ineffective the efforts of the American Federation of Labor, because the federation has steadfastly refused to adopt their policies. The matter of seating the seceding electrical workers afforded these economic enthusiasts an opportunity to ridicule and belittle the federation, which they did in approved fashion.

Claim Hayes Threatened Revolt.

"Max Hayes, the chief Socialist, in his denunciation of the officials of the American Federation of Labor, depicted them as czars and autocrats. Over Hayes' own signature there has appeared in the press a threat that a new national body was to be formed to further antagonize the American Federation of Labor. Since the appearance of that article it is rumored that he is desirous of heading such a movement as its chief executive officer.

"This is one of the numerous attempts made in recent years to lay the foundation for an organization with which it is proposed to wage warfare against the American Federation of Labor. In addition it is also proposed to insist that the men of labor must accept the political creed of those who have proved to be apostles of Socialism."

JURY IN 16 MINUTES CLEARS WOMAN OF ATTEMPT TO SLAY.

Mrs. Leona B. Mason of South Bend Quickly Acquitted in Case Involving Supreme President of Owls.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Mrs. Leona B. Mason today was found not guilty of attempting to murder John W. Talbot, supreme president of the Order of Owls, last March. The jury was ready to report in sixteen minutes.

In anticipation of a quick verdict the crowd which packed the courtroom during the closing arguments refused to leave and every inch of space was occupied when the jury announced that it had agreed upon a verdict.

The defendant and her sisters smiled when they heard the verdict, but there was no demonstration either by them or by the spectators.

Opinion is general that the story told by Mrs. Mason on the stand, in which she charged Talbot with persecution for six years, won the sympathy of the jury. The defense was emotional insanity.

Charles A. Davey in closing for the defense delivered a two hour arraignment of Talbot and his associates. He asked the jury for an unqualified acquittal on the first ballot, declaring that by so doing it would place the stamp of disapproval on such men as he asserted Talbot to be.

F. A. HEINZE WINS A VICTORY.

Board of Directors Elected at Annual Meeting of Davis-Daly Copper Company.

Portland, Me., Oct. 15.—President F. Augustus Heinze of the Davis-Daly Copper company won a complete victory over the opposition element in the company today at the annual meeting. The meeting had been held up nearly two weeks by a temporary injunction, but the order was lifted today.

The board of directors elected was as follows: For three years, F. Augustus Heinze; for two years, H. Mason Rayborg and George Baglin; and for one year, Maurice Levy and W. C. Shaw, all of New York.

The meeting adopted resolutions voting confidence in the present management.

Buy the Beans They Like Best

The folks at your table are the ones to judge what beans should be set before them.

Give them a chance to vote. If you are serving home-baked beans, alternate once with Van Camp's.

The home beans will be broken and mushy, because of dry heat. Van Camp's will be nutty, mealy and whole.

The home-baked beans will ferment and form gas, because they haven't had half heat enough.

Van Camp's will digest, because, in our steam ovens, every bean has for hours been subjected to 245 degrees.

Let your people choose. And be glad of their choice. For think what it means to have a dozen meals in the house—beans that are already baked.

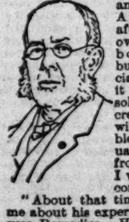
TWO MEN RID OF CRUEL ECZEMA

Nephew Doctored for Fifteen Years but Got No Benefit—Finally Tried Cuticura Remedies and was Permanently Cured—Uncle Similarly Cured Five Years Ago.

ONE CURE BY CUTICURA LEADS TO ANOTHER

"About five years ago I was burned in an explosion of natural gas. The head and face, also my hands and arms, were burned. About three weeks after, eczema set in over the parts of my body which were burned and my physician undertook to cure it by administering a solution of arsenic, increasing the doses, but without any perceptible benefit. I was gradually losing strength from the suffering and I was in a very serious condition.



"About that time my nephew told me about his experience with the Cuticura Remedies. He had eczema so severely that the blood ran down into his shoes. He suffered with the eczema for many years and had tried everything the physicians could prescribe. After doctoring for fifteen years, in which time he found no relief, he was finally induced to try the Cuticura Remedies, and they cured him permanently in four months.

"You can easily believe that I made haste to try them on his recommendation. I commenced using the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I was cured in less than two months so perfectly that I have not even had a symptom of the disease since, although it is over five years since the trouble began. I give this testimonial voluntarily, without solicitation or hope of reward, except that some one seeing it may be relieved from suffering as I was. G. T. Hamilton, Indiana, Pa., Dec. 15 and 24, 1908."

For thirty years Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have afforded speedy relief to tens of thousands of skin-tortured and disfigured sufferers from eczemas, rashes, itchings, irritations and chafings, from infancy to age, bringing comfort and peace, to distracted households when all else failed.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Potter Drug and Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. Mailed Free, 32-page book on treatment and cure of torturing, disfiguring skin diseases.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—T pendent steelmakers got together at t dorf tonight to do honor to Elbert H chairman of the board of director United States Steel corporation. Bea Independents and Mr. Gary there we ent at the dinner all the major officer steel corporation and the presidents o of the greatest railroads in the United

Among them they represented 57 p according to Mr. Gary's figures, of all t producers of the United States, figurin on the scale of the annual outputs plants and somewhat more than hal steel and iron makers of the world. stood for about 21,500,000 tons of iron and as much more of steel.

The dinner was a return compliment the dinners which Mr. Gary has given dependents from time to time since t days of the panic. That Mr. Gary worked was mighty plain tonight. T pendents gave him a gold vase whic about eighteen inches high and fille speak, with all sorts of good wishes, at length in the addresses.

Gary Lauded by Schwab.

Charles M. Schwab was toastmast Schwab, who is president of the Be Steel corporation, when he got up to the vase to Mr. Gary, had this to sa what the latter has done for the i dustry:

"The broad principles that you t into this business were new to all of had been trained in a different school effect was marvelous, their success tioned. It was a renaissance and a r of things in this business that was sary and invigorating.

"Mr. Gary, we feel that your pos the steel industry is unique. This is time in the history of the industry w great heads of all the big concerns United States and Canada have gath do honor to a man who has introduce and successful principle into our g dustry."

Morgan in Short Speech.

One of the pleasant features of the was a short speech by J. Pierpont M He was one of the few after dinner s Mr. Morgan has ever made.

"Gentlemen, I wish it were in my p say all that I would like to say on th sion," Mr. Morgan said. "What I say at another time would be pretty but tonight I am much overcome by I have heard said, for Mr. Gary and been working together now for ten ye in a way perhaps none of you appreciat much it means to me. I feel as if we w just together. It is impossible for me more, and I must ask you to accept r preciation of how deeply I feel for th evidence of your sentiments towards night."

Welcoming Speech by Clark.

Welcoming Mr. Gary as the guest of t dependent steel men, E. A. S. Clark sa

"Mr. Gary: We who have had the ho having you and some of your friends guests this evening wish to add a few to those already spoken for in app tion of the fairness and of the friendl helpful attitude that you have show ward us during the two trying year dustry.

"It is no small compensation for the eties and trials of that period to fee perhaps largely owing to them we h closer, better acquaintance with yourse with each other and to know that th your efforts the iron and steel manuf ers of this country stand on a higher, l er, and fairer basis of business relatio This sentiment is subscribed to by fir of the leading steel concerns of this co with all sincerity and truth."

Reply Made by Gary.

Mr. Gary replied, saying:

"This reception is a wonderful d stration of personal friendly regard. I respects it is without precedent. Wh remembered there are included in thos ent representatives of the producers and steel aggregating annually 21 tons of the former and 22,000,000 tons latter, or 87 per cent of the total ir steel produced in the United States, per cent of the total iron and steel pr in the world, the significance of the oc is realized."

After referring to methods of comp in vogue in former years, which h nounced, Mr. Gary continued:

"During the last ten years method been changed for the better. As b gentlemen who are in control of the ir steel industry in America at the p time there exists a most intimate re We do not advocate combination or ments in restraint of trade, nor action kind which is opposed to the laws o public welfare. What we advocate ness and friendship in business, cor tercourse, confidence in each other, ness, disclosure when information i erly requested.

Refers to Recent Panic.

"Only two years ago this countr nessed a sudden and severe financ clone. The present was dark and the gloomy. Never before in the mem many who are present this evening w financial outlook so bad.

"Under those circumstances and occasion there stood up in our midst a cial giant who turned his face towar storm, and with a confidence in this c and her people and a comprehension basic conditions and recuperative po the country then decided to invite his to join him in providing financial ass to the weak or afflicted banks, and aid and encouragement and words o and cheer to the communities at large result you know. The response was and hearty.

"I venture to suggest what you all that the disposition and conduct of Mr gan during the trying circumstances mentioned were the result of his fee friendship for his acquaintances, his bors, his countrymen, and humanity eral."

Praise for the Independents.

Here Mr. Gary praised the coöperat tion of the Independent steel men dur panic. He said:

"By invitation you came together most friendly spirit, and with a kind for all who might be concerned in your You literally placed upon one table dences relating to your affairs, your m your interests, your conduct, and your tions. Never before in the history country did such a large body of me responsibilities so great even come t and treat one another on a basis s erous, fair, and high toned.

"Your attitude and conduct at that doubt had much to do in allaying the f excitement which existed, in maint the stability of business conditions, an ensuring a return of prosperity.

"In the application of a feeling of ship and fairness we must not be self limit the application to ourselves business in our charge. We should ha mind in dealing with our employés, w customers, and with the public. We never forget that our rights and interes and should be subservient to the publi fare; that the rights and interests of dividual must always give way to those public."

GARY IS PRAISED BY INDEPENDENTS

Leader of Nearly Every Big Steel Concern in Country Attends Dinner.

SPEECH MADE BY MORGAN

Banker Later Is Lauded for Part He Played in Stopping Recent Panic.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The independent steelmakers got together at the Waldorf tonight to do honor to Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation. Besides the independents and Mr. Gary there were present at the dinner all the major officers of the steel corporation and the presidents of many of the greatest railroads in the United States.

Among them they represented 87 per cent, according to Mr. Gary's figures, of all the steel producers of the United States, figuring them on the scale of the annual outputs of their plants and somewhat more than half of the steel and iron makers of the world. They stood for about 21,500,000 tons of iron a year and as much more of steel.

The dinner was a return compliment for the dinners which Mr. Gary has given the independents from time to time since the dark days of the panic. That Mr. Gary's plan worked was mighty plain tonight. The independents gave him a gold vase which stood about eighteen inches high and filled, so to speak, with all sorts of good wishes, spoken at length in the addresses.

Gary Lauded by Schwab.

Charles M. Schwab was toastmaster. Mr. Schwab, who is president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, when he got up to present the vase to Mr. Gary, had this to say about what the latter has done for the steel industry:

"The broad principles that you brought into this business were new to all of us who had been trained in a different school. Their effect was marvelous, their success unquestioned. It was a renaissance and a newness of things in this business that was necessary and invigorating.

"Mr. Gary, we feel that your position in the steel industry is unique. This is the first time in the history of the industry when the great heads of all the big concerns in the United States and Canada have gathered to do honor to a man who has introduced a new and successful principle into our great industry."

Morgan in Short Speech.

One of the pleasant features of the dinner was a short speech by J. Pierpont Morgan. It was one of the few after dinner speeches Mr. Morgan has ever made.

"Gentlemen, I wish it were in my power to say all that I would like to say on this occasion," Mr. Morgan said. "What I might say at another time would be pretty poor, but tonight I am much overcome by all that I have heard said, for Mr. Gary and I have been working together now for ten years and in a way perhaps none of you appreciate how much it means to me. I feel as if we were all just together. It is impossible for me to say more and I must ask you to accept my appreciation of how deeply I feel for the kind evidence of your sentiments towards me tonight."

Welcoming Speech by Clark.

Welcoming Mr. Gary as the guest of the independent steel men, E. A. S. Clark said:

"Mr. Gary: We who have had the honor of having you and some of your friends as our guests this evening wish to add a few words to those already spoken for us in appreciation of the fairness and of the friendly and helpful attitude that you have shown toward us during the two trying years just past.

"It is no small compensation for the anxieties and trials of that period to feel that perhaps largely owing to them we have a closer, better acquaintance with yourself and with each other and to know that through your efforts the iron and steel manufacturers of this country stand on a higher, broader, and fairer basis of business relationship. This sentiment is subscribed to by fifty-five of the leading steel concerns of this country with all sincerity and truth."

Reply Made by Gary.

Mr. Gary replied, saying:

"This reception is a wonderful demonstration of personal friendly regard. In some respects it is without precedent. When it is remembered there are included in those present representatives of the producers of iron and steel aggregating annually 21,500,000 tons of the former and 22,000,000 tons of the latter, or 87 per cent of the total iron and steel produced in the United States, and 58 per cent of the total iron and steel produced in the world, the significance of the occasion is realized."

After referring to methods of competition in vogue in former years, which he denounced, Mr. Gary continued:

"During the last ten years methods have been changed for the better. As between gentlemen who are in control of the iron and steel industry in America at the present time there exists a most intimate relation. We do not advocate combination or agreements in restraint of trade, nor action of any kind which is opposed to the laws or to the public welfare. What we advocate is fairness and friendship in business, cordial intercourse, confidence in each other, frankness, disclosure when information is properly requested.

Refers to Recent Panic.

"Only two years ago this country witnessed a sudden and severe financial cyclone. The present was dark and the future gloomy. Never before in the memory of many who are present this evening was the financial outlook so bad.

"Under those circumstances and on the occasion there stood up in our midst a financial giant who turned his face towards the storm, and with a confidence in this country and her people and a comprehension of the basic conditions and recuperative power of the country then decided to invite his friends to join him in providing financial assistance to the weak or afflicted banks, and to give aid and encouragement and words of hope and cheer to the communities at large. The result you know. The response was prompt and hearty.

"I venture to suggest what you all know, that the disposition and conduct of Mr. Morgan during the trying circumstances I have mentioned were the result of his feeling of friendship for his acquaintances, his neighbors, his countrymen, and humanity in general."

Praise for the Independents.

Here Mr. Gary praised the cooperative action of the independent steel men during the panic. He said:

"By invitation you came together in the most friendly spirit, and with a kind feeling for all who might be concerned in your action. You literally placed upon one table all evidences relating to your affairs, your methods, your interests, your conduct, and your intentions. Never before in the history of the country did such a large body of men with responsibilities so great even come together and treat one another on a basis so generous, fair, and high toned.

"Your attitude and conduct at that time no doubt had much to do in allaying the fever of excitement which existed, in maintaining the stability of business conditions, and in securing a return of prosperity.

"In the application of a feeling of friendship and fairness we must not be selfish nor limit the application to ourselves or the business in our charge. We should have it in mind in dealing with our employés, with our customers, and with the public. We must never forget that our rights and interests are and should be subservient to the public welfare; that the rights and interests of the individual must always give way to those of the public."

M'CARREN AT DEATH'S DOOR

Brooklyn Leader Sinking and Life Hangs in Balance.

LAST RITES ADMINISTERED.

Makes Will; Condition Arouses Much Interest in Political Circles.

New York, Oct. 15.—State Senator Patrick H. McCarren, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, is lying between life and death in St. Catherine's hospital in Brooklyn with his physicians hoping for the best but prepared for the worst.

While the usual bulletin of "resting as easy as can be expected" is given out every few hours, it is no secret among the senator's friends and in political circles, where his fight for life is being watched with as much if not more interest than the progress of the municipal campaign, that his condition is extremely grave.

Makes Will; Receives Last Rites.

Just after noon today he took a turn for the worse, so alarming that he expressed a desire to make his will. Henry W. Haggerty, his law partner; Samuel S. Whitehouse, and Magistrate F. C. Higginbotham were sent for. Mr. Whitehouse drew the document in his own handwriting and the other two men witnessed it. Tonight a Catholic priest was called in and administered the last rites.

In the late afternoon Senator McCarren fell into fitful snatches of sleep. When the senator is awake he is in full possession of his faculties and insists on talking about the campaign with the few who have been admitted to see him.

May Have Fighting Chance.

A persistent report became current late in the day that the senator was sinking slowly and could not live through the night. Dr. Hughes immediately denied this with the statement that "Senator McCarren will not die today." It is believed if the senator survives the night with any show of vitality he may have a fighting chance of recovery.

Chris Dalton, for years McCarren's doorkeeper at Brooklyn Democratic headquarters, sleeps on a cot at the hospital and never leaves his chief for a minute. Telegrams from all over the country are coming in bearing messages of sympathy.

BOY FOND OF OTHERS' LETTERS; ARRESTED AT A SCHOOLHOUSE.

James Fox, 14 Years Old, Charged with Taking Money and Letters from Private Residences.

The desire of 14 year old James Fox to read letters and to get spending money led to his arrest yesterday by Policeman Kelly and Juvenile Officer Flemming of the Warren avenue police station at the John Ericsson school. Young Fox is a son of a saloonkeeper, William Fox, 3131 Harvard street. He is charged with taking letters from letter boxes in residences after they had been delivered by mail carriers and had left the jurisdiction of the postoffice department.

"I liked to get the letters out of the mail boxes and read them," the boy said. "Then some of them had money in them and I thought it a good scheme to take the letters and get spending money."

Young Fox, who served a term in the John Worthy school earlier in the year, is held at the Juvenile home.

BRENTANO A WITNESS FOR CLERK ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Judge Says John Frohn's Reputation Was Good—Furthman Tells of Turning Over $90 Fine to Clerk.

Judge Theodore Brentano appeared as a witness before Judge McEwen in the Criminal court yesterday at the preliminary hearing of John Frohn, formerly minute clerk in his court, accused of appropriating court fees.

Judge Brentano declared that Frohn's reputation among his friends in the court was good, but could not testify outside of that.

Frohn is accused of keeping $40 of a $90 fine and of falsifying the records. The falsification charge was quashed and the evidence yesterday was to show embezzlement.

Assistant State's Attorney Furthman testified to having given Frohn $90, which Simon Tuckhorn said he gave Furthman. The case was continued until Monday.

ST. MARY'S ALUMNÆ ELECTION.

Mrs. Margaret Dillon-Cavanaugh and Other Chicago Women Honored at Notre Dame Meeting.

The Alumnae association of St. Mary's college held its final session of the biennial reunion at Notre Dame, Ind., yesterday when the following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. Margaret Dillon-Cavanaugh, Chicago.
First vice president—Miss Genevieve Walton, Cincinnati.
Second vice president—Mrs. Addie Gordon-Murdock, Lafayette.
Recording secretary—Miss Margaret Loughran, Joliet, Ill.
Corresponding secretary—Miss Grace Carden, Chicago.
Treasurer—Miss Mettie Touhy, Chicago.

The next meeting of the association will be held in 1911.

POSTOFFICE MAKES A RECORD.

Money Order Division Pays Out $615,086 and Receives $1,123,091 from Outside Towns on Thursday.

The Chicago postoffice, considered a barometer of business conditions and prosperity, has registered a new big record for the increase of business.

A report to Postmaster Daniel A. Campbell, made yesterday by Joseph B. Schlossman, superintendent of the money order division, showed domestic money orders numbering 86,057 and aggregating $615,066.41 were paid on Thursday. From outside postmasters there was received $1,123,091 and a deposit in the subtreasury to the credit of the postmaster general amounting to $450,000 was made.

THOMAS ORCHESTRA SEASON OPENS.

Though Mr. Stock did not announce a soloist for the opening Thomas orchestra concert of the season, he brought forward no less than seven of the fraternity in the course of the program, and the absence of a star was no fact to be lamented. No more varied list of favorite compositions could have been chosen, and the addition of an advertised celebrity would have proved an excess of zeal. The only necessary factor for complete success inexplicably missing was an audience that should have given some expression of interest, some sign of recognition of the splendid playing of the orchestra.

There was little in the course of the performance to emphasize the fact that yesterday's was a first concert. The blending of tone was above reproach, the shadings were done with the same consummate art that we have come to expect from the orchestra. The spirit and the verve that always vitalize the performance of certain repertory works were not missing, and few of the most censorious experts could find much occasion for caustic criticism.

To Carl Maria von Weber Mr. Stock gave that one may forget with comfort. But it is a hardened fault-finder who insists on mentioning the few slips in technique. One or two attacks were rather rubbery, and there was slight hesitation in critical places during the early part of the program. "But considering," as one musician remarked, "that this is only a public rehearsal for the real concert of tomorrow evening, it is pretty good." And the observation is no more clever than it is just, for the program as a whole was splendidly played.

To Carl Maria von Weber Mr. Stack gave the honor of sounding the opening fanfare of the season. The overture is no novelty, nor is it a bit hackneyed. "Der Freischutz" has been voiced for us many times before, and it is as welcome today as it was upon the first occasion. More elasticity in tempo was to be noted yesterday than formerly; the main features of Mr. Stock's interpretation were unchanged. The same exquisite care in balance of tone, the same dash and go, the same unerring instinct for dramatic possibilities, gave the venerable classic the vitality of a fresh offering on the shrine of the muses.

The Dvorak "New World" symphony is always welcome. It is a strange thing that this one work, the "Pathetique" of Tschaikowski, and the "Eroica" of Beethoven are certain of a grateful reception upon any and all occasions. In the case of the latter, tradition may have some influence. The Tschaikowski work retains its place by its peculiar mood. Nor is the cause of the "New World's" popularity harder to find. There are scoffers (and the scoffers are members of the orchestra, by the way) who find in the Bohemian master's E minor effusion approving comment on that irreverent wight who dubbed Dvorak the "milk can composer."

To be sure, the work is understandable, melodious, clear, individual, highly poetic. This is a great fault in the strenuous present. Whether it is of American inspiration or not, it is a beautiful embodiment of beautiful themes. It is easy to play, and its tempi are adjustable. This is no doubt the reason that it meets with little favor from an orchestra that delights in all the tricky splendor of Strauss and his followers.

Yesterday's performance was notable in one respect especially: The sonorous finale was done as we have not heard it done before. Smoother readings have been given us without doubt, but this was an occasion of the materialization of an imposing palace in tone, a bit barbaric in color, more than a little original in lines, but altogether splendid and consistent.

The response to this beautiful interpretation was an incipient enthusiasm tempered with sounding silence.

After the social quarter hour called on the program the "intermission," Mr. Stock and his assistants moved back to the assault on a dead house with the Liszt poem "Orpheus." It is really difficult to wax enthusiastic over the number anyway. A good performance did not save it. No matter what miracles any band may perform with the well meant pages of Liszt, the effect is invariably the same: they seem but to accentuate the angularities of orchestrated piano music. And it was a sonorous reading that "Orpheus" received yesterday afternoon. Brilliant it was, of course, for the whole sentimental motif is adjusted to striking effect; suave it was also to a degree of finesse. But after the last chord one always wonders why the good hearted composer did not begin somewhere in earnest.

Followed then that irrational serenade by Wolf, prince of misfortune. This queer work comes to be more of a puzzle with every performance. Some of our soft hearted brethren profess to find in it evidence of mental stress. That may well be. How is it necessary to fit upon this marvel of rhythmic improvisation any "story of the play"? Let it go as irrational, if it must be so; could any of our prettily sane composers of today fix on the tonal canvass with so sure hand the contortions, the gyrations, the fascination of reckless equilibrium of this phantom, the barrenness in the field of novelties would be a memory. Catch and hold the rhythm who can. We have heard experienced musicians confess to exasperation after pursuit of these haunting melodies, these frenzied cadences. Wolf's reason may have tottered, but his music will not.

Yet the real feature of the concert was to come. Enough had gone before to satisfy the hungry music lover. But it was a simple prelude to the virtuosity that Mr. Stock and the orchestra demonstrated in Strauss' "Till Eulenspiegel." This modern scherso in Rondo form has been played many times; just as many times has it proved a favorite and a success. But not in the span of ten years have we heard a reading so buoyant, so spontaneous as that of yesterday afternoon. The wizardry of this most modern of conjurors received a setting altogether meet and worthy.

It was interesting to watch the men to whose dexterity the puzzle is confided. From the conductor down to the man who operates the "pantry" for the greater supply of noise there was apparent pleasure in the incantation. It may be that the absurdity has been read with as much effectiveness before, but the hearty Teutonic humor of the concept has never been set forth so clearly in our hearing.

And the reception accorded the artists was unworthy to a point of sadness.

It was good to hear the orchestra's noble tone and sure ensemble. It was good to note that there is little to be set in order by further rehearsal. It was altogether good to see the old favorites back among the desks. And it was caging of Mr. Stock to give Mr. Kramer a solo chance, and one to Mr. Steindel likewise, and to Messrs. Schreurs, De Mare, Barthel, and Esser. It was good to hear the actual beginning of the orchestral season, and to realize that our splendid organization is ready for the burden of its winter's ministrations. It was not at all good to note the absolute lack of sympathy in the audience.

The same program will be repeated this evening at 8:15.

ERIC DE LAMARTER.

Olga Nethersole in New Play.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Olga Nethersole's new play, "Locke of Wall Street," by Asa Steel, is a success if the approval of a Baltimore audience counts for anything. The play is full of dramatic action and Miss Nethersole has an opportunity to display her dramatic powers. She was supported by a company including Florence Huntington, Lillian Stafford, Harrison Hunter, Hamilton Mott, and Albert Perry.

The play deals with the manipulation of mining stocks by George Locke of Butte, Mont. Edith Locke, a southern woman, while teaching school in Montana, marries Locke, and they locate in New York. Locke, to further the bearish action of the market in his favor, causes the miners to strike.

The strike leader, an old favorite of Locke, goes to New York to settle the misunderstanding. From him Mrs. Locke learns of her husband's business trickery. A separation narrowly is averted, partly through the influence of Locke's daughter and partly by the miner. Then Mrs. Locke destroys the business distinction between her husband and the strike leader, makes them meet on an equality, and reconciles them in a solution of the labor problem by coöperation.

TRACTION CO. FILES REPORT; 95 MILES OF NEW TRACK.

President Roach Tells Progress of Work Since Jan. 1—170 Miles Completed Since Rehabilitation Began.

About ninety-five miles of track have been laid by the Chicago Railways company since the first of the year, making a total of 170 miles completed since the work of rehabilitation began.

This information was conveyed to the city in a report for the first nine months of 1909, made by President Roach of the Railways company to Ald. Foreman, chairman of the local transportation committee.

This report shows that 95.37 miles of single track have been laid this year, and that four miles additional have been laid since Oct. 1. All the rails used in this new construction are of the heavy grooved type, weighing 129 pounds to the yard, and much of the work has been what is called "special," being the installation of heavy curves and crossings.

The new track does not constitute all the work that has been done, for many new buildings have been erected, including carhouses, machine shops, offices, and other buildings.

Mr. Roach predicts that by the end of the year the building operations of the company to comply with the ordinance will be finished.

HUSBAND VAINLY SEEKS WORK; FAMILY IS IN DIRE STRAITS.

George De Saile, Without Money, Food, Fuel, or Clothing, Lies Ill in His One Room Home—Wife Disheartened.

Out of work, ill, his wife and two children hungry, no fuel, insufficient clothing, and with most of the furniture in his one room dwelling gone to sustain the fire, George De Saile, 944 Wells street, is discouraged to the point of desperation.

His wife, Agnes, who all along has done the best she could to cheer him, is herself worn out. She says the world looks very dark to her, and that she does not see a single rift in the clouds that darken her life.

De Saile is a young Irishman, and his main difficulty has been lack of work. He said he had tramped the streets until he was completely worn out. Last night he lay in bed in his room, scarcely able to speak because of his illness. His wife and their two little girls, Helena and Agnes, huddled together, crying over their misfortunes and looking forward with dread to the bleak days to come.

Mr. and Mrs. De Saile have been in this country three years. They formerly lived in Ireland, where the husband had good health and good work. They were told of golden opportunities in America and came here looking for them.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 15.—With the list of reported dead totaling fifty-five, with scores injured, and with the property loss reaching $1,000,000 or more, the havoc and destruction of the storm which swept middle and west Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, and portions of Arkansas and South Caroline late yesterday afternoon and last night, grows hourly as reports are received from remote points.

The storm was probably the worst that has visited this section of the south in years, being intense in its destroying fury and widespread in its area. Halves of counties were laid in waste and ruin. Towns were destroyed and plantations were greatly damaged.

Apparently the storm broke over middle and west Tennessee and proceeded in a southeasterly direction across the state into Alabama and Georgia, assuming the proportions of a West Indian hurricane.

While only one death occurred at Denmark, Tenn., the horrors of the storm there were greatly heightened by the fire which started amid the ruins and débris of what was once a flourishing little town in middle Tennessee. Two hundred persons were rendered homeless and have appealed to neighboring towns and cities for immediate aid.

Reports of heavy damage come from McNairy county, where is located the famous battlefield of Shiloh and which was directly in the path of the storm.

Tonsiline Cures Sore Throat

The throat is one of the most delicate parts of the body. It is also one of the most important, and should be given the best possible care.

The throat is the gateway to the body. The air we breathe, the food we eat, the liquids we drink, all pass through it. It is very easily affected by cold, strain, exposure, etc., and Sore Throat is therefore one of our most common ailments. Strangely enough, it is also one of the most neglected.

Sore Throat is a very serious matter, for the whole system is in danger in consequence of it.

Every Sore Throat patient is a candidate for Tonsilitis, Quinsy, Diphtheria, and other serious or fatal diseases, all of which can be prevented by the timely cure of the Sore Throat by the use of TONSILINE.

If taken in time a dose or two will do it. TONSILINE is made to cure throat diseases and nothing else. It is the one remedy for this purpose sold largely in the United States. Every user endorses it; every physician, knowing its virtues, commends it.

The one most important thing to remember about TONSILINE is the fact that it really does cure Sore Throat.

"ANNE PAGE" NOT A TALE FOR THE IMPATIENT OR THE LOVER OF SENSATION.

Netta Syrett's Latest Romance Is an Old World Story Facing Bold'y a Condition of Life.

THE reputation of Netta Syrett grows apace with each succeeding novel, and certainly no one can read her "ANNE PAGE" without recognizing the subtlety of her character delineation and the charm of her style. It is true that her story is a retroactive one and that the reader is asked to make many swift journeys between the past and the present in order to follow the story and to connect events and their consequences. There is, generally speaking, something too pensive in such retrospection to suit the temper of the American reader, but "Anne Page" is not a tale which the restless, the impatient, or the lover of the sensational will care to read. So much is to be discovered at the outset. The book will be left for lovers of delicately shaded fiction, who are even willing to be dull for a page or two, in quiet enjoyment of felicitous prose and everyday situations.

Anne Page is a woman who up to the age of 37 led a colorless life of poverty and service to the sick and aged in little village backwaters in England. Then she came unexpectedly into a fortune and also into the possession of a lover. He was a great man—a painter in Paris and a Frenchman of feeling and taste. Anne was his senior by almost ten years, and for reasons of generosity she refused to marry him when he asked her to do so, though she loved him utterly. But she could not, for all of her scruple, let the cup of life empty itself without even a taste of its rich wine. She effected a compromise with her lover, knew three years of happiness in Paris, enjoying the society of distinguished and charming men, and then, before his love had an opportunity to wane, she fled, carrying with her the consciousness that no anticlimax had marred their perfect relationship.

Plain, shy, badly dressed, and almost sullen in her girlhood, this woman grew to have a belated beauty. The innumerable books she had read during her years of the nursing of the sick bore a rich harvest. Naturally artistic, her taste developed under a fortunate environment, and at 50, with her great episode many years behind her, she retires to a beautiful home and becomes the guiding spirit of the neighborhood—the recipient of many confidences, the benefactor of the poor, and the director of taste. Then the revelation comes—and that is the story. To tell it here would be unfair. Perhaps it has been unfair to tell any of it, for stated baldly the story seems weakly sentimental. It is not that, however. It shows a knowledge of nature as it is, and nothing worse than commiseration is felt by the reader for Anne. She had to content herself with a makeshift, and she did this with courage and brilliancy. She had an essential generosity which kept her from taking advantage of a man in love. It is not a new world story nor one which can be sought by those who wish to read only of the exemplary. But it is a story which at least faces a condition and recognizes the existence of the profound ennui with which ill mated men and women contemplate each other. It also recognizes the fact that many true lovers are ill mated as to age, temperament, and circumstance. And it in no way recommends poor Anne's couree of conduct to those who find life awry. It is, indeed, a curious, sad, and unmoral story, excellently presented and destined to remain in the memory. (John Lane company.)

Mr. George P. Upton has added to his musical handbooks a valuable volume devoted to "THE STANDARD CONCERT REPERTORY." This outlines and comments upon the overtures and suites which form the larger part of the usual concert program. No important work in the modern repertory is missing, it is safe to conclude, knowing the thoroughness with which Mr. Upton attacks a work of this sort. It serves, moreover, as a supplement to his "Standard Concert Guide," published several months ago, and intended to guide the student and connoisseur to the symphonies, oratorios, cantatas, and symphonic poems for concert use. Mr. Upton seems never to have permitted himself to become perfunctory in his descriptions of criticisms. The work is done with vivacity and enthusiasm, and, of course—the author being who he is—with taste. The numerous portraits of composers add not a little to the "Concert Repertory." (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

Richard Le Gallienne's volume of "NEW POEMS" has not much to offer the lover of fine melodies and true poetic fancies. Certain agreeable phrases Mr. Le Gallienne undeniably has—certain vague, mourning, or elate moods, but a sense of weariness soon overcomes the reader. One has the feeling of moving among cobwebs, which rebuild themselves as fast as they are brushed away. I quote, at hasard:

Yes! I am the woman of dreams, the woman no man shall wed—
Would you mate with the rising moon, or the glimmer of stars upon streams?
Or marry the mist on the mere, or the hopes in the heart of the dead?
Then home to your hearth shall you bring me—me, the woman of dreams.

Certain phrases are repeated with tiresome iteration, and this is all the more annoying because they are indeed but phrases. Lest the stanza quoted above be thought a too unfortunate selection, another is offered herewith:

Hopeless of hope, past desire even of thee,
There is one place I long for,
A desolate place
That I sing all my songs for,
A desolate place for a desolate face,
Where the loneliest land meets the loneliest sea.

Is this poetry—or sense—or fantasy—or anything? One is tempted to use opprobrious terms, and desists in self-respect. Let it suffice that the contents of this volume have no meaning, at present, for one reader at least. (John Lane company.)

Quite in contrast are the simple songs and ballads of Denis A. McCarthy. This hearty young poet has been writing for newspapers and magazines and he has an unaffected way of speaking out the thing he thinks. Mr. McCarthy is willing to play about the foot hills of Parnassus, but they are pleasant little foot hills, with the simple flowers blooming sweetly on the slopes. Here is an example of Mr. McCarthy's downright work:

Plenty of room for dives and dens (glitter and glare and sin!)
Plenty of room for prison pens (gather the crimtes in!)
Plenty of room for jails and courts (willing enough to pay!)
But never a place for the lads to race; no, never a place to play!

Plenty of room for shops and stores (Mammon must have the best!)
Plenty of room for the running sores that rot in the city's breast!
Plenty of room for the lures that lead the hearts of our youth astray,
But never a cent on a playground spent; no, never a place to play.

Fortunately this is not true of Chicago, though there is much more to do before the sensitive civic conscience can be reassured upon this point. There is this sturdy, polemical accent in almost all that Mr. McCarthy writes, and it may be that art suffers in consequence, but for all that such songs as "A Shamrock from the Suir," or "Across the Seas in Erin," or "Ah, Sweet Is Tipperary," stir the heart of any who love song, or who have so much as a touch of the Irish in them. At least one understands what Mr. McCarthy wishes to say, even if he does not say it with so honeyed an accent as that in which Mr. Le Gallienne, manipulator of vague euphonies, expresses his illusive idea.

Mr. H. B. Marriott Watson gave way to an impulse of almost wild romanticism when he wrote "THE CASTLE BY THE SEA." It is the story of one Barbazon, who rents the home of Sir Gilbert Norroy, long neglected by the landlord, and who falls into the hands of a band of conspirators who mistake him for Sir Gilbert. These conspirators have discovered quantities of copper ore on Sir Gilbert's place, and wish to force him to sell. To this end they levy writs for debt upon him—at least, the levying of writs is their ambition—but for many days they are held at bay by the determination and adroitness of Barbazon and his servants. The story becomes melodramatic at last, and finds the hero, Sir Gilbert, and the beautiful heroine confined in the copper caves by a vicious dwarf, who closes the caves by the use of dynamite. Fortunately, just as the reader gives up all hope, a mode of egress is found by way of doors hidden in one of the caves, leading through a secret and forgotten passage to the castle.

All this seems infantile, and like something one read long ago, in the days when one was willing to be absurd, providing one could, at the same time, be amused. The childishness of these devices, however, is compensated for by fine description, and the introduction of real romance and mystery. Yet it must be urged, that a writer of such experience as Mr. Marriott Watson might have unfolded some plot less juvenile. The story is well illustrated by Herman Pfifer. (Little, Brown & Co.)

"RENAISSANCE FANCIES AND STUDIES," by Vernon Lee, bespeak for itself a favorably prejudiced audience. No one is better qualified than Miss Paget to write upon these topics. From her youth she has been obsessed by them, and her continued residence in Florence and continued study and investigation give her opportunities which few students of the golden days of Italy possess.

The essays composing the present book are "The Love of the Saints," "The Imaginative Art of the Renaissance," "Tuscan Sculpture," and "A Seeker of Pagan Perfection, Being the Life of Domenico Neroni, Pictor Sacrilegus"; and to all this is added a "Valedictory."

The valedictory is of particular interest. It is, in part, a confession of Miss Paget's youthful aims and dreams.

I began, she writes, by believing I should be a historian and a philosopher, as most young people have done before me; then, coming in contact with the concrete miseries of others, called social and similar problems. I sought to apply some of my historical or philosophical lore (such as it was) to their removal; and finally, life having manifested itself as offering problems (unexpected occurrence!) not merely concerning the past, nor even the abstract present, but respecting my own comfort and discomfort, I have found myself at last wondering in what manner thoughts and impressions could make the world, the past and the present, the near and remote, more satisfying and useful to myself. Circumstances of various kinds, and particularly ill health, have thus put me, although a writer, into the position of a reader, and have made me ask myself, as I collected these fragments of my former studies: What can the study of history, particularly of the history of art, and of other manifestations of past conditions of soul, do for us in the present?

Miss Paget answers this question as Walter Pater might have answered it in those kindly latter years, when he got beyond the attitude of the delicate dilettante into that of the worshiper of true and inner beauty. So well and so gravely does she sum up her philosophy of life, of art, and of the union she made between what remains vital in the past, and what is reverent today, that one is singularly moved—even, in a way, awed—by so beautiful a statement of a reflective life. The word "Valedictory" seems to take on its complete meaning. Does Miss Paget mean, indeed, to write "finis" in her volume of life? Is she closing up accounts, striking a balance with those things which have been her noble merchandise—old beauty and present joy, friends like Pater, convictions of religion, rich old memories, the streets of Florence, the scythelike swing of the Arno? Is she putting these things behind her quietly and serenely? Or does she mean no more than that she is writing the valedictory to a group of scholarly and ripe essays, in which the consummate taste as well as the independence of her mind, is made apparent?

At any rate, for lovers of Italy and all who know what Italy brings in the way of spiritual and esthetic refreshment, her book will prove singularly satisfying—one of the best which have come from her pen these latter years.

ELIA W. PEATTIE.

Frederick Keppel, who certainly is competent for the task, has selected a number of the great paintings to illustrate "CHRIST—the author being who he is—with taste. The numerous portraits of composers add not a little to the "Concert Repertory." IN ART" (Duffield & Co.). The pictures represent the Nativity as painted by the artists of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, together with many reproductions of rare prints in the British museum and the Bibliotheque Nationale. The accompanying text explains something about the pictures and their makers.

Mrs. Charles Mason Fairbanks has compiled a little book, "THE SENSE AND SENTIMENT OF THACKERAY" (Harper & Bros.), which is made up of brief extracts from his books and letters. It is neatly bound in red leather and for those who like wisdom in chips it will make a pleasant pocket companion.

RECOLLECTIONS OF WASHINGTON GLADDEN, THE VETERAN REFORMER.

Reminiscences of Many Important Events in the Republic by One Who Took Part in Them.

THE REV. DR. WASHINGTON GLADDEN is one of the most interesting, as well as one of the most sane, Americans now before the public. Though 73 years old he is still young, and there is no one who takes a more vital and aggressive hold upon public affairs than does this reverend gentleman of Columbus, O. Though Ohio is the state from which he has hailed since 1882, like John Wesley, the world is his parish.

Dr. Gladden is about to publish, through Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., a volume of his "RECOLLECTIONS." He has already nearly thirty books to his credit and the betterment of the world at large. Dr. Gladden is delightful, whether writing about himself or other people and other things. A man who has lived so full a life could not help have recollections of more than ordinary interest and value. He tells us modestly in his first chapter that the story that he has undertaken to tell is that of an "average American." I wish that it were. I wish that there were more Americans like Dr. Gladden. It would be a good thing for the country.

As a youngster he became a printer's apprentice, and from that day on, though he ultimately became a Congregational clergyman, writing has been his calling. He managed to get a college education and his early connection with the Springfield Republican brought him into contact with men to know whom was a liberal education of itself.

Of course Dr. Gladden has a lot to say about the civil war, and what he says as an eyewitness has more than the usual interest that hangs around anything that may be written on this period. He has a paragraph about Lincoln that is worth quoting:

In February Mr. Lincoln started from Springfield for Washington. The telegraph brought us daily tidings of his progress, and the reports were not, on the whole, reassuring. There was a tender genuineness about the speech to his old neighbors that touched all our hearts, but the other speeches seemed lacking, not only in felicity, but in grasp and seriousness. There was little of the cogency and directness of the debates with Douglas. Could we have been mistaken in our man? The possibility was appalling. I went over to New York to see him pass down Broadway. He stood in his barouche, bowing rather stiffly right and left to the throng that packed the sidewalks. There was more curiosity than enthusiasm. His face was wan and anxious; he must have known that his greeting greatly lacked cordiality. I stood upon the curbstone, and his carriage paused for a minute or two opposite the place where I was standing, so that I had a good look into his face. It was the only sight of it I ever had, except one brief glimpse of him on horseback at City Point, in war time. The face was strong and benign, but unspeakably sad; the burden of a nation was on his heart. Was he man enough for the hour? Some one who had come into close contact with him felt confident. Thurlow Weed, the veteran editor, who was no sentimentalist, had had good opportunity to measure his mind, and his verdict was unhesitating; he told us that he was not only honest and true, but "capable—capable in the largest sense of the term. He has read much and thought much of government, inwardly digesting its theory and practice."

During the war Dr. Gladden was an active worker with the Christian commission. He writes of his first meeting with Gen. Grant:

One day, going hurriedly into the tent of one of the nurses, I met her coming out with a short man in a blue blouse and a slouch hat. Paying no attention to her guest, I did my errand, when she confounded me by saying, "Do you know Gen. Grant?" I came to attention promptly, and invited the general to go with me to the headquarters of the Christian commission. We gave him a comfortable seat and treated him to lemonade, and tried to learn from him something about the result of the hard fighting which had been going on for the preceding thirty-six hours. We learned little. We had suffered some heavy losses, he said—which was news to us; but we had gained some decided advantages in position. But the general was more interested in the weather than in the details of military movements; he was evidently a man who could be silent in several languages.

Dr. Gladden has a good deal to say about David Swing, whose theological outbursts got him into trouble with the Chicago presbytery, but he came out all right:

The Chicago presbytery was made up of men of unusual breadth and intelligence; its leader, the Rev. Dr. Patterson, was a benignant and liberal minded man, and he put himself strongly on the side of Prof. Swing; the ministers of Chicago who knew him were nearly all his friends.

The church which he organized and to which he preached for many years in the great Music hall was a strong force in the life of that city and, until the day of his death, this good man held in an unusual degree the respect and affection of the people. Nor was this due to any sensational or ad captandum methods. His art as a preacher was simplicity itself; there were no oratorical fireworks; he read his sermons, with no attempt at elocutionary effect; they bore the character of essays rather than of orations. What held the people was partly the beauty in which his thought was always clothed, but more than all the sincerity, the reality, the genuineness of it all. He was a pure hearted, gentle, faithful soul; the words that he spoke, like his Master's, were words of spirit and life, and therefore the common people and all the people heard him gladly. The fact that by methods so quiet and unsensational a preacher could fill Sunday after Sunday so large an assembly room in the heart of the business quarter of a great city, is reassuring to those who would like to believe in the effectiveness of the simple truth.

It is Dr. Gladden's belief that great numbers of men who had been repelled from the traditional statements of religious truth were led back to respect and reverence by the teachings of Mr. Swing.

There is a lively chapter in this book called "Partnership with Plunderers," in which Dr. Gladden emphasizes his views already expressed in other pages on the acceptance for church purposes of what might be regarded as ill gotten gains.

Dr. Gladden closes his "Recollections" with optimistic sentiments. Sometimes, he says, it has seemed as if the foundations were crumbling under our feet—the exposure of perfidy and dishonesty have been so shocking:

But the thing to fix the thought upon is the mighty revulsion of public sentiment against this rottenness and rascality. It is the sound and clear moral judgment of the nation which makes all this iniquity seem so horrible. The blackness of the shadow proves the intensity of the light. The annals of the future will mark these days as an epoch in the ethical awakening of the American people.

We turn our faces to the future with good hope in our hearts. There are great industrial problems before us, but we shall work them out; there are battles to fight, but we shall win them. With all those who believe in justice and the square deal, in kindness and good will, in a free field and a fair chance for every man, the stars in their courses are fighting, and their victory is sure.

One of the least prejudiced Englishmen writing about American affairs is Mr. A. Maurice Low, who studies us at close range and has been doing so for more than twenty years. He is not a sensational writer, but he is an interesting writer, and one feels that he is at least writing from conviction. He has published a book on "Protection in the United States" and on "America at Home," and by the end of this week he will have a new volume on "The American People: A Study in National Psychology" (Houghton-Mifflin company). After nearly a quarter of a century spent in studying our political and social institutions Mr. Low has asked himself whether the American people are a new race with distinct racial characteristics and a developed psychology of their own or simply the modification of a parent stock retaining the characteristics of their begetting? The question has been widely discussed, but he was not satisfied with the conclusions, so he began the inquiry for his own satisfaction and without any preconceived idea of putting his conclusions in permanent form, and it is, he says, "due both to writer and reader that I should say the investigation was made without prejudice or bias. . . . With an open mind, in the spirit of the investigator and not of the advocate, I began the study."

Mr. Low has given what might be thought disproportionate space to the Puritans, but the more he came to consider the causes that produced this new race the more he was impressed by the "great and lasting influence exercised on American civilization and the formation of character by the Puritans, who affected not only America, but have influenced all the rest of the world."

America and England have so much in common "mentally and spiritually" that Europe, which knows England so much better than it knows the United States, "has fallen into the fashion of using England as the common denominator in which to express the terms of American civilization." This Mr. Low believes to be a mistake: "America is no longer England or even a reflex of England. America is American, and if the character of the American people is to be understood and their civilization is to be correctly interpreted they must be measured by their own standards and not weighed in the scales of foreign make."

The corruption of politics, the sordidness of place hunters, the dishonesty of demagogues, the lust for wealth, the vulgarity of display, which foreigners write about as peculiarly American, are things that are neither new nor peculiar to America, according to Mr. Low: "Everything that has happened or is now happening in the United States we shall find its parallel and its precedent in English civilization in its various evolutionary stages; nor shall we find them at a time so remote from the present that they were merely the survival of the manners and customs of a people then but slowly emerging from barbarism and whose civilization was still rudimentary."

As recently as the nineteenth century "the morals of England were so unspeakably vile that the titles of some of the poems of Lord Rochester, a fashionable poet, were, according to the historian Green, 'such as no pen of our day could copy.'" And politics was so openly a matter of barter and sale that seats in parliament were sold to the highest bidder.

Mr. Low endeavors to show how it came about that the civilization of England was checked in America and ran in new channels. It is one of our peculiarities that we love to read what foreigners write about us. We are not as sensitive as we used to be, we have gained some sense with years, and when men like James Bryce and Maurice Low write about us and our institutions we listen with attention and, I hope, profit by their criticism.

THE LAW OF THE RANGE

By WAYNE GROVES BARROWS

AMONG all the novels of cowboy life that have been sent out from the publishing houses in recent years, none has more of the "ring of truth" than "The Law of the Range." ¶ There are few survivals today of the original plainsman, but the type is here depicted with all of its crudeness and primitive sense of justice, yet with all the lovable qualities that endear the "cowpuncher" to the dwellers in the "effete East" whether he be met with in the drama, the novel or in real life.

The visit of Mr. Hereley was suggested by the following product of his laboratory, which had been mailed on Thursday to the traction companies simultaneously with its publication in the newspapers:

The sharp drop in temperature, with the high winds prevailing, has made it most uncomfortable in street cars where the heat has not been turned on. The public seems clamoring for a change in conditions, and from personal observation I find that it is necessary for the health of the traveling public to have the cars properly heated. On the theory that the producer of the foregoing discovery must have a prominent brow, wear glasses with thick lenses, and read nothing more giddy than the problems of Pythagoras, the reporter rode up to the sixth floor of the city hall. The door of Mr. Hereley's office was locked.

The reporter rapped gently on the door, trusting that a disconsolate office boy might have been left behind. There was no response. The visitor was about to sacrifice the hope of communion with Mr. Hereley when a girl came down the hall and unlocked the door.

At this stage of the call a large, comfortable shape, conspicuous by reason of the cheery waistcoat and tie aforesaid, to say nothing of a large athletic looking overcoat, filled the doorway. The young woman announced that it was Mr. Hereley.

"I'm just carrying out my duties according to the ordinances and the requirements of the mayor," said Mr. Hereley in answer to an inquiry as to whether it made him hustle to earn the $5,000 annually paid him by the city.

Can Cover Ground Fast.

"I can cover the ground that it would take four ordinary men to cover, but I ain't bragging when I say that," he added. "I worked for the Union Traction company, superintending traffic, before I came here. I used to be around the city hall a good deal and I guess I seen you there. I was in the street car business eighteen years running, and I can discount a lot of things that another fellow would have to run around to see before he could tell what to say about 'em."

"Do most of your letters to the traction companies convey as valuable information as the one just published?" inquired the reporter, referring to the letter which had suggested Pythagoras.

"They're on all kinds of things that is reasonable," replied Mr. Hereley, freely molding his speech. "The principal annoyance is to keep the cars het."

"Did you prosecute any of the roads?" asked the reporter.

"Nope; these are the best spirited roads in the country, I believe," was the response. "The South Side 'L' was slow getting illuminated signs, but they came to it, all right. Take Clarence Knight on the west side. He's the greatest railroad man in Chicago. Look what he's got to contend with, and he's rehabilitated his line almost to Oak Park, I guess."

Public Often Misbehaves.

"The public gets to misbehaving about cold weather time," suggested the reporter.

"You betcha," responded Mr. Hereley with warmth. "They'd steal the stoves the cars is het with if they wasn't bolted down. When you see a thermometer missing it's most likely because some passenger stole it. They screw 'em off with jackknives. Some do it because they think it's smart, and some do it because they want the thermometer, I guess.

"We get about 10,000 complaints here a year, but only about 300 of them ever get to the companies. I just explain matters to the party who complains in the other cases, telling him how a thing can't be helped on account of rehabilitation, and so on, and that's all there is to it. It's the mayor and the city officials who makes the whip snap.

"The companies thought they was going to be in bad with the through routes. Why, now the Seventh-ninth and Howard and the Ashland avenue through lines are the best payers in town for both companies. But the companies wasn't backward about putting them on for the convenience of the public even when it looked as if they wasn't going to pay."

Crowded Cars Pay Best.

"They're the most crowded cars in town," observed the reporter.

"That's why they pay so well," retorted Mr. Hereley, nettled at his visitor's dullness.

"The public seems to be to blame for the trouble along the Northwestern 'L,' according to your findings, doesn't it?" inquired the interviewer.

"Yes, those people up there trespass on the right of way," rejoined Mr. Hereley, his cheeks getting a bit pinker with indignation. "They got in the habit of it when the fences wasn't there, and they're keeping of it up. I'm getting my coat on to go up there now."

The visitor arose to bid Mr. Hereley farewell and to thank him for the light which had been cast into dark places.

"Now, don't mention me in any connection that will be embarrassing," requested Mr. Hereley with a show of anxiety. "You know all the credit is due to the mayor. I'm modest, but I guess there ain't any of them gets around any more'n I do. But I ain't boasting. I'm just doing my work."

One of Many Busy Men.

"It'll be all right to say that you are one of the busiest city officials in the hall, won't it?" asked the reporter.

"O, certainly," responded Mr. Hereley, genially and sinking back into his chair with an air of relief.

"Don't you think a corps of trained assistants would help you vastly in your work" inquired the reporter in leaving the bluff and genial Mr. Hereley.

"I wouldn't talk about that in the present financial state of the city," responded the traction expert with dignity.

MADDEN DOWNED BY FEDERATION

Refused Recognition at Convention and "Strike Breaking" Denounced.

EX-LABOR CZAR MARRIED.

Weds Florence B. Miles, Stenographer, Secretly a Month Ago in Waukegan.

The methods of Martin B. ("Skinny") Madden in the conduct of the affairs of building trades unions in Chicago officially were condemned yesterday by the convention of the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor in session at Tampa, Fla. The action was taken as the result of a report by President James Kirby of the department, who denounced the action of the erstwhile "labor czar" in furnishing machinists to the Otis Elevator company to take the places of striking elevator constructors as "strikebreaker tactics."

Madden and several of his business agents went to Tampa for the purpose of appealing to the convention for recognition for his rapidly dwindling Associated Building Trades organization. The adoption of President Kirby's report puts Madden down and out so far as the American Federation of Labor is concerned. "Skinny" and his "delegates" in Tampa will not be received and that eliminates the convicted "labor czar's" chances of presenting his "case" to the convention.

Denounces Madden Tactics.

"It is hard for me to find words sufficient to condemn such actions as those of the machinists and electrical workers," said Kirby in his report. "I feel that these organizations could have secured all the work they were justly entitled to without acting the part of strikebreakers. Protests should be made to the metal trades department, of which the machinists are members, and to the American Federation of Labor; and the electrical workers, who are a part of this department, should be dealt with in accordance with our own laws."

The discovery that "Skinny" Madden was married secretly in Waukegan on Sept. 13 to Miss Florence Belle Miles of Chicago, said to have been his stenographer, aroused considerable interest in labor circles. Justice William F. Weiss of Lake county performed the ceremony.

Ten Hour Test Case Postponed.

The trial of Theodore A. Schmitt of the Carqueville Lithographing company, cited before Judge Himes for eight violations of the ten hour law for women, was continued until Nov. 18. The Carqueville Lithographing company and six other concerns were added to the parties under the injunction issued by Judge Tuthill, but Judge Himes ruled that the injunction is not retroactive and that Schmitt must be tried for the violations charged against him.

William Duff Haynie, general counsel for the Illinois Manufacturers' association, declared that the law on all questions involved in the Tuthill decision was passed upon in 1895 by the Supreme court and that Judge Tuthill merely applied the law.

EVANSTON GIRL IDENTIFIES A NEGRO AS HER ASSAILANT.

Police Believe Joseph Childs, Under Arrest, Also Attacked Three Other Women in Suburb.

Joseph Childs, a negro, who is under arrest in Evanston, is believed by the police to have attacked four women in that suburb within the last month. Miss Lillian Johnson, 17 years old, who lives at 1830 Asbury avenue, identified him as the negro who attacked her the night of Sept. 15. The police think he is the man who also recently attacked Mrs. Andrew Theisen, Mrs. Mary Vogler, and a trained nurse whose name they have not learned.

On being taken to her home after she was attacked, Miss Johnson noticed red paint stains on her clothing. Detectives searched Childs' room at 934 Center street, and discovered a shirt covered with red paint and a pair of trousers spotted with the same coloring.

There is little hope that either Mrs. Theisen or Mrs. Vogler will be able to identify Childs, as neither of them saw the face of her assailant. Childs declares he is innocent.

Paid to Settle Alienation Case, Is C. S. Beattie's Charge.

LATTER ASKS $5,000 FEE.

Defendant Denies Accusations, as Do Lawyers Named with Him.

Charles Stuart Beattie, an attorney, began suit in the Circuit court yesterday, in which it is alleged Adrian C. Honoré, a brother of Judge Lockwood Honoré and Mrs. Potter Palmer, paid $15,000 for the settlement of an alienation suit brought by James H. La Pearl, a circus man. Beattie asks for $5,000 attorney's fees as counsel for La Pearl.

Attorney Beattie declares it is his intention to put Mr. Honoré on the witness stand to testify concerning his alleged relations with Mrs. La Pearl, which were the basis of the alienation suit. He promises a sensational hearing when the case comes to trial.

Other defendants in the suit with Mr. Honoré are Hemstead Washburne, Francis W. Walker, Colin C. H. Fyffe, and Walker Banning. Collusion is charged with these attorneys in securing the dismissal of the alienation suit by Judge Stowe.

The allegations were denied by Attorney Walker, who spoke for himself and for Mr. Honoré, who declined to discuss the suit.

"Mr. Beattie has no claim whatever against Mr. Honoré or myself," he said. "There is no truth whatever in his charge that a settlement for $15,000 was made. No money was paid. The suit was dismissed in court.

"The charge in the suit filed yesterday is that a false and fraudulent order was entered in the Circuit court on July 15 which purports to show that the charges against Honoré were without foundation.

Attorney Beattie sets forth that he was retained by the circus man to bring a suit for $50,000 damages against Mr. Honoré on account of assault and injury by the defendant of Nellie La Pearl. It is declared that Attorney Banning appeared in court and presented himself as the attorney for La Pearl.

"They settled the affair and then forgot about me," said Beattie. "The suit explains itself. They reached an agreement with my client, and then he neglected to pay me. I have been threatened with indictment if I persisted in collecting my fee, and I brought suit to show that I am not afraid of them.

"I will have a subpoena issued for Mr. Honoré and will prove the charges brought by La Pearl were true."

El Symphonie Cigars Reduced to 5c

For 15 years the price was 10c—now it is reduced one-half.

We want you all to know it, you lovers of El Symphonie Cigars—that 5c is the price everywhere.

I am publishing this announcement because some dealers continue to charge 10c and their customers are content to pay it, thinking El Symphonie still a 10c smoke.

But it's wrong, and I want to correct this mistaken idea. Everyone is entitled to the 5-cent price.

So pay only 5c for El Symphonie. If the dealer asks the old 10c price, refuse to pay it. Show him this notice for your authority.

Please don't think this is an advertisement.

It is merely a warning to save the lovers of El Symphonie Cigars 5c.

TECHNICAL TRAINING FOR GIRLS.

The Farragut school will begin its experiment next Monday with half time classes for boys in connection with some of the manufacturing concerns of the vicinity. Part of the boys will work in the factories for two weeks, when they will exchange places with a group of their fellows who have had a fortnight of school instruction, and so on, alternatingly, during the year.

The circular announcing this plan gives an equal amount of space to what are called "continuous trade classes for girls." In these the effort will be made to give a large amount of hand work. The training will be practical and will be of value to the pupil, even if her school days are comparatively few. The subjects to be taught include beginning and advanced sewing by hand and machine, drafting and cutting patterns for simple garments, textiles, foodstuffs and their perparation and serving, cooking for invalids, home nursing, sanitation and hygiene.

In other words, the attempt is made to do for the girls what the plan proposes for the boys, to give them instruction in subjects which are likely to be of value to them in later life and, perhaps, in connection with their wage earning. If there are 160 rooms devoted to manual training for the boys mainly and only sixty-two set apart for domestic science work, the reported intention of the superintendent to ask for more facilities for the girls is justifiable.

The development of trained citizens is not a work for the boys alone. It is just as important to have the girls instructed in useful household arts as for the boys to be taught the use of tools in the manual training shop. In the public schools there must be equality of opportunity for children of the two sexes.

LAWRENCE Y. SHERMAN.

Lawrence Y. Sherman, so long as he retains his activity, will occupy a distinctive place in Illinois politics whether he is ambitious for office or not. As president of the board of administration for the reorganized charitable institutions he is in a position of peculiar usefulness, and his recent statements relative to the work which that body will take up actively in January show that he recognizes it, but that office does not mark the limit of his opportunities.

The state is in sad need of a few such men as Sherman for congressional purposes. If he had not been possessed by the idea that a representative in the national house is of necessity a featherweight and principally useful in hustling for patronage he might be the representative of an Illinois district now. The wish that he were might easily become acute. The disinclination for such service as he imagined to be congressional stopped him.

What is needed in Illinois politics is a brick thrower. When any real issue is involved the politicians fight with pillows, which do not break glass houses. If some of the bricks went astray the bad aim would be forgiven for the accuracy which sent others straight. Sherman has a reputation for not caring what breaks.

In his last utterance regarding administrative and political conditions he could not allow the opportunity to escape without saying:

"I would rather deal with the insane who are in the institutions and under restraint than with the sane politicians who are not under restraint but are running at large throughout the state."

This habit of caustic and frequently inconsiderate speech has won him no regard in the political organizations, but it might be advantageous to Illinois to send to Washington, to the house, or to the senate one man whose sentences were of the explosive order.

THE NAVY AND ITS BASES.

It is about time the navy should settle finally and definitely the question of the location of its repair and supply stations. Only recently we passed through a bitter controversy over the site for our sea base in the Philippines, in which not only officers of the navy but of the army as well participated. Admiral Dewey, who surely has had sufficient experience in far eastern waters, and the general board, of which he is president, selected Olongapo, a town on Subig bay, some distance from Manila, as the proper strategic position. It will be recalled that it was this bay which the admiral first searched for his Spanish enemy in 1898. Considerable sums of money were spent at Olongapo in dredging a basin for the floating dry dock, for fortifications, etc. Then the army suddenly discovered that Olongapo could not be protected from land attack, and the president decided that Cavite, which lies in Manila bay, should be the location of the station.

Now we are confronted by the possibility of a change of base for the navy in the West Indies. The importance of a proper strategic position in those waters is generally realized. At first the navy thought Culebra the ideal spot. This island lies between Porto Rico and the Danish Indies and commands all approaches to the Panama canal and the gulf of Mexico. But Culebra is only an open roadstead and incapable of adequate protection. Then Guantanamo bay, a splendid and easily defensible harbor on the southeastern shore of Cuba, was selected. Several million dollars have been spent in acquiring land, dredging to a desired depth, and fortifying, and it has been planned to disburse other millions. Like Culebra, the Cuban harbor is within striking distance of every gulf and Caribbean sea point, including the canal. The objections offered to it lie in its location in foreign territory, the comparative ease with which it could be attacked from land if Cuba were occupied by an enemy, and the possibility of its defenders contracting disease from the insular inhabitants.

Commodore W. H. Beehler, retired, has published an article in the last number of the Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute, wherein he argues that our natural Caribbean sea naval base is Key West, Fla., this in spite of the disadvantages it developed during the war with Spain. He holds that the improvements which have been made at that point, its railroad facilities, its deepened waters, and its large water supply, all of which have been brought about since the war, justify the government in adopting it instead of Guantanamo as the site from which our navy shall operate in southern waters. He refers to the fact that at Dry Tortugas, a few miles away, is a fine coaling station, provided with spacious sheds, two fine steel piers, and a channel thirty feet deep; an excellent pure water supply, and well constructed buildings and barracks.

Commodore Beehler propounded his views at an unfortunate moment, for Key West has just suffered disastrously from a hurricane, showing that it lies in the path of the wind monster of the tropic seas. Had a fleet been within its harbor, many of the ships comprising it probably would have been driven upon surrounding reefs and today would be a total loss.

The technical features of this dispute will mean little to the layman. He is concerned only that the most satisfactory location from all points of view, strategical and physical, shall be adopted, and upon that and that alone shall the people's money be spent. It is evident somebody of expert judgment must be trusted by the nation to do that which is best in this important matter, and it seems advisable, therefore, to accept as final the verdict of Admiral Dewey and the trained officers of the general board, who have been studying the question for some years.

The country wants the navy to have whatever it may need for its efficient operation. It does not approve nor will it patiently submit to indecision with its resultant extravagance.

FRANCISCO FERRER.

The charge brought against Francisco Ferrer by the Spanish government was inciting the Barcelona riots of last summer. The dispatches give none of the testimony submitted to the court-martial which found him guilty. The government, which could have made it public, has not done so. Therefore the case must be judged by the reports of the protests throughout Europe. Those protests are in substance an accusation that Ferrer's execution was simply the official murder of a man the government wished to get rid of because of his political ideas.

Russia has found that the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church. Spain will learn the same truth. Turkey has already done so. Ideas may be rooted out by argument. They cannot be extirpated by the scaffold or the firing squad. This holds good in the domain of politics as well as that of religion.

It behooves Spain to stamp out bomb throwing—to punish every one who, after a fair trial, shall have been proved to be a party to such a crime. No evidence has been presented as yet to show that Ferrer was engaged in work of that kind. It is a crime for a government to execute or imprison men merely because they preach a propaganda of liberty. It is the duty of the Spanish government, as of every other government, to jail men who preach a propaganda of violence. The fact that no evidence proving that Ferrer did that has been made public is strong evidence that the government has none that will stand scrutiny.

A PEACEFUL MEETING.

Nearly sixty-three years ago President Santa Ana of Mexico and Gen. Zachary Taylor, who was afterwards—largely because of the meeting—a president of the United States, met at Buena Vista. They had a discussion with the aid of infantry, cavalry, and artillery. Each did all he could to welcome the other with bloody hands to a "hospitable grave." Santa Ana, who had rashly accepted Gen. Taylor's invitation to "come and take him," withdrew hurriedly. Later in the war the Mexican president, if he had been on the field of battle, might have met Franklin Pierce and U. S. Grant, both of whom became presidents of the United States.

Those belligerent days are, happily, at an end. It is possible for the Mexican and American presidents to meet in peace and exchange effusive greetings. Probably that is all Presidents Taft and Diaz will do today. So, if imaginative correspondents should say that the private intertiew was devoted to something besides bows, handshakes, and compliments—to a discussion of Central American affairs, for instance—we need not believe them. It will be a purely formal affair, nothing like so exciting as the Buena Vista one, but much more pleasing to the friends of peace.

Begged Leave to Differ.

"It may be set down as an axiom," said the professor of moral philosophy, "that no permanent success can be built upon a false foundation."

"Pardon me, professor," objected the young woman with eyeglasses, "but I think it can."

"Will you be kind enough to give an instance?"

"Yes, sir; many a successful novel is built upon the fallacy that the course of true love never did run smooth."

Hard Lines.

Miss Flora McFlimsey was bewailing the circumstance that she had nothing to wear.

"Nothing that's fit to go out in, any way," she said. "I see by the printed proceedings of the dressmakers' convention that every blessed gown I have is hopelessly out of style!"

Despite the fact that Evanston was trimming its trees and shrubbery to make room for her hats she persisted in remaining indoors and reading French novels.

Benefit of the Doubt.

"Mr. Wiggins, I'd like to get a pound of cheese."

"What kind, sonny?"

"Why," said the little boy, hesitatingly, and not quite sure he remembered what his mother had told him to ask for, "I think they call it the—the Hercules county kind."

Whereupon the new salesman at the grocery store made a wild guess and weighed out a pound of Limburger.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

[Copyright: 1909: By the Brentwood company, all rights reserved.]

PRINCESS LOUISE of Belgium, the divorced wife of Prince Phillip of Saxe-Coburg, is once again before the public. Although her annuity from her former husband is impounded by her numerous creditors, and her father, King Leopold, refuses to make her any allowance as long as she declines to part from ex-Capt. Mattachich, she seems to find people who are willing to advance her money in the expectation of receiving a tenfold return for their investment when King Leopold dies.

For, according to Belgian law, his three daughters—namely: Louise, ex-Crown Princess Stephanie, and Princess Clementine—have each a right to a considerable portion of his fortune, which he cannot alienate from them. Of course, this law only affects that portion of his fortune which happens to be in Belgium (or in France, where the same law prevails), and does not cover any property that he may have in England.

That is why he is converting into cash all his art treasures and investing the proceeds in British securities, so as to place them beyond the reach of his daughters, whom he hates. Still his real estate holdings in Belgium are large and valuable and these will undoubtedly yield a handsome fortune to Princess Louise and to her sisters, when Leopold is gathered to his fathers.

Every now and then these speculators on the death of the Belgian king become afraid and leave Princess Louise in the lurch and within the last three years her baggage has been seized at Paris, at Aix-la-Chapelle, and at Berlin for the nonpayment of hotel bills; while at Aix-la-Chapelle matters reached such a stage that the local press actually called upon the city authorities to expel her, owing to the number of small shopkeepers with whom she had run up large bills and then declined to pay on the score of being without funds.

Now she seems to have found some new financial backer. For, to the amazement of everybody and to the dismay of the Austrian court, she arrived the other day at Vienna with Mattachich, a woman companion named Miss Olga Borner, a physician, Dr. Inhoffen, and a secretary or financial agent named Dorfler, together with four servants and a quantity of luggage, in three big touring automobiles. They staid for twenty-four hours at the Park hotel at Schoenbrunn, where the princess occupied the finest apartment in the house, on the first floor, and left on the following day for Pesth with the object, it is said, of purchasing an estate in Hungary, where the princess proposes to make her residence in future.

An accident to her automobile, which was wrecked by a collision just after leaving Vienna, attracted public attention to her presence in the Kaiserstadt, where she had not been seen by any one since her elopement with Mattachich years ago. Nor had she set foot on Austrian soil since her transfer from the sanitarium of Dr. Pierson at Koswig, near Dresden, to the lunatic asylum near Vienna, to which she had been committed as irresponsible, following the scandal of the acceptances to which the signature of Crown Princess Stephanie had been forged and which had been discounted for Princess Louise through Capt. Mattachich.

It was generally understood that the princess had been forbidden by the emperor to return to Austria, where Mattachich still figures as an ex-convict, and as having served three years of penal servitude after conviction on the charge of complicity in the matter of the forged acceptances. Under the circumstances the fact that the couple should not only have shown themselves at Vienna, but even should be contemplating making their home in the Hungarian portion of the dominions of Francis Joseph, excites a considerable amount of astonishment.

Lord Henry Scott's letter to the London Times in which he alleges that his grandfather, the fifth duke of Buccleuch, received only a few thousand pounds of compensation for having the access of his London mansion, Montagu house, to the Thames, cut off by the construction of the Thames embankment, recalls the fact that Montagu house is crown property; and also the extraordinary fashion in which that self-same duke secured from the crown the renewal of the lease of Montagu house in 1854 for another hundred years at a merely nominal sum. In that year Disraeli, who had not at that time been raised to the peerage as Lord Beaconsfield, attacked Gladstone, who was chancellor of the exchequer, for having granted the lease to the duke. Disraeli said that he felt so strongly that this crown property ought not to be alienated at any price that he had when in office as chancellor of the exchequer refused to sign the lease.

"I felt it my duty," said he, "to retain that site for the use of the public. But no sooner was I out of office than this decision was rescinded by Mr. Gladstone and this important and valuable site surrendered to the duke of Buccleuch."

Mr. Gladstone, who could not recollect signing any such lease, had the papers looked up, when, to the amazement of everybody it was found that the lease was signed, not by Gladstone, but by Disraeli himself. On the following night Disraeli apologized in the house of commons, stating that he had refused to sign the lease and that then when he was much hurried and pressed with business it was submitted to him by a colleague and that he signed the document without knowing what he was doing. That is the story of how the dukes of Buccleuch secured possession until the middle of the present century of one of the finest mansions and sites in London belonging to the crown.

I may add that the fifth duke was one of the bitterest opponents of the construction of the Thames embankment and that if he had had his way it would have stopped short several hundred yards distant from Montagu house and its road been diverted into Parliament street, instead of continuing, as it does today, along the river to Westminster bridge. Indeed, it was only through the outcry raised in the London Times that the scheme to turn aside this great thoroughfare in order to oblige the duke of Buccleuch was abandoned.

Frank Bibby, who has been entertaining King Edward at Mamore forest, in Inverness-shire, is the son and heir of James J. Bibby, who founded both the old Leyland line and the Bibby line of steamers and who was one of the largest shareholders in the White Star company. He left a fortune of about $10,000,000, most of which went to his eldest son, Frank Bibby, who married Miss Edith Stanley Clarke, eldest daughter of General Sir Stanley Clarke, the senior equerry of King Edward, clerk marshal, and also paymaster of the royal household. Mrs. Frank Bibby spent a couple of seasons in New York, prior to her marriage, as the guest of the late Mrs. Paran Stevens.

The Bibbys have a son and a daughter. They lost their eldest boy about five years ago. The youngster while out hunting with the North Shropshire hounds, of which his father is master, had dismounted to go to a hole from which a fox was being dug out. Returning to mount his pony he passed between two hunters from his father's stables, one of which struck out, kicking him in the chest and inflicting such injuries that he died a few hours later.

The king thoroughly enjoyed his visit at Mamore forest. For, having known his hostess from her earliest childhood and her husband long before his marriage, he felt more at home there, perhaps, than at most of the country houses at which he is in the habit of staying.

"THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1909.

George W. Hotchkiss of Evanston, secretary of the Illinois Lumbermen's association, is 73 years old today. Nearly sixty years ago he made the trip from New Haven, his birthplace, to California via Cape Horn, spending 154 days of his life in the going.

Charles E. Hewitt, secretary of the divinity school of the University of Chicago, is 73. He was reared a farmer's boy, taught school, and won a degree from the University of Rochester.

Allison De Forest Gardner of Rogers Park, long time president of the National Audit company, was born in New York state sixty-two years ago today. Monroe Collegiate institute, Elbridge, N. Y., is his alma mater.

Dr. John E. Owens of the Lexington hotel, born on a Maryland farm, graduated from Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, and a surgeon in the army in 1863, is 73.

J. N. Buchanan, well known real estate man, was born sixty years ago today at Adams and Dearborn streets, where the Bedford building now stands. His father came to Chicago in 1838 and his mother in 1842.

John V. Farwell Jr., treasurer of the John V. Farwell company, native of Chicago and graduate of Yale, is 31. He formerly was president of the Chicago Y. M. C. A.

When I am sick I lie abed
With two big pillows at my head,
And think how sad a thing is war,
That covers all the land with gore.

But sometimes for an hour or so
I watch my leaden soldiers go,
And then I want to get a gun
And kill some people just for fun.

A nicer toy I find a dove;
It makes me think of peace and love.
O, how can little children play
With leaden soldiers all the day?

MISS GUSTA WIND, professor of comparative art and literature in the University of Gutfland, writes: "What stung Sophocles to write the 'CEdipus'? The interurban quarrels of Athens and Sparta, sure. What stung Shakspeare? His indignation at Elizabeth for bestowing monopolies on her courtiers—'A Midsummer Night's Dream' is one long cry of rage. What stung Mozart to compose the "Marriage of Figaro"? The habit of the German princes of selling their subjects into foreign military service. What stung—— But I will put back the lid on the beehive. Suffice it to say that all great art rests directly on the quarrels and injustices of the passing day."

Dr. Dubbe Talks of Richard Strauss.

Prior to the symphony concert yesterday afternoon Mrs. Borem-Styffe gave a delightful atelier luncheon in her studio, "The Little Forge," in the Fine Arts building. Dr. Criticus Flub-Dubbe, in whose honor libations of oolong were poured, was in a communicative mood and related many anecdotes of Richard Strauss, with whom he had enjoyed a number of steinfests in the last two years.

Concerning "Till Eulenspiegel," on the bill for the opening concert, Dr. Dubbe mentioned that the composer had recently written into the score a quantity of tinware, to be upset by the trap player at an exciting moment in the composition, but he doubted whether Conductor Stock had received this interesting addition, which had caused much merriment in Vienna.

"Strauss is so melodiously cacophonous!" exclaimed Mrs. Fuller-Prunes.

"So much so," said Dr. Dubbe, "that although I am informed Chicago is as noisy as ever, I find myself resolving the uproar into Strauss symphonies and symphonic poems."

"I hope we are to have the pleasure of hearing about these later," said Mrs. Givu A. Payne. "Your lectures on diminished sevenths and perfect fourths were so perfect!"

"Herr Strauss," said the Doctor, "confided to me his intention to write a 'Chicago Symphony.' He took many notes while he was here. It will call for a tremendous orchestra and instruments which are still uninvented."

"The loop motif should be grand!" exclaimed Mrs. Borem-Styffe.

"O, Doctor!" cried Poeta Panta, "you promised us some musical pills. Have you anything for this afternoon's concert?"

Dr. Dubbe smilingly produced a little casket and distributed the contents among his enthusiastic admirers.

"This," said he, "is a Liszt pill. Swallow it just before the 'Orpheus' number and shut your eyes, and you will not need to read your program notes."

"Didn't Mr. Beecham, the London pill man, found an orchestra?" asked Miss Gay Votte.

"Commonly known as the Pillharmonic," replied Dr. Dubbe. "As for these Liszt tablets, which you are scrutinizing so curiously, have no fear of them; they are perfectly harmless, being compounded of the purest poppycock and Liszterine."

Whereupon the little party adjourned to the concert hall.

"WHERE ARE THE LEADERS?"

Bridgeport, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I have read THE TRIBUNE for twenty years and have never found in its pages in all that time, or those of any other paper, an editorial more deserving the commendation of its readers than that of Oct. 14 headed "Where Are the Leaders?" It should be clipped for every scrapbook and read and reread by every Chicago citizen.

When a newspaper power like THE TRIBUNE starts such a fanning of public opinion we may well look for a cyclone of civic righteousness to follow. These are the rumblings of a great moral earthquake that will surely strike Chicago soon.

Something is going to drop!

The vice rotted foundation upon which vile graft and greed have built their unholy structures are going to fall. I think our leaders, men like Wayman and Steward, Gunsaulus and Hirsch, need but to have their purposes strengthened by the hearty approval of a united citizenship and their deeds of leadership will startle the natives. No man cares to bunt a stone wall and receive for his pains the criticisms of a greeky and shrimp warm citizenship. Give him instead the glad hand of approval coming from a stirred public conscience and Chicago's leaders will make it famous as the best instead of the worst city in the world.

When THE TRIBUNE strikes such sledge hammer blows for leadership in an upright civic movement many will feel encouraged to strike also while the iron is hot and earn by united blows the city's redemption.

I look to see "the breath of public opinion" blow so mightily that this winter the dives and dens of vice and drunkenness will see the end of their crime stained days, and out of it all will come "comfort and beauty instead of sordidness and vice."

GET RID OF THE SALOONS.

Hamilton, Ill., Oct. 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In a speech W. J. Bryan said if "anything is good for the people we ought to keep it; if bad, we can and ought to get rid of it." He can't find a place on the map where they will vote for saloons because they are good for the people. Then think of a state debating a right for men to offer as much money as they please for a license to run saloons and the people by their votes a right to accept it. Is this in line with the principles of our government or the constitution of our fathers? Let us ask our states and nation to rule out all of that kind that protects the saloons, go out of partnership with the traffic, and let it stand out on its own merit. In this way we can and ought to get rid of the saloons and fill up their space with the spread of liberty, happy homes, intelligence, and good government. J. G. RATHBURN.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

"DIPLOMACY IN ITS SHIRT SLEEVES."

[New York Herald.]

The unfortunate controversy in connection with the recall of Mr. Crane as minister to China will afford some of our European critics an opportunity to revamp old jokes about American diplomacy in its shirt sleeves.

In the statement given to the press by Secretary Knox announcing that he had informed Mr. Crane that his resignation would be accepted the reason for this action is recited.

Mr. Crane makes an acrid reply, denying that he has made any mistake, and incidentally pointing to the fact that alleged violation of the "open door" principle was discussed in a special cable dispatch to the Herald from Tokio nearly three weeks before the publication in a western newspaper ascribed to his alleged indiscretion.

The Herald's special cable from Tokio reported Japan as then protesting that the "open door" principle was not being violated. Similar assurances, by the way, are now being iterated to the American representative in Tokio on the eve of Prince Ito's departure for Manchuria. He will start at once, and will spend a month making a tour of that province. At a dinner given to representatives of the press on Monday Prince Ito, although president of the privy council, declared that the tour was undertaken on his own initiative and has no political significance.

In view of the international nature of the pledges and agreements to insure equal opportunity and "the open door" in China, it is highly improbable that the state department in any event would make representations to China or Japan without consultation and cooperation with the interested powers. Hence the impression conveyed by Mr. Crane was erroneous. Whatever be the measure of his indiscretions, it is certain that the unfortunate controversy of which he has become the center has impaired his usefulness to such an extent that his resignation should be accepted.

MINISTER CRANE'S RETIREMENT.

[Springfield, Mass., Republican.]

Minister Crane's retirement from the diplomatic service, sensational as the circumstances are, could not have been avoided after all the publicity at home and abroad that his case has received. Secretary Knox has shown wisdom and firmness in insisting upon Mr. Crane's resignation, and the Chicago diplomatist only adds to his original diplomatic offenses by the imbittered statement he has issued to the public. In these remarks of his concerning the state department and President Taft's personal confidences, Mr. Crane has only damaged his country's diplomatic service in the eyes of the world. If any more evidence of his unfitness for high diplomatic station were needed it would be supplied by his gross violation of the rule that the president's confidential talk should never be quoted in the public prints, save with the president's express consent. Very likely the president gave Minister Crane the impression that he was personally much interested in the Chinese mission, but the minister seems to have interpreted the president too literally in the matter of agitating public opinion on the oriental situation. Secretary Knox doubtless had reasons for demanding Mr. Crane's resignation other than the indiscretion of inspiring a newspaper concerning an American protest against the Chinese-Japanese agreement, but they cannot all be emphasized without further embarrassment to the government. The episode shows finally that Secretary Knox proposes to control the members of the diplomatic corps so long as he heads the state department, and the affair may also remind the president that a secretary of state worth his salt should be left in such complete control of the country's foreign relations that no minister or ambassador would make the mistake of assuming that he was responsible directly to the president rather than to the secretary.

THE NEW SPIRIT AS SHOWN BY CHICAGO.

[Grand Rapids, Mich., Press.]

The spirit of civic righteousness, the newly aroused force which is manifesting itself in various ways and in various places, is now strongly in evidence in Chicago. Recent exposures of one of those partnerships so frequent in cities between the degraded elements and men in official station stirred the city mightily. There had been such exposures before. The conditions revealed were accepted as a matter of course. Corruption and vice were thought to be unescapable evils. This time, however, a different feeling is manifested. The Chicago public not only demands the vigorous prosecution of the guilty officials but the complete eradication of the evil itself. There is a new spirit abroad. It is no longer believed that the conditions complained of are unescapable, but a firm determination exists to make the city clean.

This newly aroused spirit is shown also in other directions. The Chicago women's clubs have joined to eliminate the smoke nuisance. There is a growing sentiment to make the city clean not only morally but physically. Clean streets, clean air, clean billboards are the watchwords, and the people are entering into the movement with an enthusiasm and determination which bespeak success.

SEES WONDERFUL VALLEY

Few People Live in Garden Spot Which Would Support Half a Million.

Sixty-second Installment of a Diary of a 47,000 Mile Journey.

BY GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D.

[Copyright: 1909: By the Tribune Company.]

TUESDAY.—We are up early enough and have our horses saddled even before the sun or the dawn, for it is still dark when we ride down the silent street to Ebersole's house. He is not up, though he promised to have coffee prepared and be ready to start to Echague with us at 4:30. Well, at 5:30 we leave this moldering, mildewing barrio of Carig, with its 3,000 sleepy souls, and set out for the twelve mile ride to Echague, Ebersole leading the way.

The first six miles were indescribable. Without Ebersole I doubt if we would have made it in six hours. Thus, we would come to six foot wide mud and water hole a hundred yards long. Through this at just one certain place it would be only four feet deep, but a foot to either side you sink or swim. "An American not long ago," says Ebersole, "riding along here, got off this invisible trail—horse mired in mud up to his eyes. He shot the horse and crawled out."

And then we strike ground a little higher, sand and mud only a half foot deep. It seems so good that I test my nag and make the last six miles into Echague in less than fifty minutes—the record, they say. Cole and Ebersole got in thirty minutes later.

At Echague I say good-by to horseflesh. This is the end of the hike, of which I have had about 200 miles. It is a river and sea proposition from now on.

Wheat Cakes Recall Home.

Echague looks big and prosperous after spending a siesta in Cordon and a night in Carig,—it is neither, but it boasts of a constabulary in charge of a native lieutenant and it glories in an American school teacher, and at Mr. Smith's that morning there were just eight Americans for breakfast, and we had wheat cakes and maple sirup; of course we had chicken and rice and eggs, but they did not count.

And Mr. Smith was late to school, for even one had much to do, and he wanted Mr. Smith to do it, and it was done.

By 4 o'clock in the afternoon it is all arranged. The stuff we are to send Jones is packed and men engaged to take it up the river to his far distant mountain home, and our clothes are dried out, and we have had a bath and we are down by the side of the Cagayan river, broad and deep, and into a baranquilla we pile our saddles, bridles, boxes, and bags, and in front are two native Cagayanes, paddlers, and behind is a steersman and a soldier boy servant, and we get in and Capt. Bowers gets in and Lieut. Scheule gets in and we push off, and down the river we go, and behind us follows another baranquilla with soldiers and their wives. And the whole show is in charge of Capt. Bowers, whose guests we are, and our destination is Ilagan, forty miles down the river.

Carabao Pull in Water.

It is close quarters, for a baranquilla is not a ship, but a small canoe of rough hewn planks sewn together, and over the center is a six foot long split bamboo frame with a canvas cover, and there were eight of us in all and much impedimenta, and we had to keep an open space in the bamboo flooring to bail the water out.

Now, the river may be lovely just below Echague, and probably is, but after I had watched some carabao swim the river, dragging sled like affairs after them, on which people sat, I lost all interest in the river and its frequent rapids down which we glided at an exhilarating pace and was content to lie back on my blanket and listen to Capt. Bowers tell of his recent trip into the mountains and of his five days' visit with Dr. Jones. Jones, by the way, has made good, and everywhere has left a host of friends behind him. Would that I could have gone on up to him, but the captain says that it is more than likely that it would be from one to two months before I could get back over the rivers, even if we could get up them at all, and in the event of the best of luck I could not get to Aparri in time to get the steamship for Manila.

Just at dark we disembark at the upper edge of the barrio of Camacaman, where the river makes a mighty curve around the town, and send the boat on around. Darkness overtakes us and we have difficulty in finding the house of the secretary, only succeeding after we have secured a guide. By 9 o'clock our dinner is ready and now at 10 we are ready to turn in on our blankets, which are spread on the floor upon palm fiber mats; but a hard floor bed has long ceased to have any terrors for me. Outside the night is splendid in its glory—a tiny moon in the west, the Pleiades just rising in the east.

See Victim of Alligator.

WEDNESDAY—We are up at 4 o'clock, with the resplendent stars in the clear sky. With the dawn we are off down the broad river, steadily increasing in depth, breadth, and majesty as we proceed. Behind us, up the river, is the vast amphitheater of mountains forming the east and west boundaries of the valley, and to the south the broken ranges with a low gap in the center, where and through which the Cagayan rises and finds its way out to the broad valley. Just below the town we find three canoes poling back to town with the body of a man killed and partly eaten by a cayman (alligator) last night. We decide we will postpone our river bath.

And so we glide along all day till 10 o'clock at night, when we arrive in Ilagan, halting by the shore to build a fire and make coffee at 9 o'clock and at 2. We pass innumerable river craft, the small banquillas, the big, long, covered barangayans, on which people, pigs, chickens, and dogs are born and spend their mortal day, the last rites for all being held aboard.

These big, ungainly looking craft often carry a sail and are used for general freight and especially to transport tobacco down the river to Lalloc, where it goes on to Manila in steamers. They carry six oarsmen and a steersman. In going up stream they must pole, walking along a bamboo platform built out on each side of the boat. The helmsman's house is above the cogon grass curved roof of the boat, from which place of vantage he surveys the river.

Few People in Rich Valley.

We pass one town after another. None of them is of any great size and all of mean mien, straggling along the river front. Often we see the people crossing the river by carabao and rafts, a laborious operation. In spite of the fearful ravages of rinderpest, carabao seem plentiful, more of them than of any other class of native animals, for the valley is but thinly populated, perhaps 50,000. It would easily support half a million. The upper end of it is largely Ilocano, who have come over from the west coast in comparatively recent times.

The river itself winds and twists and turns, now broad and sluggish, now narrow and swift. The rapids decrease in number as we descend. The banks are now high, now low, generally low, and never of great height. Often the shore is low and miles in width, covered with rank cogon grass. We see little timber and no forests. The far away mountains to the east and west are nearly always in sight.

We encounter a goodly crowd of Americans at Ilagan, and by the time we have had supper and smoke it is midnight. We are in the house of Capt. Bowers and Lieut. Allen and there are awaiting us good clean cots.

Ilagan Town of 20,000.

THURSDAY—After a leisurely scrub in a most primitive bathhouse at the rear of the house, having waited for a boy to carry up water from the river, and after a leisurely lunch, we take steps to hire a barangayan to take us on to Tuguegarao, sixty miles down the river. Capt. Bowers accompanied me to the office of the Compañia General de Tabacas Filipinas, better known as the Tabacalera company, where, to our great surprise and delight, the agent informed me that the little river sternwheeler Magat would soon be in and would leave at once for Lalloc, within twelve miles of Aparri, on the mouth of the river by the sea. This was great good news, and we at once returned to pack our truck and be prepared to leave on a moment's notice.

Ilagan, with its 20,000 population, has the honor to possess a constabulary with a captain and lieutenant, Americans, in charge; an American postmaster and an American school teacher, and it seems to be a sort of headquarters for Americans in the valley. Surely this is honor enough for any inland city. But it wears the same lackadaisical air which one comes to expect of a Christian Filipino town, with neither pride nor shame.

Still, it is the capital of the great tobacco growing province of Isabela and boasts of a governor, Sr. Claverall, to whom I had a letter, but neither time nor opportunity to present it. The business of the city seems to be in the hands of the Chinese, who take to the general stores of these towns as a duck does to water, and just as successfully.

Voyage Down River Renewed.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon we bid a most reluctant farewell to our friends and are rowed aboard the Tabacalera company's trim little boat and are at once off down the river, with three big steel barges of tobacco in tow. The Magat is a comfortable little river boat, with a commodious cabin and a dark, silent, Spanish captain. Time passes rapidly and at dark we tie up for the night at Tuguegarao, the largest city on the river, with 5,000 souls and a big church, the tall tower of which we could see from afar. We dine well at 8 and the day is done. We could not go up to the town if we wanted to; it is far away and the trail is muddy, fit only for sleds and carabao.

FRIDAY—The journey from Tuguegarao to Lalloc is made between the hours of 1 and 4, there being nothing to break the calm peace of the day except a young two hours' bagio, when it blew the river into a choppy sea and made the banquilas and barangayans seek the shelter of the shore. Here at Lalloc the Magat has finished its journey and is to start up the river again in the morning, and there are no Americans here, nor hotel, and so we, reluctantly, cast ourselves on the mercies of Sr. Macias, the agent of a great plant of the Tabacalera company.

He rises to the occasion, says his house is ours, and bids us bring up our baggage, which we do, and here we are in an immense substantial building of heavy hardwood timbers, with massive floors, walls, and ceilings. The lower floor is of brick and stone, with thick walls, and evidently of considerable age, and is used as a store and for offices. We are given a great double room of enormous size at the west end of the house, with three large windows overlooking the river and a balcony overlooking the big, long, white painted warehouses, etc., of the company's plant.

WOMEN ADVISED TO FOLLOW ADVICE OF SAMUEL ADAMS.

Pastor Tells Them to Study Conditions in Each State, Then Demand Aid of Men.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—The Rev. Mrs. Georgia Ferguson, English by birth and associate pastor of the People's church here, declared at a meeting of the District Woman's Suffrage association that the women of the United States could obtain suffrage if they would pursue the course suggested by Samuel Adams before the revolutionary congress—namely: to elect committees to study the conditions in each state, then call the committees together and adopt a scientific platform.

If this were done, she said, any of the larger men's political parties would be glad to ally itself with the new party to obtain the end for which it was working.

Woman Drawn as Juror.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 15.—Los Angeles unwittingly may find itself in the vanguard of the suffragette movement next Monday when the name of Johanna Engleman of Santa Monica is called in the Superior court as the first woman juror ever summoned in California. Mrs. Engleman is the widow of the captain of an Alaskan vessel. She is a taxpayer. Her name in some way got into the jury box and recently was drawn.

Mrs. Engleman is not a woman suffragist, but she says she feels qualified to act as a juror. She is quoted as saying that she could not send a man to prison for stealing a loaf of bread and would probably hesitate about voting to hang a man.

O'LAUGHLIN TO TELL WOMEN WHAT HE THINKS OF SMOKE.

Washington Correspondent of "The Tribune" Will Address Club Mass-meeting.

John Callan O'Laughlin, Washington correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, who has been giving his impressions of Chicago, will tell the members of the Chicago Woman's club what he thinks of the smoke nuisance at a massmeeting which will be held at the clubrooms tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The massmeeting has been called as a part of the general movement looking toward the electrification of the city terminals of all railroads within the city.

It is proposed to cooperate with the city officials in any steps they may take toward such improvement. A general invitation to men and women interested in the anti-smoke movement to attend this massmeeting has been issued.

The other speakers on the program are Mrs. Edward Upton, president of the Chicago Woman's club; Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Ald. Milton J. Foreman, Ald. Nicholas R. Finn, Ald. B. W. Snow, Smoke Inspector Paul Bird, Mrs. John O'Connor, and Thomas D. Knight.

IN THE SOCIETY WORLD.

Lake Forest gives the first of the debutantes today in Miss Katherine Farwell and Miss Julia Thompson. Miss Farwell, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Farwell Jr., will be presented during the afternoon at the family residence, Ardleigh. Miss Fanny West, Miss Isabel McGenniss, Miss Winifred Jones, Miss Alice Hubbard, Miss Helen Viles, Miss Isabelle McBirney, Miss Marion Butler, and Miss Margaret Herrick will assist, and in the evening a farmers' dance will be given at the Winter club for these young women and a company of their friends.

Miss Thompson makes her bow at the Seven Cedars, the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Siason Thompson. The same company of young women who will assist Miss Farwell will appear at intervals at the Thompson house as assistants and in addition there will be Miss Madeline Edison of Orange, N. J., Miss Marion Curtiss and Miss Helen Bowen.

Dr. and Mrs. Harry Spenser-Brown of 38 East Schiller street will present their daughter, Miss Dorothy Spenser-Brown in November, the date not yet having been fixed. Miss Spenser-Brown, who was to have been presented last year on her return from Europe, but was prevented by the serious illness of her mother, has lived the greater part of her life in Paris, where she was introduced to French society by her sister, the Countess Edouard de Cramedo.

Miss Helen Judah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Noble B. Judah, 2701 Prairie avenue, will be presented to society on Saturday, Nov. 13, at a tea to be given by her aunt, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, 2709 Prairie avenue. At the same time Mrs. Hutchinson will present to Chicago two other nieces, Miss Frieda Baumann of New York and Miss Marguerite Clark. Mrs. Walter Brewster will give a tea on Tuesday for Miss Judah.

Mrs. Frederick T. West of East Division street will give a tea on Nov. 27 to present Miss Fanny West. Mrs. West and Miss West have just returned from Pittsfield, Mass., where they have a summer home.

Mrs. Grace Hall Hemingway of 600 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park, will be hostess at a musical and afternoon tea today in honor of Miss Florence Pettibone of Austin, whose marriage to George B. Gannett of St. Louis will take place Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, at the First Baptist church of Austin.

Miss Carolyn Matthes will entertain in honor of Miss Pettibone Monday afternoon and on Tuesday Miss Lucy Miller and Miss Hazel Ballard will give a joint affair. Miss Viola Smith of Austin will entertain Wednesday afternoon, and on Friday Miss Katherine Beegle will give a handkerchief party.

Cards are out for the wedding of Miss Louise Dickinson Bushnell, daughter of Mrs. L. Stearns Bushnell, 6320 Yale avenue, and Fred Stearns, which is to take place Saturday evening, Oct. 23, at the Bushnell residence. The bride's sister, Miss Anna Pearl Bushnell will be the maid of honor and the ribbons will be stretched by the bride's niece, Bonnie Farnham, and her nephew, Alonzo Stearns Farnham. The bride will be given in marriage by her brother, George Stearns Bushnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Will M. Hight, 934 Lakeside place, have returned from Louisville, Ky., where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brown of Hill Top farm.

Mrs. Dyke Williams of Galesburg, formerly of Kenwood, is spending October with Mrs. Frank B. Stone, 4940 Woodlawn avenue.

The Hinsdale Golf club will give a harvest home benefit dance on the evening of Saturday, Oct. 23, the proceeds of which will be used to furnish the new clubhouse. Special trains have been arranged to take the people from Chicago and bring them back after the dance. The decorations will be in keeping with the harvest season.

John J. Bellman and his wife will give a reception at their residence, 4928 St. Lawrence avenue, on Dec. 5, in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Lorraine Bellman, to Harry Goldstein.

Meetings and Entertainments.

THE IRISH FELLOWSHIP CLUB will meet this noon for the weekly luncheon in the east room of the La Salle hotel. Congressman Martin B. Madden will speak on "The Deep Waterway from the Lakes to the Gulf." John Callan O'Laughlin of "The Tribune" also will speak.

THE SUNDAY EVENING CLUB will meet tomorrow evening at Orchestra hall. Bishop Vincent will speak on "The Uncomfortable Friend."

THE WOODLAWN WOMAN'S CLUB will observe Federation day next Tuesday. City Forester Frost will speak on "Better Trees for City Streets," and Mrs. P. S. Peterson will discuss "Forestry."

THE ADVANCED THOUGHT LECTURE CLUB will meet this afternoon at 2:30 in the blue parlor of the Handel Hall building, 40 Randolph street. Dr. Julia Seaton Sears, president of the New Thought church of New York, will speak on "The Secret of Healing."

THE WAUBANSEH CLUB will entertain Tuesday evening, Oct. 26, at the clubhouse, 4045 Drexel boulevard.

THE ACTORS' CHURCH ALLIANCE COUNCIL will hold a business meeting today at 4 p. m. in the south parlor of the Auditorium.

CAN'T WAIT FOR "APPLE DAY," SO CELEBRATE IN ADVANCE.

Chicago Press League Members Announce Entertainment for Today—Organizations Plan Programs.

"National Apple day," which really comes next Tuesday, will be celebrated a few days in advance by the Chicago Press league, whose members will meet this noon in the gold room of the Congress hotel for an apple dinner.

All of the speakers are officers of woman's clubs in Chicago, among them Mrs. William S. Holabird, Mrs. John F. Thompson, Miss Meta Welles, Mrs. D. Harry Hammer, Mrs. James Madison Hunter, Mrs. Mary M. Parker, Miss Florence Austin, and Dr. Julia Holmes Smith. Mrs. F. K. Bowes will be toastmaster.

Guests of honor for the day will be Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, Mrs. William Lorimer, Mrs. Charles S. Deneen, Miss Helen Cannon, Mrs. Mary K. Kront, and Mrs. Frances E. Everett.

COMMEND TAG DAY TO HELP CHILDREN

Men of Advisory Board, Including Mayor, Issue Appeal to Public.

ALL GOES TO CHARITY.

Net Proceeds Greater than from Any Other Scheme of Collection.

Tag day is commended to the people of Chicago as a most worthy charitable undertaking by the advisory board of men of the Chicago Children's Benefit league in a bulletin issued yesterday. Mayor Busse, as a member of the board, is one of the signers. The bulletin is an appeal to the people of the city to give cheerfully to the women "taggers" that the lives of poor children may be made happier.

The statement of the committee follows:

"With tag day coming Oct. 19, the minds of Chicago men and women should be fixed upon the needy children of the city who are to benefit by the collections made on that day. The women of Chicago have been planning for weeks for the day, and now the advisory board of men of the Chicago Children's Benefit league desires to say a few words to the people of Chicago in regard to that work.

Proceeds All for Charity.

"To those who observed the results of tag day last year perhaps no commendation is needed. Nothing better than tag day could be devised as a way of raising funds. This item commends itself to all. The expenses of tag day are almost nothing when compared to those entailed by fairs, bazaars, or entertainments. The money will go directly to the charities rather than for decorations or entertainers.

"Another strong feature is the fact that so many people who ordinarily give nothing to the city's charities will contribute. Any sum of money, even to 1 cent, will buy a tag on that day.

"There are hundreds of little children in Chicago who will have life made easier and brighter for them by the money received on tag day. Tag day might therefore as appropriately be called children's day. It should be a day when all the city turns its thought upon the poor children within its gates, and by that sympathy which makes all the world akin the great city should become as one family, planning to care for those not able yet to care for themselves.

"FRANK A. CHANDALL, Chairman.
"C. P. ANDERSON,
"FRED A. BUSSE,
"CHARLES ALLING JR.,
"JAMES NEVINS HYDE,
"ARTHUR R. REYNOLDS."

Hope to Surpass Former Record.

It is the purpose of the women in charge of the tag day campaign to surpass the record of last year. The campaign will be conducted upon similar lines. Workers, who will be recognized by official badges, will be stationed at the entrances of the city hall, county building, hotels, and principal business blocks to receive the voluntary contributions from every person who appears.

Their efforts will be to let no man escape without wearing the emblem which indicates that he has added his mite to the charity fund.

Cubs Defeat Sox in Final Game for City Baseball Title, 1 to 0.

BROWN'S PITCHING WINS CUBS TITLE

Blanks Sox, 1 to 0, Allowing Only One Hit and Outtwirling "Doc" White.

SHECKARD IN THE PINCH.

Makes First Single Against Sullivans in Eleven Games and Drives In Lonesome Run.

White Sox who did see first alive, and just as Brown seemed about to complete the game with remarkable ease and certainty and with a practically unblemished record he lost in the ninth inning the magnificent control which had made the visiting team helpless before him all the way. Following one out in that round Brown issued two passes in spite of apparently using every effort to control his wavering delivery. Even Manager Chance was worried for a few minutes, and with some cause, for the fan does not live who had seen Brownie blow up in a ninth inning pinch. Nor did he blow this time.

After another minute of uncertainty and of frantic, desperate rooting by the Sox fans, Brown steadied, regained command of the situation, and forced Isbell to hit the ball. It rolled to Evers, who handled it for the second out, but it advanced the two pass holders to third and second bases respectively and put them where one clean single would turn victory into defeat, and defeat into victory.

Cole Unable to Deliver.

Into this pinch stepped Cole, the youngest, most inexperienced man in the fray, with the issue hanging by one thread, and that thread insecurely glued to the end of his own bat. On that bat depended the result of the game, and not only that, but it might mean the difference between a share of the winning and a share of the losers' end of the $23,000 purse for which they were battling. On his efforts rested the decision of that game, the last chance for the championship of Chicago and the last opportunity to pocket a $700 bit instead of one of $400 odd. Opposed to this youngster of less than half a year's seasoning in the majors was a veteran twirler who had faced that situation more times than he could remember, backed by a corps of sturdy veterans who had helped him stave off more impending defeats than they ever saw him succumb to.

And if the recruit was conscious of the weight resting upon him, or of the tremendous odds against him, if he was nervous, and qualmy, and shaky at the knees, he certainly did not show it. He swung and missed one of Brown's most telling curves, then let go by a fast one close in, designed to get his nerve if possible. The next ball pitched he met, but not squarely. Skill, years, and experience triumphed over pluck, youth, and inexperience. The ball hopped only a few yards away in front of the plate, within easy reach of Mordecai of the tribe of Brown. It was only a matter of form to grab it and toss it to the waiting Chance, completing the cinch and sending home the small band of loyal rooters who had been waiting for months for just that opportunity to let loose a real yell.

Sheckard Breaks His Hoodoo.

There were other features than that finish. There was the breaking of Sheckard's hoodoo when he made the first hit he ever made in his life off a White Sox pitcher. There was the added glory attached to Sheckard's hit that he pounded out his only one in eleven games with Comiskey's men right where it would mean the most. For he delivered it in the happy third inning with two men out and Brown on second base within scoring distance.

There was a stop and throw by Joe Tinker which robbed Dave Altizer of as clean a hit as one often sees stolen and it happened in the sixth inning. That race back to the grass and that long rifle shot throw to beat one of the fastest of the Sox runners was all that kept the hits down to one, but as there were two out in that round already it meant no disaster if the play had been missed.

There was Dougherty's catch of a long fly from Hofman in the second inning right at the edge of the circus seats which were far from being needed to hold yesterday's brave rooters. And there was Payne's whip to third which nailed Joe Tinker's steal after he had gained a terrific lead and seemed surely safe. That throw was all that kept the Cubs' third inning rally from becoming almost a rout for the Sox, as it preceded three of the hits made in that session and staved off more runs.

Manager Sullivan presented a new lineup as well as a new pitcher for the final stand. Tannehill, who might have duplicated Sheckard's feat of getting a hit if he had remained in the game, was displaced from third by moving Purtell over there and sending Atz to second base. Dougherty was back, after missing most of the previous game for kicking. The Cubs were the same old team.

Weather Raw and Gloomy.

The weather was raw and more gloomy than that of the day before. Not a ray of sunshine warmed the faces of the victors or cheered the hearts of the losers all day long. Under the circumstances it was with some surprise, but with joy that the fans saw Doc White assigned to the task of wrestling with Brown. A great battle resulted, and it was decided without a fluke of any kind, the first one of the series in which victory or defeat might not have been reversed with this or that fault of a contender removed from the score.

For two innings there was scarcely a break in the regularity of the outs nor anything to choose between the rivals. White gave his only pass to Chance with no one out in the second inning, but the manager was nailed stealing second despite a whirlwind start and a bruising finish which nearly retired Fred Parent from the game.

The Sox were blanked helplessly again in the third, but not so the Cubs. Tinker started the second half with the first hit of the game. It was only a little scratch toward third which Purtell, limping pronouncedly, failed to get to in time, but it was a big hit at that. Moran bunted perfectly, advancing the actor man to second. With Brown up, Joe thought to steal third and score from there on a fly. But Payne nipped his well laid plan in the bud by a brilliant throw, with equally brilliant help from Purtell.

Brown Makes Only Run.

Then Brown laid the foundation for his triumph by poling a low fly just out of Isbell's reach back of first. Evers caught a fast ball squarely and lined it safely to center, but Brown was stopped at second base. With two out, it looked neither threatening nor hopeful, according to the viewpoint. Sheckard was next at bat, and Jimmy had played ten full games against the White Stockings without delivering a hit of any kind. Possibly the long nursed grudge he has harbored against Sox pitchers for his failure to hit them overmastered for the moment his long lived hoodoo. Possibly he had been saving his powder all these years for just that opportunity to arrive.

Whatever the explanation, he surely delivered right there a fast, sharp grounder well out of reach of either Purtell or Parent, yet not fast enough to reach Dougherty in time for him to throw Brown out at the plate. The three fingered one paused not at third, but raced all the way home with the run that clinched his game, as events proved. So well timed was the hit that Evers raced to third on it ahead of Dougherty's throw and Sheckard reached second on that play. But White stopped them there, Schulte being the third out.

That one run didn't look so big at the time, but as Brown continued mowing down White Sox and as White resumed his habit of killing Cubs with precision the run grew larger and larger until it meant a game and a pennant.

Not until the fifth inning did Brown let an opponent to first. Just as they were beginning to notice the fact Parent broke up the combination with a clean single to center. It was the first and last hit off Brown and Parent was the only living Sox on first base until the ninth. What happened there and how Brown had to pitch his best to hold the hard earned victory need not be retold here.

Struck out—By Brown, Isbell, Parent, Altizer, Cole, Dougherty, Atz (2), White; by White, Sheckard (2), Brown (2), Moran. Left on bases—White Sox, 3; Cubs, 5. Time—1:33. Umpires—O'Day and Sheridan.

DETAILS OF THE GAME.

First Inning.

WHITE SOX—Altizer raised a high fly to Steinfeldt. Isbell struck out accidentally, the third strike being a foul tip which grazed his bat as he pulled away, and stuck in Moran's mitt. Cole grounded out, Steinfeldt to Chance. No runs.

CUBS—Evers hit a grounder to Isbell, who retired him without assistance. Sheckard struck out, White pitching him nothing but wide curves. Schulte lifted a long fly to Cole. No runs.

Second Inning.

WHITE SOX—Dougherty hit a bounder to Evers, who threw him out to Chance. Purtell was thrown out at first, Steinfeldt to Chance. Parent struck out. No runs.

CUBS—Chance took his base on balls, being the first player to reach first on either side. In an attempted hit and run play Steinfeldt missed a low pitch and Payne threw to Parent, retiring Chance at second. Chance slid into Parent hard and the shortstop took a few minutes' time rubbing a bruised ankle. Steinfeldt hit to Purtell and was thrown out to Isbell. Hofman hit a long fly to left and Dougherty ran back to the edge of the empty circus seats and caught it. No runs.

Third Inning.

WHITE SOX—Atz raised a fly to Schulte. Payne hit a high bounder over Brown's head, but the pitcher blocked it with one hand and threw the runner out to Chance. White was thrown out, Evers to Chance. No runs.

CUBS—Tinker hit a slow one toward third and beat Purtell's throw to first base, netting him a single. Moran sacrificed, White to Isbell, putting Tinker on second. He tried to steal third from a flying start, but Payne by a perfect throw to Purtell retired him by a close margin. Brown hit a low fly over Isbell's head for a single. Evers singled straight through to center and Cole held Brown on second. Sheckard drove a single between short and third, scoring Brown. Evers reached third on the hit and Sheckard went to second on Dougherty's throw to Purtell. Schulte was thrown out, Parent to Isbell. One run.

Fourth Inning.

WHITE SOX—Altizer struck out. Isbell hit an easy grounder to Chance, who made the out unassisted. Cole struck out. No runs.

CUBS—Chance bunted a slow curve to the third base side of White and beat the pitcher's throw to first, giving him a single. Steinfeldt sacrificed, White to Isbell, Chance reaching second safely. Hofman raised a long high fly to Altizer and Chance went to third on it ahead of Altizer's throw. Tinker hit a fly still farther into right and Altizer caught it. No runs.

Fifth Inning.

WHITE SOX—Dougherty was called out on strikes and kicked to Umpire O'Day, but not hard enough to draw another banishment. Purtell was thrown out at first, Steinfeldt to Chance. Parent lined a single over Brown's head into center, being the first Sox player to reach first in any way. He stole second, Moran helping out by dropping the pitched ball. Atz struck out. No runs.

CUBS—Moran grounded out, Parent to Isbell. Brown struck out. Evers hit to Atz and was thrown out to Isbell. No runs.

Sixth Inning.

WHITE SOX—Payne hit hard toward Evers, who smothered the ball and threw the runner out to Chance. White struck out. Altizer hit a fast bounder between third and short, but Tinker went back on the grass and made a brilliant stop and throw, which Chance scooped on the short bound, retiring Altizer. No runs.

CUBS—Sheckard hit an easy one and was thrown out, White to Isbell. Schulte bounded one to Purtell, who threw over Isbell's head to the stand, giving Schulte second base. Chance fouled out to Payne near the stand. Steinfeldt raised a fly to Altizer. No runs.

Seventh Inning.

WHITE SOX—Isbell flied out to Schulte. Cole hit a fly out to Hofman. Dougherty fouled out to Steinfeldt. No runs.

CUBS—Hofman was tossed out, White to Isbell. Tinker was retired in the same way. Moran struck out. No runs.

Eighth Inning.

WHITE SOX—Purtell flied out to Hofman. Parent grounded out, Evers to Chance. Atz struck out for the second time. No runs.

CUBS—Brown struck out for the second time. Evers singled into left and stole second. Sheckard struck out again. Schulte popped out to Purtell right over the foul line. No runs.

Ninth Inning.

WHITE SOX—Payne flied to Schulte. White was given his base on balls. Altizer also was given four bad balls, putting White on second. Isbell had two balls called before he hit to Evers and was thrown out to Chance, White going to third and Altizer to second on the play. Cole took a ball and a strike and then hit a bounder to Brown, who tossed him out to Chance. No runs.

STATEMENTS BY MANAGERS

MANAGER CHANCE, Cubs—I was confident we would win the series and the result justifies the confidence I had in the team. Brown pitched a fine game, and so did White.

MANAGER SULLIVAN, Sox—We are sorry we lost, but have only words of praise for the Cubs. Personally, I thought White could turn the trick today, and he certainly worked well, but the fates were against us.

NOTES OF THE EXIT.

That's all—except the barnstorming.

There is one consolation for the losers. The city championship remains in Chicago.

The majority of the players of both teams will remain in the city and vicinity to pick up a little more coin by exhibition games if the weather man relents.

Representative Barnard of the national commission completed his work last night and will return today to Cleveland to resume his interrupted duties of supervising the building of a new ball plant for the ex-Naps.

Isbell missed a chance to retire Hofman on an easy foul fly in the fourth. He ran far under the ball and couldn't get back, although White almost raced under it from the plate. Chance was on second at the time with one out, but it cost nothing, for Hofman flied to Dave.

Hot coffee replaced the things "right off the ice" which have been vended industriously all season, and the venders never had a better sale for iced drinks in the hottest day of July than they did yesterday for the brew that warmed, but did not necessarily cheer the imbiber.

Chance tried to make more trouble for White and more joy for the west side by dumping a safe bunt out of White's reach to start the Cubs' fourth. Steinfeldt sacrificed him to second, but Altizer dragged down the long wallops of Hofman and Tinker, letting Chance get no farther than third.

Two sweaters on as many Sox and one overcoat on one umpire took active part in the battle. There were more sweaters and more overcoats in the stands, but not half enough. There also were numerous hip pocket stoves, and still the day was one of chill, drear gloom for many, and all south side hopes were frozen solid.

A large bunch of white chrysanthemums was presented to Manager Chance before the game by Miss Lena Blake, a Chicago girl (who is appearing at a local theater). But as she was not attired in blue, and as it palpably was for advertising purposes only, Mrs. Manager felt no pangs of jealousy. She knew who would be the final custodian of the posies and she guessed right.

A foul tip from Steinfeldt's bat in the sixth inning broke up a three cornered money counting conference in which three "butchers" were engaged in front of the stand and right in line with the plate. The ball soaked one of them on the shin and he will remember it for days to come. They scurried out of range without spilling a cent from their frigid paws and everybody roared.

The two big ball parks were closed for the winter to baseball unless plans go through to arrange ball games at both yards for next Tuesday. The Cubs may play the Philadelphia Athletics and the Sox may play the All Nationals. These two teams will stop here on that day on their way to the Pacific coast under the respective chaperonage of Connie Mack and Banny Bancroft.

In the last four innings of the game only two men on each side reached first base. Purtell's wild throw let Schulte to second, with one out in the sixth and he finished there. Evers singled and stole with one out in the eighth and stuck there. From Parent's hit in the fifth until Payne flied out in the ninth not a Sox saw first. Then White and Altizer walked, but were stranded on the way home.

CUBS AND SOX PLAY SEMI-PROS.

City Champions Hook Up with West Ends Today and Sullivans Play Logan Squares.

Three baseball games are scheduled by the semi-pros for this afternoon, the windup of the Cubs-Sox series yesterday leaving the two barnstorming aggregations that will be formed from these clubs at liberty to take a fall out of the local Chicago league teams. The Cubs will play McNichols' West Ends at West End park with Overall and Moran in the points. Juul and Clemens will work for McNichols.

Callahan will have the White Sox as his opponents at Logan Square park, and "Cal" will use a youngster named Henning from Crown Point, Ind., on the slab with Nieman catching. The White Sox were too busy last night to figure on a lineup.

Gunther park will have the Leland Giants as the card with "Rube" Foster pitching a part of the game if the weather is good. Foster expects to pitch against the Cubs next week if he can show any form today. Ball probably will pitch the other half, while Trinkaus and Zangerle will work for the Gunthers. The games will start at 3 o'clock.

GRAND JURY INDICTS TY COBB.

Detroit Star Charged with Stabbing Night Watchman of Hotel Euclid, Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The grand jury returned a secret indictment today against Ty Cobb, the Detroit ball player, on a charge of stabbing to wound. Sheriff Hirstius was given instructions to get Cobb. Extradition proceedings will be necessary. Cobb is said to have stabbed George Stanfield, watchman at the Hotel Euclid in a fight while the Tigers were playing Cleveland. It is probable Cobb will be permitted to play in the final game of the world's series in Detroit Saturday.

DONNALLEY CUP TO SEEGER

Wins Memorial Trophy in Traffic Men's Golf Tourney.

WINDUP FOR ADVERTISERS.

McDonald Takes Honors at Chicago Golf Club; Ridgemoor Opens.

BY J. G. DAVIS.

C. S. Seeger of New York won the Donnalley memorial trophy, the main prize in the annual fall tournament of the National Freight Traffic Golf association, which ended yesterday at the Exmoor Country club.

In the final match he defeated C. J. Brister of Cincinnati, 6 and 4. Brister defeated C. M. Booth of Detroit, 1 up in 21 holes in the semi-finals, and Seeger won from Horace F. Smith of Nashville, 3 and 2.

The second flight prize, the F. A. Butterworth cup, was won by J. C. Lincoln of St. Louis, who defeated W. H. Kittermaster of Chicago, 2 up. In the semi-final Lincoln defeated D. F. Hurd, 1 up, and Kittermaster won from C. W. Walters by default.

The tournament concluded with a handicap in which C. M. Booth of Detroit won low gross with 87, S. Macdonald won first prize for low net with 77, and J. H. Harmon won the second low net prize with 78. Summary:

	G.	H.	N.

MacDonald Defeats Maxwell.

W. J. MacDonald carried off the honors of the last tournament of the season of the Advertising Golfers' Association of Chicago, held yesterday at the Chicago Golf club. After getting low score of 90 in the qualifying round he defeated Lee W. Maxwell in the final of the first flight, 2 and 1.

In the semi-final round Maxwell, who had a card of 94 in the medal round, defeated F. W. Butts, 5 and 3, while MacDonald won from R. D. Butler, 4 and 2. The qualifying round was played in conjunction with a team match in which F. A. Sperry led a team of nineteen players and defeated the side captained by J. Lenfesty.

In the semi-finals for the second flight F. A. Sperry defeated C. H. Farley, and F. W. Ellis defeated A. Wallace. In the final Ellis beat Sperry, 2 and 1.

Results in the other flight finals were as follows:

Third flight—C. C. Fogarty defeated M. B. Hilly.
Fourth flight—F. A. Whitten defeated Guy Pierce.
Fifth flight—F. W. Gaylord defeated W. Davidson.
Sixth flight—J. A. Ford defeated E. Wilson.
Seventh flight—W. J. Champion defeated E. P. Mallory.
Eighth flight—A. G. C. Hammesfahr defeated C. L. Barrett.
Ninth flight—A. Flood defeated Fred Mann.

Ridgemoor Opens Course.

The Ridgemoor Golf club, formerly the Irving club, will celebrate the opening of its new eighteen hole course with a big field day today, the main feature of which will be a professional match in which Dave McIntosh, Jim Herd, Jack Gatherum, and Dave Jolly will play in kilts. The members will compete in a number of special events and races are carded for the caddies.

Other events scheduled for this afternoon are:

Ravenswood—Play for class cups.
Calumet—Mixed foursome and finals in par contest for medals.
Windsor—Finals class handicap and first round for club championship.
Jackson Park—Bogey handicap.
Evanston—First medal round class handicap.
North Shore—Final play for Directors' cup.
Edgewater—Four ball foursome.

The annual meeting of the Elmhurst Golf club will be held this evening at the clubhouse. President F. B. Rockwood hopes for a large attendance and announces that some interesting reports will be presented, but there will be no "touching" speeches.

GLENWOOD BOWLERS SET MARK

Melrose Team Gets High Average of Season by Notching 1,039 1-3 in Series Against Webers.

Led by Joe Shaw, with an average of 226 1-3, the Melrose team of the Glenwood league last night set a new average for the season by notching 1,039 1-3 and secured the honor of rolling the first three four figure games. The Webers, who opposed the Melrose five, dropped all three games.

Ernest Peterson notched 215 2-3 and M. Feal 207 2-3. Humpf of the Gibbons in the Phœnix league notched 215 1-3. Schoening of the Petersons in the Lincoln league went at a 216 gait, and Nelson of the Zahn league counted 219 1-3.

National Treasurer Frank Pasdeloup of the American Bowling congress issued the yearbook of the A. B. C. yesterday, with the full report of the last tournament of the congress at Pittsburg. Last night's scores:

STARS IN FIFTEEN MILE RUN

Over Forty of Strongest Men in Local Race Today.

FAVORITE IS HARD TO PICK.

Entries of Pillivant, Hatch and Zahnen Make Outcome Uncertain.

Over forty runners will line up this afternoon at 2:30 at Fourteenth and Halsted streets to compete in the fifteen mile Marathon race to be given by the Opportunity club.

The field, while not large, contains the greatest number of best runners ever entered in one race. With Pillivant's recent victory over Hatch in the last I. A. C. Marathon, all the other cracks entered have set their eyes on No. 1, especially Hatch, who, even though this is not his favorite distance, will certainly push him hard in order to win. Amour of the I. A. C., who has been winning all the races at this distance recently, did not enter the twelve mile Marathon at Gaelic Park last Sunday so as to put all of his vim in this race.

Stars in the Field.

In fact, with such runners as these, together with Alban Zahnen, who won the twelve mile Marathon at Gaelic park last Sunday, Kessler, who led the last I. A. C. Marathon for twenty-two miles; Calvert Heath, who finished fourth in the I. A. C. Marathon; James C. Morelan of Irving Park, who finished third in the I. A. C. Marathon, and whose favorite distance is fifteen miles; Shallcross, who finished fourth in two indoor Marathons at Riverview rink last spring; and many others, the field will certainly be unique so far as class is concerned.

The runners will complete their eleventh mile at the starting point, and, after going west on Fourteenth to Ashland and north on Ashland to Jackson, returning the same way, will complete the race at the start. The course over which the race will be taken is Fourteenth street from Halsted to Ashland, Ashland from Fourteenth to Washington boulevard, Washington boulevard from Ashland to Kedzie, and Jackson boulevard from Halsted to Ashland.

"Prelim" for Youngsters.

There also will be a two mile preliminary for youngsters, starting at 2 o'clock. Chief among the entries are Hyman Lappin, Bill Becker, Jack Goldfarb, and Joe Patzelt Jr., who is the favorite.

The following are the runners entered:

1. L. J. Pillivant, Hamilton Park.
2. Sidney H. Hatch, Illinois Athletic club.
3. Alban Zahnen, unattached.
4. William Kessler, Illinois Athletic club.
5. John T. Amour, Illinois Athletic club.
6. Calvert Heath, Illinois Athletic club.
7. James C. Morelan, Irving A. C.
8. James Shallcross, Irving A. C.
9. Manuel Cooper, Opportunity club.
10. Edward L. Dreyer, Sleipner A. C.
11. —— Schleisgen, Irving A. C.
12. L. C. Larsen, Addison A. C.
13. E. C. Babcock, Y. M. C. A.
14. Hugo Fach, unattached.
15. Curtis Booth, unattached.
16. W. Lehmann, Lake Shore Park.
17. Irwin A. Fosse, unattached.
18. George Christensen, Y. M. S. V.
19. Julius Fishman, Hull House.
20. M. Lundgren, unattached.
21. L. Podrasnick, Illinois Marathon club.
22. Railton Stillwell, unattached.
23. Harry Kollitz, Hull House.
24. John Dahm, unattached.
25. John S. Duball, unattached.
26. Lloyd Midkiff, unattached.

31. J. S. McQueeny, Ogden Park A. A.
32. Robert H. Kloss, Ogden Park A. A.
33. Roy Blinkhorn, Morton.
34. August Putkonen, Finnish Athletic club.
35. Karl Brandes, A. R. and C. C.
36. Frank Mensing, unattached.
37. Frank Rauscher, unattached.
38. James McNeill, Mystic Pleasure club.
39. Henry Berger, Hamilton A. C.
40. Harry Stillwell, unattached.
41. George McElheny, Illinois Marathon club.
42. O. Lodal, Illinois Athletic club.

FOURTH SOCCER ROUND TODAY.

Cliftonvilles Meet Uniteds and Campbell Rovers Will Kick Against Hibernians.

The fourth round in the championship series of the Saturday Soccer league is carded for this afternoon, the Cliftonvilles meeting the Uniteds at Fifty-second street and Cotage Grove avenue, and the Campbell Rovers meeting the Hibernians at Peel park. The Pullman-Woodlawn match in the Association Football league of Chicago series will be played at Sixty-ninth and Green streets tomorrow instead of at Pullman as previously announced.

More Honors for "Cy" Young.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The biggest annual event down in Tuscarawas county is "Cy Young" day at Canal Dover tomorrow. This is a windup of the county fair and agriculturists will flock from all directions to see the great old man pitch. The proceeds will go toward sustaining a ward in the Canal Dover hospital, which will be known as the "Cy Young ward."

At the Billiard Rooms.

At Foley's—Jenkins [26] defeated Barnes [24] at three cushions, 26 to 11.

At Mussey's—Williams [48] defeated Anson [46] at three cushions, 48 to 32.

At Hicks—Chase [42] defeated Strong [50] at three cushions 42 to 45. Berry [50] defeated Dee [50], 50 to 47.

TIGERS WIN OUT; PIRATES LOSERS

No, Mr. Fan, This Didn't Happen in World's Series, but at Racetrack.

COLD WEATHER ON TAP.

Players May Have to Wait Until Monday to Decide the Championship.

BY R. W. LARDNER.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Detroit won this afternoon, but not on the ball field. It was over at the race track at Windsor and in the third race of the day. All the athletes of both the American and National league championship clubs were present and the Tigers cashed on their hunch. The Pittsburgers played Dixie Knight and didn't butt into the happy line after the race.

It certainly was a good thing that there was no game scheduled for today. The weather was bad enough for racing. It would have been terrible for baseball. There is little promise held out for tomorrow and it looks now as if the clubs would have to stick around here until Monday afternoon to finish the series. However, the commission has willed it that there will be a battle tomorrow if such a thing is possible.

Mullin Almost Sure to Pitch.

It is almost a cinch that George Mullin will have to work back again. It is much too cold for Bill Donovan tonight and there is no prospect for a change for the better. Both Tiger possibilities were out at the track this afternoon and Mullin seemed to enjoy himself, while Bill stood around and shivered. It wasn't his kind of a day. If there is a game tomorrow big George from Wabash will enjoy himself still more, for the bugs of Detroit are going to hand him a purse containing $1,000. Last Monday they gave him a roll of $125, but he has done a lot since then and Detroit is trying to show its appreciation.

Tom Jones and Charley Schmidt were visible hereabouts today. Schmidt said he would be in perfectly good shape to catch tomorrow's game if asked. Jones was not so hopeful. His doctor told him last night that he couldn't tell whether or not he would be able to work. Tom wants to play and will make strenuous objections if Jennings decides to keep him on the bench. He was out at practice this morning, but didn't participate in the doings, his head being too unsteady to permit him to labor.

Chance for McIntyre.

Followers of the Tigers do not believe Jones' absence will weaken the team, however. It is a safe bet that Babe Adams will pitch for Pittsburg tomorrow. Adams is a right hander, as, in fact, are all the Pittsburg pitchers but one, Lefty Leifield, and the presence of one more left handed batsman, Matty McIntyre, in the Detroit lineup ought not to hurt any.

This is not saying that Tom has been playing bad ball. On the contrary, he has gone well all through the series, well enough to make the Pittsburgers wish they had him in Abstein's place, for Bill has not played up to his National league race form at all. In fact, backers of the Pirates have criticised him severely today for failing to score yesterday on the play that knocked out Tom Jones. They claim he could have tallied easily if he had not stopped at third to look at the proceedings over at first base.

Sam Crawford is a sweet first baseman, as the saying goes, and he is sure to do all that is asked of him if he plays up to his gait. The batting order probably will be about the same even if Jones is out. Crawford will be kept in fourth position and McIntyre down in front of the catcher, where Tom Jones has been batting.

One peculiar thing came off today. The Pirates have been favorites ever since the season started. This afternoon Pittsburg supporters were looking for odds and got them. The Tigers were first choice and the price was 10 to 8. Detroit backed its team heavily at this price and this city will be a mournful place if the Michiganders are not world's champions.

The national commission today became the butt of much abuse. The sale of tickets was put into the hands of the body, having been taken away from the owners of the Detroit club. Detectives were stationed near the lines of ticket seekers and undesirables were removed forcibly from the column. Said undesirables thought they were getting a raw deal and told everybody about it. The truth was that the detectives were looking for scalpers and those whom they suspected were not allowed to purchase seats.

Great Crowd for Final Game.

If tomorrow should happen to be a pleasant day, Bennett park's attendance record is sure to be broken. There will be excursions from all points in the morning and the hotels here will be overtaxed as usual. If the Tigers should win, the streets would be so packed with crazy fans that it would be a hard matter to get about. A victory for Pittsburg would set the Pirate fans crazy, but the train for smoketown will leave here early in the evening, so there will not be much chance to mourn or celebrate around here.

The Pirates will disperse to their respective homes if they lose out. If not, they probably will go back to Pittsburg tomorrow night and from there set out on a barnstorming tour. The Tigers also have a moneymaking scheme of this kind in mind, but will pass it up unless they can cop the deciding game.

The series to date has busted all records as a money maker. Each club is sure to come in for $50,000. The commission will rake down about $20,000. The players are all through as far as the coin is concerned and they will have over $66,000 to split up. Yesterday's game was enough to make any one want to come back for the next one, as the start and finish were as exciting as one could ask for.

Neither club has played particularly good ball during the battle. The Pittsburg infield has failed to show much, Byrne having done better defensive work than any of his mates. Hans Wagner has performed brilliantly at times and crazily at other times. Byrne has been steady throughout. Miller hasn't batted close to his National league clip and Abstein cannot be commended for showing anything.

Tigers Off Game, Too.

The Tigers have been off their game too. During the last two days Bush has recovered his real form and his work has been of value to the rest of the club. Moriarity has been going well all the time and Delehanty has hit the ball often enough to prevent him from worrying about his mistakes in the field.

Everybody is planning to leave Detroit tomorrow night for east, west, north, and south. A continuation of today's weather would disappoint many bugs and probably would hold most of them over here for two days extra.

TOMMY LEACH NEXT BENEDICT.

Pirate Outfielder to Be Married During the Middle of November to Miss Sarah Darling.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Tommy Leach, outfielder of the Pirates, will be married during the middle of November to Sarah Darling of Emsworth, Allegheny county. Tommy is receiving congratulations from friends and fellow players. He says, although his wife may change her name, she still will be Sarah, darling. Miss Darling is at present living with her brother and mother on a farm about a mile and a half from Emsworth. It is said shortly after the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Leach will take up their abode on Tommy's farm near Emsworth, where he will recuperate from this season's strenuous labors to take up those of next season.

BIG RING BATTLE ON COAST TODAY

Differences Over Side Bet Settled and Johnson and Ketchel Will Fight.

COFFROTH WINS A POINT.

Promoter Ends Argument Over $5,000 Wager; Both Are Confident of Victory.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Tomorrow afternoon in the arena at Colma, of which James Coffroth is big boss, Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world, and Stanley Ketchel, middleweight champion of the world, will battle in what is scheduled for a twenty round fight to decide the heavyweight championship. This struggle of two champions, but of different classes, which nearly everyone concedes should be a great affair, is to start at 3 o'clock. Jack Welsh will be the referee.

Fight fans had a bad case of heart failure late last night when it was reported that Coffroth and Johnson had quarreled over the $5,000 side bet and that the fight might be called off. Later it was reported that the trouble had been patched up, Naughton transferring the $10,000 which he has held to Coffroth. Promoter Coffroth tonight declared the fight will be called at 3 o'clock, and no differences over a side bet will have any influence on either of the principals.

Britt's Foxy Game Beaten.

The trouble was due to Willus Britt, who ever since his arrival has been trying to induce Johnson to agree to withdraw the $5,000 side bet or else let it go at the prevailing odds of 10 to 4. Johnson has steadily refused, claiming an agreement was made that the coin should be wagered at even money. Finally Coffroth got Johnson and Ketchel in his rooms after midnight and declared the side bet question must be settled then so that there would be no further trouble and no possible chance of a wrangle at the ringside, with the big crowd waiting.

Johnson was stubborn and declared he would not fight unless the side bet as originally arranged was paid. Britt, for Ketchel, finally surrendered and agreed to a prominent business man as stakeholder, who shall pay over the $10,000 to the winner. Johnson agreed to the stakeholder and thus the squabble was ended. This trouble, which came near wrecking the fight, probably will put an end to official side bets in the future.

Fighters Take Things Easy.

Both men took things easy today, as they finished all active training yesterday. Both apparently are in the best of condition and ready to put up a great fight. Ketchel is all on edge, but he never has trained so honestly, and his looks show it. Johnson also has trained well and has reduced his weight.

The odds in betting remain unchanged. Corbett has a large sum in hand at 10 to 4 on the result and even money that Ketchel will not last beyond fifteen rounds.

The weather tonight is gloomy, with a heavy fog which is almost drizzling rain, but the forecaster doesn't predict rain for tomorrow. In any case, the fight will be held on time as the arena can be covered with canvas.

The big colored champion predicts he will win in less than fifteen rounds.

"I Expect to Knock Him Out"—Johnson

"I realize that Ketchel is a tough, hard hitting scrapper and for this reason I have trained faithfully for him," said Johnson. "I expect to knock out Ketchel in less than fifteen rounds. I am betting my money that way, and I am not betting merely to get my name in the papers. I will make the pace hot enough for Ketchel when we get in that ring. I see he says he will make me do the forcing. The chances are that I will do more forcing than he. Ketchel will care to handle when we look up.

"I never felt better before a fight than I do now. I will weigh around 195 pounds when I enter the ring, and I will be absolutely at my best. Ketchel will have no chance with me. Maybe he thinks I am not a wicked puncher, but I think he will change his mind before I am through with him tomorrow afternoon. If I beat Ketchel I will leave for the east and I will be ready to talk business with Jeffries. I wish it was Jeffries instead of Ketchel I had in the ring with me tomorrow. I know I would surely beat him."

Ketchel Is Confident.

Stanley Ketchel said today: "I expect to win tomorrow's battle. If didn't think I could win, you couldn't drag me in that ring with all the horses and automobiles in San Francisco. I know Johnson is heavier and taller than I am, but I think I can punch harder, and the hardest puncher usually wins. I expect to make a careful battle with Johnson. He is champion of the world and should do most of the leading. I'll take it from me, I am not going to throw my head in the sand and hang my chances by reaching in and giving Johnson a chance to use his ferocious uppercuts.

"I am going to make a careful fight and expect to win inside of twenty rounds. I am not going to be satisfied with merely sticking twenty rounds. If I ever get Johnson going I never will let up on him. I am punching better than I ever did; I am heavier, and my condition is all that I can ask for. If Johnson beats me tomorrow I will have no excuses to offer. I am confident, however, that before tomorrow's sun sets I will be heavyweight champion of the world."

Statistics Are Interesting.

A comparison of the two fighters is interesting, and shows some novel points. The negro towers over the Michigander as he did over Tommy Burns, but he is not meeting a man this time who lacks a punch, as Tommy did. Strangely enough, Ketchel's reach—remarkable for a man of his weight and inches—is only a scant inch and one-half less than Johnson's.

As Ketchel places almost sole dependence upon his crashing body blows he is placed at a good advantage with Johnson, as his can send in his pile-driving blows straight from the shoulder to the pit of the stomach. In spite of the apparent difference in build of the two boxers their measurements are nearly the same with the exception of height and leg length.

DEAD HEAT IN TROT EVENT

Soprano and Bertha C. in Hot Fight at Lexington.

DRIVERS IN MINOR SMASHUP.

Ben Walker and Ed Geers in Mixup on Turn but No One Is Injured.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 15.—The Kentucky stakes, $2,000, for 3 year old trotters; the Lexington stakes, $2,000, for 2 year old trotters; and the October prize, a $5,000 handicap, a dash of one and one-half miles for trotters, and the $1,000 purse race for pacers of the 2:03 class were the features of the card of seven races at the breeders' meeting.

In the opening heat of the Kentucky stakes Soprano, the favorite, trotted to a dead heat with Bertha C., with Muda Guy so close up third that many thought she had won. In the second heat Bertha C. made a break on the far turn and was distanced, first money going to Soprano.

Colorado E., favorite for the Lexington stakes, broke in both heats and the best he could do was to divide second and third money with Eva Bellini, the winner in straight heats being Sue D.

In the second heat, going around the turn out of the backstretch, Bon Vivant, driven by Ben Walker, jammed Eva Tanguay, driven by Ed Geers, causing him to go full force into Eva Bellini's sulky. This smashed the sulky and threw Eva Bellini out, and she ran loose with the sulky shafts dragging at her sides. Driver Dickerson was not injured. The judges distanced Bon Vivant for Walker's foul driving and placed Eva Bellini fourth. The meeting will close tomorrow.

The four trotters in Saturday's free for all and three of the best pacers on the west side are entered, and the race should be the real exciting event of the day. On the speedway, the races will begin at 2 o'clock and cups will be awarded in each of the events. The season's trophies also will be awarded.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS.

BY HEK.

HE IS ALL RIGHT WITH THE MUSIC.

(Resurrected through the process of mandamus, to be used as a sort of swan song.)

A whale with the wallop is Will,
He surely is stuck on the stick.
At lining a lob
He is on to his job.
(Right here you can lay it on thick.)

He can bingle and bungle a bit,
He'll score while you're throwing a fit;
He has brains in his skull;
When the bases are full
He is Johnny come home with the hit.

His natural bent is the bunt.
He is there with the sacrifice stunt.
When the chances look bad
And a run's to be had,
Just whistle, he'll come to the front.

In the field? Why just show him the place.
At any position—an ace!
All spots look alike
To this frolicsome tyke—
That's as plain as the nose on your face.

In the outer works? Pshaw! Simply great!
At fielding you can't find his mate.
Let 'em come hard or soft,
He can spear 'em aloft,
And deliver the goods at the plate.

Then again he's no mutt with the mitt;
At stabbing the wild 'uns he's it.
He's no slob on the slab;
You can send for the cab
When he deals you the genuine spit.

First base? His elongated suit.
At second he's surely a beaut.
At third he's a bird,
And at shortstop! My word!
He can give Tinker something to boot.

He will give your right shoulder a wrench
If you try his in-shootings to quench.
You are up in the air
With this rip-snorting bear—
But he plays all his games on the bench.

CHEVROLET OUT IN THE LEAD IN MOTOR RACE IN NEW YORK.

Buick Driver Covers 217 Miles in Four Hours in Endurance Event at Brighton Beach Track.

New York, Oct. 15.—Louis Chevrolet in a Buick led the field at the end of the fourth hour in the twenty-four hour automobile race that started at the Brighton Beach motordrome tonight at 8 o'clock. He had covered 217 miles.

Nine racing cars got away on the crack of a pistol which was fired by Dr. Frederick A. Cook. A Fiat and an American roadster dropped out of the entries at the last moment. Chevrolet got the pole position in the jump off and held a lead until the end of the first mile, which he wheeled off in 1:10 4-5. On the second lamp Ray Howard in a Palmer-Singer jumped to first place and whizzed past the grand stand with a terrific burst of speed. He kept up his lead for ten minutes at an average of a mile a minute. His official time for the ten miles was 10:06 2-5. The nine cars which started, with their numbers and drivers, were:

No.	Car.
2—Palmer-Singer	Ray Howard, Frank Lescault.
3—Lozier	H. Cole, Joe Seymour.
4—Lozier	Cyrus Patchcke, R. Mulford.
5—Buick	Robert Burman, H. Hughes.
6—Buick	Louis Chevrolet, A. Chevrolet.
8—Rainier	Wally Owen, C. Bowen.
9—Rainier	L. Disbrow, H. Lund, F. Dearb'rn
10—Marion	Strang, James, Stutz.
11—Matheson	Basle, Whalen.

There was a wild demonstration at the end of the first hour when it was announced that Chevrolet had broken the world's record for a circular track by making fifty-six rounds of the track. He bettered even this pace in the next hour, however, making fifty-seven miles. He made fifty-four miles in the third hour and fifty miles in the fourth.

There were no serious accidents during the events.

MOLL CASE STILL ON THE FIRE.

Faculty Discipline Committee at Wisconsin Criticised for Suspension of Badger Quarter Back.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—That the faculty discipline committee has gotten itself into a tight hole over the suspension of Quarter Back Moll was indicated today when Moritz Appel, editor of the Daily Cardinal, and Morris Mitchell, a reporter, were ordered out of Prof. W. G. Hubbard's office when the latter became aware he was being interviewed.

Appel had asked Prof. Hubbard several material questions bearing on the Moll case, and when the chairman of the discipline committee found Mitchell taking down his answers in shorthand he flew into a rage and ordered both reporters out. Admissions damaging to the cause of the faculty against Moll were made by Hubbard, who readmitted the reporters after they promised not to print what he had said.

A member of the faculty, who refused to allow his name to be used, stated today that the hazing charge against Moll was only a blind and that the real cause of his dismissal was his recent appearance before the discipline committee, when he was exonerated from a charge of cribbing in the classroom. Several bets were posted today in a downtown pool hall at 2 to 1 and 3 to 1 that Moll would not be reinstated.

SCHOOL TEAMS BEAT SCHEDULE

Lake and John Marshall Elevens Play Day Ahead, West Siders Winning by Score of 22 to 11.

Lake and John Marshall beat the schedule yesterday by playing their game, the first in the minor division of the Cook county league, at Artesian park. John Marshall won a rough contest by a score of 22 to 11.

The feature was the brilliant playing of McCarthy of the victors, who in the latter part of the first half ran 100 yards for a touchdown. He repeated in the second period by making a similar run. The strong defensive work of Lewis averted several touchdowns. Lineup:

John Marshall [22].		Lake [11].

YALE READY FOR WEST POINT.

Squad Leaves for Army Game—Hobbs Will Run Team in Place of Acting Captain Logan.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Yale's team left for West Point tonight after a final practice of five minutes of defensive work, the scrubs being given the ball at the five yard line. On five scrimmages they failed to take it over. Acting Captain Logan, who is crippled with a strained side, will not be able to play in the army game, and Hobbs, left tackle, has been appointed to succeed him. Capt. Coy will be unable to get in the scrimmage tomorrow. Nearly all of the Yale punters are crippled, including Haines and Deming. Coy may be sent into the game tomorrow for a few punts, but no scrimmaging. Waughan, formerly of Exeter, has been given Logan's place at right end. Philbin has not recovered from the muscle bruise given him. How will replace Johnson at quarter back, and Cooney will be given center, instead of Hyde.

MANY INJURED AT FOOTBALL.

Game Between Oklahoma and Southwestern State Normal at Norman, Okla., Is Bloody Battle.

Norman, Okla., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The football game here today between Oklahoma university and the Southwestern State Normal was a real battle in which nearly every player on both sides was injured. Capt. Armstrong of the university eleven was severely cut on the head. Swarts, the university's left end, suffered a broken nose. A broken leg was the most serious injury to Capt. Shaw, the university's right half. Wilhite, the university's left half, was also driven from the game by rough tactics. All of Normal's players were in the play during the game, but lost, the final score being 22 to 2.

MAROONS READY FOR ILLINI

Battle of Ancient Gridiron Foes on Marshall Field Today.

STAGG WANTS DECISIVE WIN.

Downstate Eleven to Outweigh the Chicago Team.

FORMER CHICAGO-ILLINOIS SCORES.

	Chicago.	Illinois.		Chicago.	Illinois.
1892	10	0	1903	18	0
1894	10	6	1904	6	6
1896	12	0	1905	44	0
1897	18	12	1906	63	0
1901	0	28	1907	42	6
1902	6	6	1908	11	0

Those ancient and honorable foes, the Maroons and the Illini, will do battle on Marshall field at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, both elevens brimful of determination and confidence. The Maroons are anxious to settle for all time the mumbling heard from the down state camp since the close call the Illini gave Stagg's men last year, while Illinois is anxious to demonstrate that the Midway victory was a fluke.

Both coaches agree that the contest will be as fiercely fought and look for spectacular features. Seller, quarter back for the Orange and Blue, is said to have all the cunning of Sinnock, who worked havoc with the Maroons at times last year. Capt. Page will endeavor to outdo the clever visitor by cutting loose with a prize package of tricks.

The substitution of Twist for Dallenback at right guard makes the Illinois team the heavier. The Maroons have a slight advantage in the back field by a scant three-fourths of a pound to a man, but Illinois outweighs the local eleven by almost eight pounds a man among the forwards. The team averages are: Chicago, 171 3-11 pounds; Illinois, 179 9-11 pounds.

No Boasts from Stagg.

Coach Stagg declined to play the rôle of prophet last night after the late session.

"After the way Indiana snowed against us, it does not look as if we are going to have a walkaway," said Stagg. "We were shown to be far from invincible. I would not venture a prediction on the outcome. Hirschi will be out and Crawley will be at his best. It will be a corking game, as good as any to be played here this season."

Capt. Page is confident Chicago will win. At the same time he said he had great respect for the Illini. "We should be better than in the Indiana game," he said.

Practice at the Midway lasted late last night. At 6:15 o'clock, after a session with the "ghost" ball, Stagg called a special conference in the gymnasium and told the team a few things intended to take away the overconfidence. He warned the squad that there would be no one sided score.

Not the least important feature of the proceedings this afternoon will be the rooting. Midway rooters will be armed with megaphones and will turn out 1,000 strong, along with as many alumni. The Illinois contingent which will come up with the team will be large.

Stagg Talks at Massmeeting.

Coach Stagg, Capt. Page, and members of the team spoke before a massmeeting of students and expressed hopes for a Chicago victory. The Illini club of Chicago had a banquet last night at the Chicago Athletic association last night to arouse interest over the game. Prof. Goodenough, Director Huff, and Coach Lowenthal attended and spoke.

Tickets for the game will be sold at Spalding's and Bartlett gymnasium until 11 o'clock today. The gates will open at 1 o'clock.

The teams and weights are as follows:

Gophers Leave for Nebraska.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Minnesota's football squad left for Omaha tonight to play Nebraska tomorrow. The players expect a hard game, but feel confident of winning. Only a handful of Minnesota partisans accompanied the team.

COLLEGE ELEVENS IN SEVERE TESTS

Hard Battles on Card for the Leading Gridiron Teams of Country.

TWO BIG FIGHTS IN WEST.

Stagg's Maroons Meet Illinois' Bunch and Minnesota Will Tackle Nebraska.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

Football games will be played today which will be severe tests for the leading teams in the different sections of the country. With the preliminary contests a thing of the past, the games from now on will become harder and more important, and each Saturday will see some aggregations eliminated from the championship race.

In the west two games are scheduled which will mean a great deal for the teams which take part in these conflicts. Illinois will come up to Marshall field to give battle to the Maroons, while Nebraska and Minnesota will struggle for honors at Omaha. These games eclipse other contests for decision in this section, and the result of the former will eliminate one of the teams from the western championship race.

Yale and West Point will meet on the latter's field in what ought to be the best and hardest fought contest in the east. Cornell will tackle the strong Fordham team at Ithaca, Brown will give battle to Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, and Dartmouth and Williams will struggle at Hanover in the other games of importance in the east.

Interest Now in Football.

With the city baseball championship decided, local followers of sport can now turn their attention to football, which will be the leading athletic event until snow and cold weather make it impossible to play. The Chicago-Illinois game should be a keenly fought battle. Although the Maroons will rule a strong favorite, Illinois will come to Chicago today determined to put up a fight which will cause Stagg's eleven a great deal of trouble. The downstaters' defeat at the hands of Kentucky last Saturday has done the players a lot of good, and they will get into today's battle with that do or die spirit, which is bound to make the Maroons work hard for every score they expect to make.

In view of Chicago's strong showings against Purdue and Indiana, both of whom were defeated decisively, the Maroons should be a decided favorite, and if Stagg does not instruct Capt. Page to hold back too many plays Chicago should win, but Illinois will put up a stiff defense against most any sort of attack that Page may spring. Stagg is desirous of winning this battle without disclosing any more of his defense than is absolutely necessary, as Minnesota will be the Maroons' next opponent, and the Maroon director figures this will be the hardest game on the western schedule, although he is already making preparations for the Cornell game at Ithaca on Nov. 13.

Stagg Wants the Victory.

As no team will be met by Chicago next Saturday, Stagg is anxious to win today's battle with as little effort as possible so that his team will be in the best shape for the Gopher battle on Oct. 30. Stagg is well aware of the strength of Minnesota and he is preparing to have his team at the height of football perfection for this crucial struggle.

With the grand early season form displayed by the Gophers this season, Stagg has good reasons for pointing his eleven for this contest. Coach Williams will have one of the strongest aggregations in years and with Capt. McGovern and Johnson to do the open field work he has a team which should be respected by all Minnesota's future opponents.

Minnesota will be given a harder test today in its contest with Nebraska than it has experienced this season. The fact that the struggle will take place on neutral grounds is another point which should affect the score greatly, as Minnesota has played all its games this season on Northrop field and the change of surroundings will be a factor in the playing of some of the new men. However, the Gophers should win, as Nebraska is not represented by a strong team this season, but the Cornhuskers should be a harder team to beat than any eleven Minnesota has met.

Lake Forest vs. Indiana.

Indiana will play Lake Forest today at Bloomington in what should be an easy victory for Coach Sheldon's team. The Hoosiers played a grand game against Chicago last Saturday and were entitled to a better showing. Indiana has a strong team this year and Sheldon has it well versed in all sorts of plays and it should win most of its remaining contests.

Michigan will meet a worthy opponent in Ohio State at Ann Arbor. It is a peculiar situation that the coaches of teams which play the aggregations representing their sisters universities have a win from these elevens than any others on the schedule. Just why this should be is hard to figure, but Coach Hernstein of Ohio State would rather beat Michigan than any other eleven to be met this fall.

C. P. KIMBALL & CO. BUYS A NEW SITE

Carriage Makers to Erect a $400,000 Building at Thirty-ninth and Michigan.

BIG DEAL ON NORTH SIDE.

Half Block, Bounded by Franklin, Institute Place, Chestnut, and Wells, Is Sold.

One of the most significant and important transactions ever carried through in the South Michigan avenue district is the announcement that C. F. Kimball & Co., manufacturers of carriages and automobile bodies, have purchased 400 feet at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth street and will improve it with the largest building of its kind in the west, the cost of which will exceed $400,000.

The fact that this prominent concern, which has been located at the corner of Michigan avenue and Harmon court for nearly twenty years, should plan the great plant at Thirty-ninth street, makes it an exceedingly notable transaction, in which also there is a strong suggestion of pioneering. The opinion seems to be that the deal is likely to have a far reaching effect on property in that vicinity.

For the 400 feet, with a depth of 160 feet, the company paid $77,500, which is at the rate of about $193 a front foot. Of the total frontage 300 feet was acquired from Alfred D. Eddy and Robert W. Stewart for $60,000, or at the rate of $200 a front foot, while for the adjoining 100 feet, acquired from Mrs. Mary Wood, the firm paid at the rate of $175 a front foot.

Plan to Move Offices.

Edwin F. Getchel represented Kimball & Co. in the transaction while Rounds & Wetten represented sellers.

The present lease of Kimball & Co. does not expire until Jan. 1, 1913, and until that time the firm will continue to occupy its present quarters. After that date it is the intention of the company to move its offices and salesroom to some desirable location on Michigan avenue north of Twelfth street.

The Chicago company was founded by the late C. P. Kimball in 1877 and for many years it was confined to the manufacture of carriages. Of late years, however, it has been paying steadily increasing attention to the manufacture of limousine automobile bodies and electric vehicles, until it has come to be the leading feature of the company's business.

The business has grown so rapidly that more room became a necessity. The ground covered by the new structure is five times as large as the present site.

The latter is owned by Mrs. Emma S. Doggett, the lot being 80x171 feet and the building a seven story and basement structure. In connection with the land it is interesting to note that it comprises a part of the site of the great amphitheater proposed by Harlow N. Higginbotham.

The north side also figured in a transaction of great importance which adds another great manufacturing building to that part of the city.

Big North Side Transaction.

The transaction, the final details of which were closed yesterday, comprises the sale of the west half of the block bounded by Franklin street, Institute place, Chestnut street, and Wells street by Edgar G. Uihlein, Daniel Donegan, Daniel Gallery, Margaret Gallery, William J. Fabian et al., and Burg & Anderson.

Title to the property was taken by Michael J. Naghten and Jerry W. De Conlan as a matter of convenience. The property has a frontage of 218 feet on Franklin street, with a depth of 100 feet to a ten foot alley and it is proposed to improve it with a great building to cost $400,000. The purchases were negotiated by Rounds & Wetten. The identity of the purchasers and other details regarding the occupancy of the building are withheld for the present.

The scheme of the Coöperative Bohemian bazaar, which was started about four years ago on the east side of Blue Island avenue near Eighteenth street, has proved a failure, and the property has just been bid in at foreclosure sale by the Borivoj Building and Loan association for $54,000. The lot fronts 72 feet, with a depth of 120 feet, improved with a two story building occupied by shops. The society numbered about 1,800 stockholders of the Bohemian nationality and acquired the land and erected the building as its first venture, borrowing $40,000 from the building and loan association for the purpose.

Buys Flat Building for $33,000.

Fred A. Wells of Wells Bros., contractors, has purchased from Pruitt & Moore, builders, the six flat building at the southwest corner of Hayes and Winthrop avenues, in Buena Park, for $33,000, giving in part payment his residence at 6704 Stewart avenue, valued at $15,000. Former Ald. Frank L. Race represented both parties.

Newton S. Calhoun of Cleveland, O., has acquired from George R. Warren and others of Detroit, and Edward A. Furst of Chicago, a plot on Elston avenue, 100 feet north of Wabansia avenue, 250x144x137 feet, the consideration being given at $10.

In deeds filed for record yesterday Richard W. Sears of Sears, Roebuck & Co. has acquired the entire ownership of the Portland block, at the southeast corner of Dearborn and Washington streets. Last spring Mr. Sears practically acquired the property through Albert L. Strauss, but there were some minor interests remaining, which he secured at guardian sale last week.

Lease River Street Property.

Katherine Koehler has purchased from Antone Dounemane a tract of twenty acres in Peterson avenue, 660 feet east of California avenue, for $13,000, with incumbrance of $6,000.

The Graham & Morton Transportation company has leased, through J. N. Buchanan, to the McVoy-Wessling Hardware company the building at 10-16 River street for fifteen years from Jan. 1 next. The building will be thoroughly remodeled.

The Provident Life and Trust company of Philadelphia has loaned to Mrs. Jennie Worthington $65,000, five years, at 4½ per cent, secured by the eighteen apartment building at the northwest corner of Drexel boulevard and Forty-third street. The loan was negotiated by H. O. Stone & Co.

TELL SUCCESS OF ELECTRIC ENGINES

Bion J. Arnold and W. J. Wilgus Agree Electrification Is More Economical.

SAW BENEFITS LONG AGO.

New York Central Expert Predicts Extension of Plan to Road's Trunk Lines.

That electrification of steam railroad terminals in large cities like Chicago was long ago regarded as a successful and profitable undertaking from an engineering standpoint, and that the present opposition to its further introduction on the part of railroad executives is that born of the hesitancy to spend the money required for the initial installation rather than to any deficiency in electric motive power itself, is made evident by reference to the public utterances of the foremost engineers of the country.

That electrification would be opposed by the railroads just as it is now being opposed in Chicago, and that public pressure might have to be brought to bear, was also predicted by the engineers. In view of the present interest on the subject in Chicago and the remarks derogatory to electricity which have been made by the Chicago railroad presidents, it is worth while recalling the views expressed by Bion J. Arnold in his presidential address before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at St. Louis as far back as 1904, which he has not seen fit to modify since that time and which are especially applicable to the present Chicago situation.

Sees Economy in Electric Engines.

In this address Mr. Arnold said, and he repeated the assertion before the Western Society of Engineers in 1907:

"That electricity will be generally used on our main railway terminals, and ultimately on our main through lines for passenger and freight service, I am convinced, but I do not anticipate that it will always be adopted on the grounds of economy in operation; neither do I anticipate that it will come rapidly or through the voluntary acts of the owners of steam railroads except in special instances.

"At first the terminals will be equipped for special reasons, due either to the voluntary act on the part of the terminal companies to effect economy in operation, or to public pressure brought to bear upon the owners through an increased demand on the part of the public for better service, on the grounds that the use of steam locomotives is objectionable in our great cities.

"Those most familiar with the subject are now prepared to admit that our great steam railway terminals, where many switching locomotives are shunting back and forth continually, and those portions of the steam roads entering our great cities, where suburban trains are numerous, frequent, and comparatively light, can be more economically operated by electricity than by steam.

Cites Examples in East.

"This is evident to most of those engaged in the work, for the reason that it simply means duplicating, on a large scale, the systems which have proven successful in our street railways, operating as they do numerous units running at frequent intervals.

"Proof that this field is recognized as a legitimate one for electricity is furnished in the examples of steam railway terminals that are now being equipped electrically, such as the lines of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroad companies in the vicinity of New York, involving an expenditure of something over $70,000,000, where not only suburban service will be operated electrically but where, in the case of the New York Central, the main line trains will be brought into the city from points thirty to forty miles distant.

"The best conditions for electrical success are a great number of units moving at a practically uniform schedule, at equal intervals, within a limited distance. The legitimate field of the steam locomotive is now one in which there are few but heavy units moving at uneven speeds at unequal intervals and at high maximum speeds.

Arnold Predicts Development.

"I do not anticipate that all roads will soon adopt electricity, for the steam locomotive will hold its field in this country for many years to come; but I do expect, judging somewhat from 'positive knowledge,' a remarkable development to soon begin in the electrical equipment of favorably located steam roads."

In discussing the New York Central work at a later date Mr. Arnold said:

"By the adoption of electric traction the New York Central was enabled to abandon the use of steam locomotives in its Park avenue tunnel, which has always been a source of annoyance to its patrons and of danger to the road. It also has been enabled to make extensive improvements in its terminal facilities.

"The introduction of electric traction into this terminal has made it practicable for the company to expend advantageously about $65,000,000 in these terminal improvements, of which about $15,000,000 was for the electric traction portion of the equipment."

Another statement from one of the highest possible authorities which bears on the Illinois Central conditions is that made by W. J. Wilgus, then vice president of the New York Central in charge of electrification, before the New York Railroad club last year:

"Our trains are now being operated by electricity successfully both from an operating and a financial standpoint," he said.

Wilgus Tells of Success.

"With respect to the conditions that will justify the use of electricity as a motive power in trunk line operation, I believe that evolution will govern rather than revolution.

"It now looks as if the first movement in this process of evolution is the substitution of electricity for steam in congested passenger terminals at large centers of population where the public demands a cessation of nuisances incidental to steam locomotives and where the increasing volume of traffic requires the increased capacity that cannot be secured by present motive power.

"The success of the New York Central installation in both of these particulars is an illustration of what can be accomplished, and imitation will surely ensue at other places where like conditions exist. In the case of the New York Central the primary object of the use of electricity was to abate the smoke nuisance in the Park avenue tunnel and to increase the capacity of the Grand Central terminal.

"When this decision was reached it became self-evident that the use of this motive power should extend to the end of the suburban territory at Croton on the Hudson, a distance of about thirty-five miles. It is probable that as soon as the developments in the electric field will warrant such action the electric zone will be extended as far as Albany, 142 miles."

Outlines Benefits of Electricity.

Benefits to be derived from the use of electricity were outlined by Consulting Engineer Frank J. Sprague before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers as follows:

"Increase of capacity both in locomotive haulage, schedule speeds, motor car trains, and terminal facilities of a character impossible to steam service will ordinarily be the more potent influence in leading to the adoption of electric operation, and will often warrant heavy capital expenditures.

"Terminal properties in great cities, underground tunnel sections, and heavy mountain sections, where duplication of tracks because of extra heavy construction is prohibitive, offer an immediate field for the serious consideration of electricity."

MEN NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH WHEN SCAFFOLD ROPS PARTS.

Twelve Bricklayers at Work in New City Hall Building Come Near Falling from Fourth Floor.

Twelve workmen narrowly escaped death yesterday when one of the ropes supporting a scaffold at the fourth floor of the new city hall broke.

Some of the men seized the remaining part of the broken rope and others clung to the scaffold until fellow workmen went to their aid and assisted them to safety.

The presence of mind of D. K. Lockard, a bricklayer foreman, saved the life of Thomas Stoner, his assistant. Stoner was rolling off the scaffold when Lockard grabbed him by the clothing.

GIRL IN LEVEE; FATHER HELD.

Andrew Larson of Dwight Arrested When He Appears to Ask Court About His Children.

Learning that his three children had been picked up by the police in the levee district and taken to court, Andrew Larson, baggagemaster for the Chicago and Alton railroad at Dwight, appeared before Municipal Judge Newcomer at the Desplaines street court yesterday. He was arrested, charged with contributing to the delinquency of his daughter, Mary Larson, 15 years old. Larson, it is charged, drove his wife and children from their house in Dwight two weeks ago.

The Katy Limited

This limited train of unlimited comforts began operation September 26th, and immediately established a new mark for comfort and convenience in travel between

St. Louis and Texas

Brilliantly lighted from pilot to observation end, it has all the essential comforts and many "extras" that make a railway journey pleasant.

Chair Cars—brighter, more attractive and more comfortable than you have seen.

Sleepers that are just a little finer than any previously built—bigger ladies' toilet rooms—dental lavatories—sliding window screens—electric fans—electric berth lights—observation car.

The Katy Limited leaves St. Louis daily at 10:05 A. M. (Kansas City 6:20 P. M.) and arrives with Katy regularity at Boonville 4:05 P. M., Sedalia 5:10 P. M., Nevada 7:45 P. M., Ft. Scott 8:50 P. M., Parsons 10:00 P. M., (Oklahoma City 7:00 A. M.) Denison 6:10 A. M., Dallas 9:15 A. M., Ft. Worth 9:35 A. M., Waco 12:55 P. M., Austin 5:10 P. M., San Antonio 8:15 P. M., Houston 9:50 P. M.

Night trains from Chicago connect in St. Louis and Kansas City with the Katy Limited.

North bound, the schedule is equally favorable.

The Katy Limited, with its

give the Katy two fast trains daily, with through chair cars and sleepers to Oklahoma and Texas, providing fast service to the Southwest.

All you need remember NOW in planning a trip Southwest is one little word—"Katy."

TRADE DEFAULTS SHOW INCREASE

Daily Average Payments Made Through Chicago Banks Continue Large.

LAKE VESSELS ARE BUSY.

Activity in General Merchandise Is Stimulated by Lower Temperature.

In its weekly review of Chicago trade Dun's Review, published by R. G. Dun & Co., will say in today's issue:

"Trading defaults exhibit some increase above the normal, but a high daily average of payments through the banks is in evidence and the industrial conditions testify to sustained progress in production and distribution. New demands form a notably large aggregate for iron and steel, with prices for foundry supplies firmer for distant deliveries. Rolling mills have ample contracts for steady day and night work until next spring. Some basic and finished products are not obtainable promptly, and the urgency of needs tends to force up values.

"Contracts for structural materials and involving rather large tonnage are under negotiation, but further heavy business is promised for leading producers, and there are numerous current demands for plates, wire, merchant shapes, and pipe. Operations reflect broadening activity in machinery, railway equipment, and electric, brass, and wood working. Markets for principal raw materials in manufacturing continue strong. Available supplies undergo rapid absorption in hides, leather, lumber, and building materials.

Lake Freight Rate Higher.

"Stormy weather and the Columbus holiday interrupted movements of commodities, factory outputs, grain, and flour, and the markets for breadstuffs were quieter than in previous weeks, but livestock arrivals gained moderately and there were larger shipments of corn and provisions. The approaching close of lake navigation causes more rush for vessels to move mine and forest products, and the freight rate for grain to Buffalo rose to the highest this season.

"Earnings of the Chicago steam roads sustain favorable comparison with former high gross and there is much installation of new rolling stock and planning for track extensions and other improved facilities to meet expanding demands of transportation.

"Lower temperatures stimulated wider activity in general merchandise here and throughout the interior. Stocks undergo seasonable reduction in the leading retail lines, especially of heavy clothing, blankets, woolens, house wares, and food products. Jobbers' shipments exceed the average for this period of the year, many hurried orders from various sections adding to the satisfactory distribution of dry goods, footwear, cloaks and suits, men's furnishings, and furniture. Mail and road orders for deliveries next spring make an encouraging showing.

"Money is in more general request for commercial purposes, currency shipments rise, and the minimum rate for choice commercial paper is firm at 5 per cent.

Local Movement of Grain.

"The total movement of grain at this port, 8,503,743 bushels, compares with 9,792,633 bushels last week and 8,110,531 bushels a year ago. Compared with 1908 increases appear in receipts 5.6 per cent and shipments 3.8 per cent. Flour receipts were only 176,045 barrels, against 251,553 barrels last week and 28,278 barrels a year ago, while shipments fell to 216,206 barrels, against 259,822 barrels last week and 289,018 barrels in 1908. Livestock receipts were 298,398 head, against 263,496 head last week and 334,174 head a year ago. Receipts of wool, 209,576 pounds, compare with 828,569 pounds last week and 349,643 pounds in 1908. Receipts of hides were 2,616,710 pounds, against 2,570,416 pounds last week and 2,513,834 pounds last year. Lumber receipts, 46,078,000 feet, compare with 55,532,000 feet last week and 49,568,000 feet a year ago.

"Compared with the closing a week ago cash prices are unchanged in corn and pork, but lower in lard, 12½ cents a tierce; hogs, 20 cents a hundredweight; and ribs, 32½ cents; and are higher in wheat, ⅝ cent a bushel; oats, 1½ cents; choice cattle, 10 cents a hundredweight; sheep, 15 cents; and flour, 15 cents a barrel.

"Bank clearings, $266,353,148, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1908 by 9.5 per cent, and compare with $269,577,109 in 1907.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number 36, against 24 last week, 21 in 1908, and 18 in 1907. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 10, against 7 last week, 2 in 1908, and 5 in 1907."

Retail Trade Expands.

New York, Oct. 15.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Improvement is the order of the day in trade, collections, and industry. Freezing temperature, light snows, or killing frosts, coupled with freer crop movement, have helped retail trade and collections at the west and northwest, while lower temperatures and high prices and free marketing of cotton have helped distribution at the south. Jobbing trade has been coincidently benefited by reordering to fill broken stocks, and the distributive trade side accordingly presents a favorable appearance.

"Trade at first hands feels the stimulus in more confident buying for spring though the unsettlement in the goods trade, due to high cost of material and talk of curtailment, still retards trade in this line. However, the tendency of cotton goods is undeniably upward, and buying appears slightly more confident at the higher prices asked. From industrial lines the same story of full order books and of longer hours now comes, payrolls are expanding, and available skilled labor is reported closely employed, with less idleness noted than for two years past.

"Business failures in the United States for the week ending with Oct. 14, were —2, against 203 last week; 244 in the same week of 1908 1907 in 1907; 170 in 190, and 178 in 1905."

Railroads Buy Rolling Stock.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Renewed buying of rolling stock by the railroads is the conspicuous development of the week in the iron and steel trade. Reports indicate that orders are being placed with some urgency, and that considerable new business is under negotiation. Activity at steel works is reflected in continued heavy purchases of pig iron at many points and further advances in prices are announced. One contract for 20,000 tons of Bessemer at $19 is reported. The structural shops are receiving a moderate amount of new business.

"Trade in dry goods shows steady gain and the higher prices in the primary markets, forced by the sustained high costs of raw materials, are now quite freely paid. Sales of print cloths at Fall River last week almost equaled production, 60,000 pieces spots, and 150,000 futures. Trading in wide cloths continues active. Dress goods are moving better for immediate use and woolens in men's wear have been purchased liberally. The footwear market is steadily improving, but the price question continues to retard business and some branches of the trade continue quiet."

LONG WILL FIGHT IS SETTLED.

Compromise of Contest by Kewanee, Ill. Relatives Over Estate of George Lyle Made Out of Court.

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—After three years' litigation a settlement out of court was effected today of the contest by Kewanee relatives to break the will of George Lyle, who left his entire estate of $100,000 to his third wife, now of Newton, Ia. His son of Kewanee was cut off with $25. By today's agreement the widow gets $20,000, while the rest goes to relatives here, Harold Lyle, W. H. Lyle, and Mrs. Mary E. Judge's Persian Rugs Stolen.

Two Persian rugs were stolen yesterday afternoon from the rear porch of the residence of Judge Freeman K. Blake, 4125 Perry avenue, where they had been placed to air. The housemaid said she remembered seeing a broom peddler going up the alley about an hour before the theft was discovered. Detectives are searching for the peddler.

ROCK ISLAND GAINS FEATURE

Heavy Trading Attended with Advance of Three Points.

STEEL ALSO IS A LEADER.

Foreign Markets Strong in Spite of Higher Discount Rate.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The course of the stock market today practically was a repetition of Thursday's movement. Prices were strong at the opening and improved steadily throughout the session, although called upon several times to absorb a substantial volume of profit taking sales.

United States Steel, which had been a feature of Thursday's rise, while persistently strong again today, yielded the leadership to a group of railroad stocks which included Union Pacific, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Denver and Rio Grande, and Rock Island preferred and common. Gains in the Rock Island issues were really the features of the trading. Transactions in the preferred exceeded 15,000 shares, while those in the common ran above 73,000.

Gains of Three Points.

At the close of the day gains of three points had been made by both issues. There was a disposition to connect the activity and rise in the stocks with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas purchase by interests friendly to the Rock Island, but definite denials of anything more than a friendly understanding between the two properties were forthcoming.

In spite of the larger gain in other directions, dealings in Steel were again sufficiently large, amounting to above one-third of the total sales of the day. Expectations of an increase in the dividend at the approaching meeting of directors partially explained the stock's behavior, but over and above this there is obviously under way in it a speculation for a rise upon a scale seldom if ever witnessed on the stock exchange. To some extent the day's market was helped by further covering by a short interest larger than had been believed to exist.

Other factors exerting a favorable influence upon sentiment were the strength of foreign markets in the face of the higher discount rates of the leading government banks; further excellent railroad statements; compilations of bank clearings showing gains for the week of 28 per cent above the exchanges of the same week a year ago, and the prospect of a fairly favorable bank statement tomorrow.

Favorable Showing Expected.

Unless loans have been materially increased, which is doubtful owing to the intervention of outside lenders in the money market this week, tomorrow's return of the clearing house institutions should disclose reserves as well maintained. Preliminary estimates of the currency movements of the week indicate a cash loss of about $5,000,000, practically all of this arising from an adverse balance on routine transactions with the subtreasury. On interior movements the banks appear to have lost little, the showing in this respect comparing with a decided outgo last week. Money rates were practically unchanged today, call money quotations closing at 4¾ per cent in spite of the fact that the loans thus made carry over until Monday. The foreign exchange market continues to rule strong.

Money on call, firm, 4¼@4¾ per cent; ruling rate, 4¾; closing bid, 4¾; offered at 4¾. Time loans, easier; sixty days, 4¾, and ninety days, 4¾@5 per cent; six months, 4¾ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4¾@5 per cent. Sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 482.80@482.85 for sixty day bills and at 486.05 for demand. Commercial bills, 482¼@482⅝. Bar silver, 50⅝. Mexican dollars, 43. Government bonds, steady. Railroad bonds, irregular.

IN THE FOREIGN STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Money was in fair supply at gradually hardening rates on the market today and discounts were quiet. The stock exchange displayed a generally cheerful tendency, with the strength of Americans a feature. There was fair buying going on in the good yielding British securities, but home rails were weak. Paris paid attention to foreigners and kaffirs, while copper shares improved in sympathy with Americans. American securities opened firm and higher in sympathy with yesterday's strength in Wall street. Union Pacific and United States Steel were the leaders during the first hour. Erie and Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe reacted slightly, but the rest of the list held the opening advance. At noon the market was steady, with prices from ⅛@1½ points higher than yesterday's New York closing. There was a further improvement in the afternoon, with New York buying, especially United States Steel, Denver and Rio Grande, and Chesapeake and Ohio, and after a slight reaction the market closed steady.

IN THE WORLD OF FINANCE

Subway Shares Advance to 8; No Explanation Made.

SAFETY RAZOR A BONANZA.

Gillette Company Shares, Once Offered at 50 Cents, Bring $200.

Chicago Subway shares advanced to 8 on the local exchange yesterday. The buying was in moderate volume. The advance in the shares has no official explanation. It is merely assumed that the interest due on Dec. 1 is to be taken care of. It has, however, been positively stated that a reorganization of the finances of the company is to be effected.

Sears-Roebuck common was firm on a fairly large volume of buying. The stock is now on a 6 per cent basis and promise is made of a still higher rate within the next twelve months.

In the general list prices were steady to firm following improved sentiment in New York. There was a fair amount of trading in the bond department at steady prices.

Commercial National Changes.

Directors of the Commercial National bank at their regular meeting elected Ralph Van Vechten senior vice president to succeed Joseph T. Talbert. J. C. Crafts, vice president and formerly with the Bankers' National, assumes the rank formerly held by Mr. Van Vechten. W. T. Burckner, who has been assistant to the vice presidents, was elected a vice president.

New York Banks Lose Cash.

Known movements of money for the week indicate the New York banks have lost $6,755,000 cash. Of this amount $1,712,000 was lost to the interior and $5,043,000 to the subtreasury.

Unless the banks have greatly reduced deposits and loans, the statement today should be a poor one from the standpoint of surplus reserve. However, it cannot be told in advance what changes may be effected.

Western Pacific.

It is asserted in Wall street that the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad company has been approached by other railroad interests with a view of securing a large block of the stock of the Western Pacific, 75 per cent of which is held in the treasury of the Denver and Rio Grande. The road is disposed to part with some of its holdings for the purpose of entering into traffic relations with the prospective purchaser.

Denver and Rio Grande stock went up during the day, presumably on the theory that the opening of the Western Pacific will help the company to pay the interest on Western Pacific bonds. A deficit in earnings of the new road is expected for some time to come.

Copper Consolidation.

It is officially stated in New York that the negotiations which have been under way for some time past between the Greene-Cananea Copper company and the Phelps, Dodge & Co. interests, whereby the latter's copper mine company in Mexico passes to the control of the Greene-Cananea company, have been completed and that the stock of the company will be exchanged on the basis of two and one-half shares of Indiana Sonora for one share of Greene-Cananea stock. The Indiana Sonora has a large tonnage of ore ready for treatment. The company's property is located at La Cananea, Sonora, Mexico, and adjoins the property of the Greene-Cananea company.

It consists of 405 acres, carrying large but irregular ore bodies. The development work amounts to about 20,000 feet. The equipment of the mine includes seven hoists, compressor plant, buildings, and a narrow gauge railroad connecting the property with the Greene Consolidated railroad. It is said there will be no new issue of Greene-Cananea stock. It is said the Greene-Cananea has reached an agreement with the Southern Pacific railroad for the transportation of its ores which will result in a saving to the Greene-Cananea company of $500,000 a year.

Gillette Razor Company.

Stock of the Gillette Safety Razor company is now selling around $200 a share. A few years ago the shares were offered in Boston at 50 cents each. It is also true that a few Chicagoans invested in the stock of the company when it was worth little and since have made handsome profits. The total capitalization is $650,000, the shares being of the par value of $10 each.

The company owns factories in many countries and the earnings are reported to be at the rate of $2,000,000 net a year. This is equivalent to 300 per cent on the stock. Last year the company charged off $540,000 for depreciation of its plants. This was but $120,000 less than the entire capital issue. The principal shareholder in the property is John Joyce of Massachusetts. The inventor, King Gillette, is the second largest holder.

Granby Consolidated.

Leading interests in the Granby Consolidated Copper company deny the report that 15,000 shares of treasury stock will be issued at $75 a share. An official says:

"When we issue this stock to pay for our investment in the Crow's Nest Pass company carried in our assets for $900,000 it will not be for less than par. With one smelter now in enlarged and first class condition we can treat 4,000 tons of ore a day and produce 35,000,000 pounds of copper a year at a cost of less than 9 cents a pound."

It is regarded as probable that Granby shares will go back on an 8 per cent dividend basis at the December meeting of the board.

Dividends Declared.

The Michigan State Telephone company declared regular quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent each on its preferred and common stocks. The preferred dividend is payable Nov. 1. Books close Oct. 18 and reopen Nov. 2. The common dividend is payable Dec. 1. Books close Nov. 15 and reopen Dec. 1.

Chicago Clearing House.

The clearing house committee of the local banks will meet next Tuesday. It may be then that a meeting will be called to elect a president and possibly a vice president of the association.

General Financial News.

It is announced that the United States Steel corporation soon will begin building a large plant at Duluth, Minn.

Directors of the Amalgamated Copper company and directors of the Boston and Montana Copper company, the latter a subsidiary of the former, will meet next week for the purpose of taking action on the dividends. It is assumed that the rate will not be changed.

Arrangements are being perfected in Montreal whereby all the leading Canadian car construction companies will be consolidated. Under the proposed plan the new concern will have a capital of $10,000,000.

The Michigan Copper Mining company, it is announced, has decided to cease the production of copper. This action is made necessary by the failure of the company to get sufficient good ore to make production profitable. Development work will continue in the hope of striking better ore.

Stockholders of the Bethlehem Steel corporation will meet on Nov. 5 to vote on a $7,500,000 note issue to bear 6 per cent, run five years, and be secured by a deposit of stock of the subsidiaries of the corporation.

ILLINOIS CAR CASE ARGUED

Complaint as to Discrimination Against Collieries Is Issue.

WOULD DISMISS INJUNCTION.

Commerce Commission's Plea Presented to U. S. Supreme Court.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The long pending case of the interstate commerce commission against the Chicago and Alton and Illinois Central railroad involving equitable distribution of freight cars to coal mines was argued today in the Supreme court.

The case grew out of the complaint of Glenn W. Traer, receiver of the Illinois Collieries company, that discrimination against certain collieries in Illinois was being practiced by several railroads through the system of allowing private cars and cars of other connecting railroads to be exempt from the count when the allotments of mines receiving them were determined.

Order to Roads Issued Last Year.

The interstate commerce commission ordered the railroads during a period of at least two years subsequent to July 1, 1908, to maintain a regulation whereby private and foreign cars should be included in the allotment to mines receiving their services, it being held that unless this were done such mines would receive a greater share of cars than their tonnage entitled them to get under the agreed upon system. The railroads filed their bill of complaint in the eastern division of the Circuit court for the northern district of Illinois and the commission was enjoined by this court from enforcing its order.

Wade Ellis, assistant to the attorney general, and Luther M. Walter of the interstate commerce commission represented the government in its argument before the Supreme court, where the interstate commerce commission seeks a dismissal of the injunction of the Circuit court. Garrard B. Winston of Chicago delivered the argument in behalf of the Chicago and Alton railroad. W. S. Kenyon of Chicago appeared for the Illinois Central railroad.

Claim Order Is Unreasonable.

The railroad attorneys claimed the order of the commission was unreasonable and oppressive in that in deprived foreign railways, mine owners, and the appellee railways in the case of their lawful right to contract for sale and delivery of coal and that the failure to charge special or arbitrary cars did not result in undue or unreasonable discrimination. The government attorneys asserted that the failure to count and charge foreign cars against the mine receiving them resulted in undue and unreasonable preference and subjected the owners and operators of mines not receiving such class of cars to undue and unreasonable prejudice and disadvantage.

BULLS CONTROL WHEAT MART

Realizing Early Is Heavy, but Offerings Are Well Taken.

DULUTH SELLS MORE GRAIN.

Corn and Oats Have Good Support; Provisions Lose Initial Gains.

Bulls were again in absolute control of the wheat market, but heavy profit taking told at times, and there were several sharp reactions. Local longs reinstated sold out lines on the dips, however, rallying prices sharply. The close was at net gains for the day of ½@1c, December again being the strongest delivery. The difference between December and May at the close was only ½@¾c, and the bulls are predicting the December will soon sell at a premium. The chief bull support is in the nearby month, and what selling there is of an important character is in the May. Outside trade was fairly active, but the local professionals are still doing the bulk of the trading.

Big Shorts Have Covered.

The Bartlett-Patten house was credited with buying a lot of wheat in for their customers during the early part of the session, but the house was a heavy seller on the advance, and there was also a big volume of selling by Armour, Ware-Leland, Shearson-Hammill, and Barrell. There was a report current that the New York longs had taken profits to some extent, but there was buying enough on the breaks to keep the market from breaking. Technically the market is regarded as being in a weaker position than for some time, as it is understood the larger shorts have covered. The market is understood to be full of pyramids, which would make a weak situation in case prices should sell off quickly to any large extent. Local traders are mainly bullish and buy on all dips.

Duluth Wheat Is Cheaper.

More Duluth wheat was bought to come here late yesterday, two cargoes of No. 1 northern being bought at 2¼c over Chicago December c. i. f. Chicago. This was regarded as a bear factor, as early in the day Duluth was reported to be turning down bids and asking 3c over December for No. 1 northern. Millers were big buyers, but cash men in many instances were of the opinion that the cash situation showed a relatively weaker tone than for some time. Mills have bought freely and it is claimed their stocks have been fairly well replenished for the time being. Sales here were 385,000 bu, mostly No. 1 northern, at a price quoted at 2¼c over the December. Export business was small, the advance having been too rapid for the foreigners.

Fair Upturn at Liverpool.

Liverpool showed a firm tone, closing ¾@1⅛d up, but continental markets were not much excited. Liberal shipments for the week are promised—14,863,000 bu, or about 3,000,000 bu more than a year ago—while a liberal increase in on passage stocks is expected. Receipts here were 18 cars, with 36 cars promised for today. Primary arrivals were 1,315,000 bu, against 1,454,000 bu a year ago. Northwest points had 836 cars, against 804 cars a year ago, and Winnipeg had 418 cars, compared to 395 cars a year ago. Clearances for the day were 350,000 bu. The Modern Miller report showed fine conditions for the growing crop, and an increased acreage is now said to be assured. Minneapolis stocks increased 625,000 bu for the week, against 2,100,000 bu increase a year ago.

Corn Trade More Active.

Further advances of ⅝@⅞c were scored in corn and the undertone was much stronger. Commission houses were fair buyers and there was a less aggressive bear party. Some demand developed for October corn, which was regarded as a strong feature, and there was more or less changing from May to December. The cash demand was fair and prices were ½@1c higher, with sales of 125,000 bu. Primary arrivals were 233,000 bu, against 294,000 bu a year ago. Receipts here were small at 82 cars, with 132 cars inspected yesterday. Weather conditions continue to be ideal. Argentine shipments were 2,105,000 bu. Liverpool closed ⅝d higher. The strength in wheat was a big factor in causing the shorts uneasiness. Exports of corn from this country for the week were 272,000 bu.

Firm Undertone in Oats.

Active oats futures closed ½c higher, while the July was unchanged. The upturns in other grains stimulated buying of this cereal, while offerings were light. A big business is being done in cash oats, 385,000 bu being sold for shipment yesterday. Prices for sample oats were ½@1c higher. Country sales are still light and farmers continue to show a holding tendency. Primary arrivals were 505,000 bu, compared to 717,000 bu a year ago. Receipts at Chicago were 111 cars, with 146 cars inspected yesterday.

Profit Taking Heavy in Lard.

Provisions worked higher at the start, but the advance was met by liberal realizing sales, which caused a fair reaction. Closing prices were irregular, but generally easy. A. S. White was credited with selling January lard and other longs took profits, while the outside demand was not urgent. Cash trade was called good for both meats and lard and high prices for cash product still prevail. Receipts at western points were 40,300, compared to 67,200 a year ago. Receipts here were 15,000, with 8,000 promised for today. Early the hog market was strong, but sold off near the close of the day. Receipts of product were fair at 42 cars, and shipments small at 92 cars. Bacon at Liverpool was steady to 6d up, hams 6d higher, and lard 3d up.

Fair Inquiry for Rye.

Rye was in good request and prices were strongly held. December sold at 73c; No. 2 was quoted 74@74½c; No. 3, 65@72c; and No. 4, 55@65c. Shipping sales were 5,000 bu. Receipts were estimated at 14 cars.

Maltsters were good buyers of barley, causing 1c advance in prices. Malting was quoted 52@65c; mixing, 50@52c; and screenings, 40@52c. Receipts were estimated at 69 cars.

Flaxseed had a break of 5c in sympathy with a similar decline in northwestern markets. No. 1 northwestern closed at $1.63 and No. 1 southwestern, $1.53. Receipts were 2 cars.

Timothy seed was quiet. October closed nominally at $3.95 and March $4.20.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON CHANGE.

Traders continue to be nonplused by the action of the wheat market and are trying to place the responsibility for the advance on an outside coterie of speculators, but the strength appears to be in the local conditions themselves as much as anything. While a Wall street crowd may have enough wheat bougt to help congest the market, the operations of local traders keeps the market stirred up. The professionals buy the market on the dips and force prices higher, sell out and reinstate their lines on the first little break. With no hedging pressure of actual cash wheat on the market, this is all the buying required to lift values. Most of the local professionals are thoroughly imbued now with the theory that futures should advance to a point where the cash values will show less of a difference. At present the prices here and at outside markets indicate that little wheat will be shipped in here from anywhere to apply on contracts. No. 1 northern is selling at a premium, and probably will not be delivered out unless there is a radical adjustment of cash and future prices. This leaves the shorts in December in even worse position than those in September were.

"The movement of wheat to the primary markets of the United States from July 1 to Oct. 1 was about 80,000,000 bu, compared with about 80,000,000 bu for corresponding time in 1908," says the Daily Trade Bulletin. "The exports of flour and wheat during the same time were about 26,000,000 bu, compared with 43,000,000 bu for the same time last year—a decrease of 17,000,000 bu, or 39.5 per cent. The official visible supply of wheat on Oct. 1 was about 14,200,000 bu smaller than reported one year previous. Estimating the wheat crop of the United States at 725,000,000 bu, and allowing 43,000,000 bu for supplies in all positions July 1, 1908, aggregate supplies for the twelve months would be approximately 768,000,000 bu. Allowing 480,000,000 bu for consumption, about 74,000,000 bu for seeding during the harvest year, and 26,000,000 bu exported to date—accounts for 580,000,000 bu—and there would remain for export during the current nine months and for supplies on hand July 1, 1910, about 188,000,000 bu. The exports from Oct. 1, 1908, to July 1, 1909, were about 72,000,000 bu."

"Increase in American visible from low point on July 24 is 16,000,000 bu," said O. K. Lyle, the New York statistician. "Last year, 19,000,000 bu. Interior receipts from larger crop since July 1 are 127,000,000 bu, including flour. Last year, 115,000,000 bu. Exports for three months, 25,000,000 bu; last year, 43,000,000 bu. In spite of this suggestion of plenty wheat in farmers' hands the market is strong and confirmatory of my estimate of the crop. I am a believer in about 700,000,000 measured bu, which means about 665,000,000 bu of 60 lbs, and admitting but 125,000,000 bu for export and reserves. Exports must be mainly from Pacific states and durum wheat. This coast can't spare much milling wheat. With markets now well advanced from a demand from shorts some reaction is due. I am looking for it to begin about this level."

Several of the best posted cash men on the floor were inclined to be rather bearish last night, claiming that the millers had overbought themselves and had been stampeded into buying more wheat than they needed at enormous premiums. Sales were heavy, especially of No. 1 northern wheat, but it was stated that concessions in prices were made on some of it. Total sales aggregated about 385,000 bu, of which 300,000 bu was No. 1 northern, part of the latter being at 2¼c over December. Duluth offers of No. 1 northern wheat were relatively ⅜c lower at the close and there did not appear to be much demand. Later in the day 280,000 bu Duluth wheat was sold at 2¼c over December. At Kansas City and St. Louis soft wheat was sold at the highest prices of the season, but here the tone was said to be a little easier. Export bids were out of line as a rule, business being small.

"About the only argument the bear element have and are using is the high prices, but when the conditions and situations are considered, they may be looked upon as low later on," said Geltmacher of Logan-Bryan. "Western packing for last week as compared with last year, 140,000 less, and since March 1 to date 1,700,000 less. Our stocks of pork, lard, and ribs show about one-third as much as last year, and as we have as many people to consume this as we had last year, cannot see how prices can suffer much, inasmuch as no product for January delivery has yet been made and prospects of a shortage of hog movement for at least four or five months and doubtless a large short interest in the January future, ought to make this future an attractive one as an investment, prices of which are based on about 6½c hogs."

Weather conditions the next few weeks will be the principal factor in corn. With fine weather and conditions favorable for a free movement there will be little difficulty in getting the corn in to fill shipping sales already made, but should there be a car shortage or bad weather country sellers would have trouble in filling their sales and might be obliged to buy in the future. Commission houses were better buyers of corn yesterday and shorts were less inclined to pound the market, although Bartlett-Patten brokers were again free sellers early. Comstock and Geahart bought freely for the first time in several days, but the crowd did not know whether this was short covering or buying of long corn.

"In coarse grain the higher prices are bringing out increased offerings, but farmers seem disinclined to sell their oats and barley freely, having in mind the heavy advance in prices late in the season during the last few years," said Somers-Jones. "They have already sold millions of bushels of new corn, in itself a rather bullish feature, as it is an indication of the consumptive demand for the new corn at the lower prices. Unfavorable weather or scarcity of cars could make a strong corn situation of it, as it might delay the delivery of this new corn materially."

Bradstreet's reported the exports of wheat and flour and corn from both coasts for the week, with comparisons, as follows:

	Wheat and flour.	Corn.
This week	4,806,000	272,000
Last week	4,140,000	168,000
Last year	4,458,000	63,000
Since July 1	37,421,000	1,789,000
Last year	60,214,000	705,000

Arthur Cutten was back yesterday from an extensive trip through Canada and the Pacific northwest. Cutten went away a bear and comes back a bull. W. H. Lake was back from a few weeks at French Lick Springs. Earl O'Neill made his first appearance on the floor in some time, having been kept away by illness.

A private Liverpool cable said: "Wheat affected by advices from your side. Strong with active demand. Market chiefly dependent on Atlantic shipments. Russia having sold heavily shipments will be large, but no further pressure to sell. Corn firm with a better demand."

The Modern Miller: "Rains throughout the southwest enable farmers to complete seeding of wheat, which dry weather has retarded. This secures the certainty of a larger acreage than last year. The general condition of the crop, where up, is excellent."

Indian shipments of wheat for the week were 256,000 bu, compared with none last week and the corresponding week last year. Australian shipments were 224,000 bu, compared with 384,000 bu last week and 704,000 bu last year.

Minneapolis stocks of wheat increased 625,000 bu for the week, compared with 2,100,000 bu for the corresponding week last year. Duluth stocks increased 470,000 bu for the week, compared with a decrease of 372,000 bu last year.

World's wheat shipments for the week were estimated at 14,866,000 bu, against actual shipments a year ago of 11,712,000 bu. American shipments included are 4,866,000 bu. A fair increase on ocean passage is expected.

Sales on the call were: Oats—Standard, ten days, 5,000 bu at 41¼c Illinois proportional; No. 3, ten days, 10,000 bu at 39⅝c Illinois proportional; standard, thirty days, 5,000 bu at 41c transmississippi.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, ¾@1⅛d higher; Paris, ⅛c off to ⅜c up; Antwerp, unchanged; Berlin, ⅛c up; Budapest, ⅝c off; Buenos Aires, ⅛@⅜c higher.

Stephen A. Dalton, Thomas J. Sullivan, and Thomas J. O'Neill have applied for membership on the board of trade. Berend J. Burns has posted his membership for transfer.

David Stott, the Detroit miller, was on the floor yesterday looking into the cash wheat situation. It was understood he bought considerable cash wheat.

According to an official Hungarian report the imports of wheat into Hungary have amounted to 8,000,000 bu during August and September.

Receipts of wheat at Winnipeg were 418 cars, compared with 708 cars a week ago and 395 cars the corresponding day a year ago.

Estimated receipts are: Wheat, 36 cars; corn, 132 cars; oats, 146 cars; rye, 14 cars; barley, 69 cars; hogs, 8,000.

Charters were made for 125,000 bu of corn at 1⅜c to Buffalo and 150,000 bu of oats at 1¼c to Buffalo.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CATTLE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Good heavy western steers met with a brisk inquiry at steady prices, while all natives and the commoner grades of range offering were accorded little attention and sold slowly at weak to 10c lower figures. Receipts of 4,500 head included about 2,000 western rangers, and after the good range steers had been taken the trade was exceedingly slow and a clearance of the cheap offerings was not effected until late in the day. A few loads of native steers sold at $6.40@7.00, while the bulk of the supply cleared at $5.00@5.80. Western sold at $6.60@6.75 for the fat heavyweights and at $4.75@5.35 for the lighter grades.

Butcher stock trade was sluggish and prices were unevenly lower, most sales being at a decline of 25c from Monday's prices and largely 10@15c lower than a week ago. Moderate offerings of bulls met with a ready outlet at steady prices, and little change was reported in the market for calves, sales of prime vealers being made at $9.25@9.50, with medium killers at $7.75@8.25. Demand for stockers and feeders was more active, and traders succeeded in reducing their holdings at prices that were unchanged to a shade lower than a week ago. Quotations:

Beef steers, good to choice	$6.75@8.90

Cattle at six western markets, 19,700, against 6,500 a week ago, 10,100 a year ago, and 17,200 two years ago. Total for 1909 to date, 6,376,000, against 6,416,000 the same period in 1908.

HOGS.

Market opened fully 10c higher than early Thursday, with occasional sales showing as much as 15@20c gain over low prices of that day. This period of strength was of short duration, however, and later sales were made at figures that did not show more than 5c advance from the preceding day's average prices, and were largely 5c lower than opening values. Receipts were 12,000 head. Small packers, speculators and shippers, carried away by the firmness which characterized the trade at the close the day before, were responsible for the upturn in values on the opening rounds, and so long as they remained in the trade the market had a firm tone and the movement of values was steadily upward.

Leading packers refused to let past performances of the market and aggressive buying by scalpers and small killers influence them, however, and after positively refusing to follow any advance in values they finally condescended to give holders 5c higher than on Thursday for hogs suitable for their purposes. Commission men unloaded most of their hogs on the early bulge, while speculators accepted the reduced bids for their holdings at on closing rounds. The result was that the supply on the market was closely cleaned up at the finish and the trade was in a good healthy condition. Best hogs sold at $7.90, several loads reaching that level, while mixed packing grades made $7.30@7.65, with most of the desirable lots at $7.50 and higher. Quotations:

Mixed packing	7.35@7.60

Average price of hogs at Chicago, $7.64, against $7.53 Thursday, $7.76 a week ago, $5.63 a year ago, and $6.47 two years ago.

Eleven markets received 46,000 hogs, against 45,000 a week ago, 87,400 a year ago, and 53,500 two years ago. Total for 1909 to date 17,981,000, against 21,414,000 the same period in 1908.

Hog purchases for the day follow: Armour & Co., 2,300; Swift & Co., 2,200; Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, 1,000; Hammond, 1,224; Anglo-American, 553; Boore & Co., 600; Boyd-Lunham, 300; Roberts & Oake, 350; Morris & Co., 900; Western Packing company, 1,000; butchers, 800; shippers, 1,000; total, 12,227; left over, 3,500.

SHEEP.

Prices of sheep and lambs were rigidly sustained at a steady to firm level. Fresh arrivals were placed at only 16,000 head, but there were many loads of western stock on the market from the preceding day, and the total supply at hand was too liberal to enable salesmen to force much gain in values. The general outlet continued exceptionally broad and supplies were readily absorbed, the market closing in a good, healthy condition, with little stock left unsold in spite of the fact that receipts for five days this week totaled nearly 165,000 head, against 153,000 five days last week.

Native lambs topped at $7.35 for the second time this week, while rangers reached a new high level for the week at $7.20, two strings being disposed of at that figure. Other loads of good to choice native lambs sold at $6.75@7.25, while most of the good fat rangers cleared around $7.00. Western sheep made $4.40@4.50, while native ewes sold at $4.25@4.75 for good to choice killers, with occasional assorted lots of extra heavy offerings as high as $5.00. Feeding lambs made $6.50@6.70. Quotations:

Native wethers	$4.75@5.25
Native ewes	2.75@4.75
Range wethers	4.00@4.50
Range ewes	3.50@4.25
Bucks and stags	2.00@3.75
Cull lambs	4.50@5.75
Native lambs, good to choice	6.25@7.35
Native lambs, plain to good	5.50@6.25
Range lambs	6.50@7.20
Feeding lambs	6.25@6.70

Receipts for Oct. were estimated at 300 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 2,000 sheep, against actual arrivals of 971 cattle, 11,339 hogs, and 498 sheep for Saturday, Oct. 17, 1908.

STOCKYARDS GOSSIP.

"Packers' liberal purchases of hogs the last two days have given rise to a feeling of confidence in the market and traders do not look for much lower prices for the time being," said J. B. (Jimmy) Cahill of Rappal Bros. & Co. "When packers broke the market 25c they did not seem to want hogs at any price, but they want them now and are buying as many as they can get at the prices."

Hogs left over unsold from Thursday's markets were officially counted at 4,037 head, a decrease of more than 5,000 from the preceding day, which served as a further indication that packers were buying the hogs.

Armour & Co. had 136 hogs in direct from St. Paul and bought 2,200 here. Swift & Co. also made up a drove of 2,200 head, shippers bought about 1,000 head, and it was estimated that not more than 3,500 head would be carried over unsold.

"Traders are taking 30,000 cattle for next Monday's trade, and if the cold weather continues we should have that many or more," said Claude Wilson of Rosenbaum Bros. & Co.

Eleven markets received only 321,000 hogs so far this week, against 475,000 head for the same period in 1908.

Receipts of cattle at the six principal western markets aggregated 19,700 head, against 6,500 a week ago, the largest increases being at Chicago, Kansas City, and St. Louis.

Chicago Horse Market.

A brisk demand for fancy horses and moderate receipts of the cheapest grades served to sustain the market for the extreme classes at a firm level. Weakness pervaded the trade for the intermediate offerings, however, and there were more horses valued at $150.00@185.00 than the demand could absorb. Eastern orders furnished an outlet for drafters worth $200.00@250.00, and the southern trade bought up the small chunks at $70.00@125.00. There was no reliable outlet for the other classes of stock and prices were uneven, sales depending largely upon the urgency of the orders and the desirability of the offerings. Receipts for five days this week aggregated 1,074 head, against 1,293 a week ago, and 1,237 a year ago.

IN THE PRODUCE MARKETS.

EGGS.

VEGETABLES.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Potato prices were advanced 2c. Arrivals aggregated 63 cars, and the demand was active, fancy stock being particularly brisk sale. Sweet potatoes met with a good inquiry, and the cold weather also had a stimulating influence on the demand for cabbage, cauliflower, onions, and lima beans. Quotations:

Beets, 100 bunches	$1.00	Potatoes, bu	38@52c
Cabbage, crates	65c@$1.00	Do sweet brl	$1.75@2.85

FRUITS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Receipts of Michigan grapes fell to 49,000 baskets, and, although there were liberal arrivals from New York, the market had a healthier tone and sales were made at firmer prices. Most of the peaches offered for sale were of common quality and the trade was weak and slow. Fancy pears and quinces met with a good inquiry at steady figures. Quotations:

Apples, brls	$1.50@5.00	Oranges, box	$2.00@3.25
Crabapples, bu	50c@$1.75	Gem melons, cases	75c@$1.50

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Firm. Hurl, common to good, $180.00@210.00; self-working, common to good, $180.00@210.00; dwarf, inferior to fine, $180.00@200.00.

Groceries.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Attendance of market buyers was larger, many retailers being on the market for supplies to carry them over until next week. The demand was well distributed to all branches of the market, and the situation was a strong and healthy one. Locally little difficulty is experienced with excessive supplies of any of the leading commodities, although reports continue to come from leading packing centers telling of oppressive offerings of cheap canned tomatoes. There are no signs of weakness in the market for canned peas, corn, and fish, and large supplies of red salmon and imported sardines are hard to get except at higher prices. Demand for flour was stimulated by the recent advance in price and the sharp upturn in wheat futures. Beans, rice, and package cereals met with a brisk inquiry at firm prices.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Refined sugars met with a steady demand at unchanged figures. Following were the ruling prices in wholesale circles, quotations being on 100 lbs lots: Standard granulated, beet and cane, $5.24@5.34; cut loaf, H. & E., $6.27; standard powdered, $5.77; extra C, $4.95; canary, $4.65; chemically pure milk sugar, 22c per lb in brl lots.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—SUGAR—Raw firm; fair refining, 3.77@3.80c; centrifugal, 96 test, 4.27@4.30c; molasses sugar, 3.52@3.55c. Refined steady; crushed, 5.85c; powdered, 5.25c; granulated, 5.15c.

COFFEE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Stimulated by the cold weather, the demand for spot roasted coffees was surprisingly strong, and all desirable offerings met with a ready outlet at steadily advancing prices. Receipts of green coffees at Rio were 16,000 bags; Santos, 89,000 bags.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The market for coffee futures opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points in sympathy with a partial decline of ¼ franc in the French market, but after a quiet morning became more active and firmer on local bull support, a strong spot situation, and covering. The close was steady at a net advance of 5@10 points. Sales were reported of 30,000 bags, including October at 5.90c; November, 5.95c; December, 5.85@6.00c; March, 6.05c; May, 6.05@6.15c; July, 6.20@6.25c, and September at 6.20@6.25c. Spot firm; Rio, No. 7, 8⅛c, nominal; Santos, No. 4, 8½@8⅝c; mild coffee steady; Cordova, 9@11½c. Quotations on futures:

Dry Goods.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say: "Owing to the exceedingly high cost of raw cotton manufacturers have advanced prices on all bleached and brown muslins, tubings, and wide sheeting, ticking, denims, and in fact on all domestics. Reorders are good and buyers are taking freely of all printed fabrics, percales, dress ginghams, plain piece dyed fabrics, and plaids. In wool dress goods the activity includes black, both plain and fancy. In plaids, piece dyed fancy and broadcloths are making an excellent showing. An improvement is evident in the demand for satin faced goods, such as satin messalines and peau de cygnes in black and colors. Moire silks continue in excellent favor. The general lining business is exceptionally good and an analysis of the movement in this class of merchandise discloses a positive scarcity of goods in some lines and an advancing market. The tremendous call of past months in all lines of ready to wear goods still continues. A line of yard wide India curtain madras materials in stained glass and floral effects at 5⅛c per yd is attracting favorable attention."

Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods market, say: "Reorders from every quarter were many and large, reflecting the excellent retail trade conditions. The cold snap caused an extraordinary demand for men's, women's, and children's underwear, both in two piece and union suits. Bleached goods in women's wear were favored. Hosiery of all kinds had a broad outlet. Orders for wool and fleece lined goods were numerous. Mink predominated in furs. Considerable activity was experienced in house furnishings and a most satisfactory business was accomplished in carpets, rugs, curtains, draperies, and other household goods. Many novelties in holiday merchandise made their appearance during the week and trading was of an extensive character. Orders for ginghams were excellent. Bookings in wash dress goods compare most favorably with all previous seasons. The line embraces a great variety of attractive novelties and merits the attention which has been given it. Further advances in bleached muslins were announced by agents."

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The dry goods markets are strong in the primary division and fairly active in the retail sections. Cotton goods are advancing steadily, yarns are steady at high prices. Raw wool is tending higher in this market.

Cotton.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—COTTON—Spot closed quiet, 5 points lower; middling uplands, 13.90; middling gulf, 12.15c; sales, 2,600 bales. After making new high records for the season during today's early trading, the cotton market became nervous and sold off under heavy realizing and operations for a reaction, with the close easy at a net decline of 1@6 points. Futures opened steady and closed steady. Quotations:

IN BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Isle Royale was a feature of Boston copper stocks. Some say the mine will be closed before long unless the price of copper metal advances. North Butte was fairly active and strong. News that the Michigan mine would be closed sent that stock off almost a point. Amalgamated and Steel common were the most active stocks on the local list. Call money, 5@5½ per cent; time loans, short dates, 4¾@5 per cent; time loans, six months, 4¾@5 per cent; time loans, year, 4½@5 per cent.

SANTA FE WILL TEST LAW

Road to Fight Statute Fixing Liability for Freight Damage.

CASE MAY SEE HIGH COURT.

Seaboard Air Line Installs Telephones for Dispatching.

Attorneys of the Santa Fé railway are preparing to make an attack in the courts against the provision in the Hepburn interstate commerce law which makes the initial carrier of a through shipment responsible for freight lost or damaged in transit, even though the loss may occur during the handling of the freight by a connecting line.

For this purpose the Santa Fé lawyers now are preparing their records for an appeal from a decision against the road under this law, rendered in the Municipal court, and they have announced their intention of testing the law if possible through the highest courts.

The cases decided against the Santa Fé involved a shipment of fruit from California to St. Paul, Minn., which was damaged between Kansas City and St. Paul after the shipment had been transferred to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road.

The Santa Fé, which issued the bill of lading, was made responsible to the shipper for the loss.

First Carrier Liable.

The intention of the framers of the law was to place the burden of collecting such damages on the initial carrier as being in a better position than the shipper to trace the loss and to place the responsibility. While the law permits the railroad issuing the bill of lading to recover the amount paid the shipper from the connecting line on which the loss or damage occurred, the Santa Fé takes the position that the road responsible for the damage is the one which should be sued by the shipper.

This would in many cases cause a hardship to the owner of the freight, it is claimed by representatives of the shippers, as in many cases it would be necessary for him to go to considerable pains to ascertain where the loss occurred.

One of the latest roads to adopt the telephone in place of the telegraph is the Seaboard Air Line, which has recently put into service its new telephone train dispatching circuit between Raleigh and Monroe, N. C., 148 miles. Two portable telephones are also provided for wreck cars, which may be connected to the dispatcher's line at any point by means of a jointed pole line.

W. F. Williams, superintendent of telegraph, states the telephone circuit has worked perfectly ever since being put into service.

Hears Watch Tick 148 Miles.

To indicate the character of the special apparatus used, he says he has heard a watch tick over the entire 148 miles of the line. The officials of the road state that the dispatchers find that they can handle the business faster, more comprehensively, and with less fatigue. The system was installed by the Western Electric company of Chicago.

The Santa Fé proposes to equip all of its freight cabooses with telephone instruments, so that when a freight train is left on a siding or when there is an accident that should be reported immediately the trainmen will be able to make connection with the telegraph wires by means of a jointed extension pole.

Ingersoll Goodwin has been appointed city passenger agent of the Pere Marquette railroad at Chicago, vice R. C. Schultz, resigned. E. A. Hopperstead is appointed traveling passenger agent to succeed Mr. Goodwin.

TWO MEN ARE ARRESTED IN FALL RIVER MYSTERY.

Chauffeur and "Herb Doctor" Accused After the Headless Body of Young Woman Is Found.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 15.—The formal lodging of a charge of murder against Wilfrid Thibeault, a chauffeur, and Frank Hill, a "herb doctor," was the principal development today in the tragedy revealed by the finding of parts of a young woman's headless body in Tiverton, R. I. Both men pleaded not guilty and were held for a hearing.

The autopsy on the portions of the body thus far found resulted in a report by the medical examiner that there were evidences of an operation. The Fall River police allege that Thibeault and Hill had been consulted by Amelia St. Jean, a young woman who disappeared from this city a week ago.

The police tonight expressed confidence that the Tiverton victim was the St. Jean girl, but they admitted that they had no more evidence upon which to base this opinion than they had last night.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John St. Jean, were unable to identify the parts of the body in the custody of the medical examiner at Tiverton, but it was the general belief of those interested in the case that a positive identification would be difficult, if not impossible, in any case, with the head missing.

Two or three police officers continued the search for the head in the swamp land along the Bulgermarsh and Fish roads in Tiverton today despite the pouring rain, but without result.

LACK OF DISCIPLINE CAUSES INCREASE IN COURTS MARTIAL.

Judge Advocate General Davis Says Officers Fail to Dispose of Trivial Offenses in Right Manner.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—An alarming increase in the trials by courts martial of all classes in the army, shown in the annual report of Judge Advocate General George B. Davis, is causing much comment in military circles. Conditions, officers say, as shown by the report, are disgraceful.

Total trials by general courts martial numbered 5,580, an increase of 1,444 over the preceding year. Ten officers were dismissed by sentence as against three the previous year, and one of them is under sentence for five years in a penitentiary.

About 60 per cent of the enlisted men convicted by general courts martial received sentences involving dishonorable discharge, and about 18 per cent of these sentences followed previous convictions. There were 344 garrison courts martial and 49,191 trials by summary courts martial.

The increase in the trials by summary courts, Gen. Davis says, appears to be due to the failure on the part of commanding officers to dispose of trivial offenses by the disciplinary measures authorized by army regulations.

The annual report of Inspector General E. A. Garlington shows that the army is greatly in need of increase in the infantry and field artillery and of reorganization of the cavalry.

ILLINOIS FIRM DENIED MAILS.

Postoffice Department Issues Fraud Order Against Western Specialty Company of Bloomington.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The Western Specialty company of Bloomington, Ill., today was denied use of the mails in a fraud order issued by the postoffice department. It is alleged that the company advertised:

WANTED—AT ONCE, LADIES TO COPY LETters at home; can earn $10 to $20 per week. Send 10c for particulars. Western Specialty company, Bloomington, Ill.

If a woman mailed 10 cents to the company, it is alleged she received a circular asking for an additional 50 cents for "complete instructions, plan of work, packing, mailing, etc." The postal authorities assert that instead of obtaining employment correspondents received a stamped pillow top with instructions showing how to embroider and were advised that a commission of 25 cents would be paid for every order obtained for a pillow top.

SEE MICHIGAN BY PRIATE CAR NEXT TUESDAY.
There is wealth for you in Michigan in the SWIGART TRACT of best clover and fruit land. It is only nine hours' ride from Chicago and costs so little fare and little time to see that you ought to investigate it. Here you have the largest selection because it is the largest tract owned by any one man in the state and contains over 1,200 40 acre and many 20, 10, and 5 acre farms [over 50,000 acres] in the center of Michigan's Great Fruit Belt, which embraces the counties that touch Lake Michigan. Developed fruit lands here yield great crops of peaches, pears, apples, grapes, plums, and all kinds of small fruits as well as all the staple vegetables and grasses, grains, and clover. TRANSPORTATION, both lake and rail, cannot be surpassed; the MARKETS are near and unlimited; the fruit belt CLIMATE makes Michigan's west shore one great summer resort. Many schools and churches. Remarkable WATER SUPPLY in creeks, rivers, inland lakes, innumerable springs, and a plentiful rainfall. No one has to buy water here. This is the best land offer in Michigan for a man of moderate means. The prices are only $8 to $25 per acre and terms as low as $10 down and $5 per month on 40 acres of land. Come in and let me show you many things that will be to your advantage in buying in this tract. I will hand you a large map and the best booklet published about Michigan—38 pages, illustrated, free. If you cannot call, then write for my literature. I will run a special Pullman car to Michigan on Tuesday, October 19th. Round trip only $6. Fare refunded if you buy. G. S. SWIGART, Owner, 1248-49-50 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago.

THERE ARE SEVERAL THOUSAND HOMES IN Chicago in which there are pianos which no one in the household can play.
The piano represents money tied up which is returning nothing for the investment. Yet it is the easiest thing in the world to make those pianos available either by exchanging them as part payment for one of our Inner-Player Pianos or by purchasing a cabinet Piano Player.
Most people these days prefer the Inner-Player Piano, but to those who want to keep their own instruments we are offering some very special advantages. We find in our stock about fifteen cabinet piano players which we wish to dispose of at once. While they last we offer them for $25 each.

WE HAVE A STEINWAY PIANO IN A ROSEwood case which we are offering for only $300. This instrument was used for a time, but when we took it in exchange as part payment for a Mason & Hamlin we sent it to our factory and had it thoroughly overhauled, refinished, and made ready for immediate delivery. It is one of the choicest bargains we have ever shown and any prospective purchaser who wants a standard instrument at a bargain price can find the opportunity here. Remember there is only one, and the first caller will have the advantage.
CABLE PIANO COMPANY,
Wabash and Jackson.

THE APPROACH OF THE WINTER EVENINGS calls for preparation for indoor entertainment. There is no better way to provide it than with music, and no better way to provide the music than with a good player piano.
We have one now on our floor in a beautiful dull finished mahogany case. The former price was $600 but we offer it at $325 because it has been slightly used. This is more than an ordinary bargain.

We do a straight, legitimate loan business, dealing only with the BETTER CLASS OF MEN and WOMEN, and can afford to make the LOWEST and BEST TERMS. No "banking," "merchandising," "insurance," or other scheme tacked on to swell the cost to borrowers.
We state from the start just what a loan will cost and there are no notary's fees, charges for papers, or investigating, interest added or deducted or other extras twisted in on customers when they come to the point of getting their money. They get the full amount they ask for, too.
While we prefer the large loans, we treat the applicant for a small loan with the same consideration accorded those who borrow $500 or more.
Our facilities for dealing with the class we cater to are ideal. Our money is no better than that of others, but there's a difference; you'll see it.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, ladies with allowances from their husbands, or incomes from other sources] who want large or small sums, confidentially, with or without security. My location [30 min. from loop district] and my being the president of a large manufacturing wholesale vehicle establishment [Bradstreet's and other agencies show its standing], and not a professional money lender, assures a privacy not possible to those who deal with brokers in downtown office buildings, where money lenders congregate. Professional lenders demand high rates, usually asking so much that the average straightforward citizen realizes that exorbitant charges for any time are burdensome. My average price, all charges positively included, is never more than 1, 2, or 3 per cent monthly, depending on risk and amount loaned. Individual waiting rooms. Ask for WILLCOXE, care the Englewood Co., 1101-1103 E. 63d-st., cor. Greenwood-av. Tel. Hyde Park 4333.

CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

Men's Overcoats

$25 All the newest styles are here—and the models we feature at $25.00 represent the highest possible standard attainable at that popular price. We sell so many coats a season at this figure that we are able to command better quality and workmanship from the maker than is usual in garments ordinarily made to sell at $25.00.

The great extent of our assortments makes selection most satisfying. Two lines in black and gray all-wool kerseys and thibets, 46 inches long, silk velvet collars, raw edges and lapped seams, center vent. Two lines in ¾ length black and gray kerseys, with long wide lapels, satin sleeve lining, body lined with serge, silk velvet collars. Two lines of black and Oxford gray thibets, ¾ length, worsted serge lining, edges turned in and single stitched with silk, $25.00.

We offer splendid showings in protector coats, as well as tourist, driving and storm coats—both single and double breasted, some with belts, some plain. Fall weight, silk lined overcoats in Oxford gray and black. High grade makes throughout at our featured price, $25.00.

English slip-on rain coats—practical and attractive garments that are approved by correct dressers. We sell them at a price range of $15.00 to $30.00.

Men's Fall Suits

$25 The superiority of our autumn suits at this price is due to our persistent efforts in elevating the grade of garments ordinarily offered at this price. Our assortments are most comprehensive—neat silk mixed worsteds and fancy worsted, plain blue and black unfinished worsteds. Values unequaled at the price for style, quality and general desirability, $25.00.

Dress Accessories

A carefully selected showing in distinctly good taste of the latest and best in Veilings, Hand Bags, Novelty Jewelry, Neckwear, Gloves, Hosiery and Handkerchiefs. The compactness of these departments and their accessibility makes them especially convenient for the making of quick purchases.

Neckwear—Coat Sets in Irish Lace, $4.95; Long Jabots, trimmed with Irish Lace, $7.50 to $12; Low Collars in Irish Lace, special, $3.95 to $5; Irish Military Collars, $1.50 to $3.50.

The Fashionable New Veilings show quite a number of changes from those of last season. For Saturday we are making a special showing of becoming patterns priced at 60c, 75c, 85c and $1.25 a yard. They are in the fine open meshes with the heavier woven dots interspersed that have the effect of whitening the skin and giving it a clear look. In black, gray, light and dark wistaria, taupe, navy blue and brown.

Long Bodice Chains—In the genuine Whitby Jet, in the graduated style, $16.50 and $19.50 each. Jet Chains in the long French style, with round or oblong shaped beads, $2.90 to $4.90 each. Long Chains in novelty effects, in gold or silver finish, long, slender links with settings of different stones, $12.50 each.

Small Silver Purses to be attached to the Long Chains, in both German and sterling silver—some have etched mountings, in the better grades of mesh, $3.90 to $15 each.

Vanity Purses—Gold plated with mirror and powder box, $3 and $3.50 each.

New Hat Pins—A very large assortment in gold or enamel, with settings of amethyst or topaz, $1 each.

German Silver Mesh Bags—Very special, $4.50. Excellent quality of mesh, shirred on frame six inches long, etched on both sides, white kid lining and change pocket.

Perrin's Pearl Two-Clasp Belfort, medium weight, real kid with heavy embroidered backs or plain tailored stitched, black and white and colors, $2.

Handbags in new and exclusive ideas—Like the sketch at the left, novel and attractive in shape, and of a very convenient size with double handles and jeweled frame in dull gold finish, $22.50.

The sketch at the right shows one of the newest bags in genuine seal leather, studded with jet, medium size. In large size without the jet, $12.50 also.

Toilet Goods—Mrs. Gervaise Graham's Hygienic Skin Food; special, $1.29.

Mrs. Gervaise Graham's Bath of Isis, Elder Flower Cream, Kosmeo and Kosmeo Powder; special, 39c each.

Stevens' Marquise Cream and Orange Flower Skin Food; special, 21c each.

Elcaya Cream and Cerate, 50c each.

Mme. Ise'bell's Lilac Hand Lotion; special, 18c.

Stevens' Benzoin and Almond Lotion; special, 21c.

"A central bank managed by polit... would result in scandal. It would be r... political purposes and money would ... verted to different sections of the co... according to the political exigency of th... ment.

"It would be infinitely worse than ... present system, because, as conditions ... are, the treasury is powerless to expa... contract the currency. It can influence b... ing conditions by depositing governm... funds or by making bond issues, but it ... not directly influence the circulating me... and to that extent it is much to be pref... to a central bank managed by politica... pointees, who would flood the country ... irredeemable currency whenever there ... a popular demand for it and would, ... long run, involve us in all of the da... of absolute inflation without any ... sponding contraction. I repeat, ther... that a central bank under purely po... control would be about as bad a thing as ... happen to this country.

Private Ownership Impossible

"The other alternative, of course, i... ownership of a central bank by private ... sons. That is what has taken plac... France and Germany. The governmen... points a director in one case and the of... in the other, and there is a satisfact... bination of the government with pr... ownership. This is a condition, how... which could not possibly exist in the U... States. Our commercial system is ... that any person who controlled a ce... bank and had the right to determine ... money should be handed out to the subs... banks on deposit of commercial paper ... be in a position to control both the po... and the commerce of the country.

"We may as well look the situation ... in the face. There is just one aggregat... capital in this country which could ... such an enormous institution as a na... central bank of issue.

Standard Oil Would Triumph.

"That combination is, of course, w... popularly known as the Standard Oil ... pany, although it really represents a ... bination of the most powerful corpora... in America. In my judgment it would ... trol the central bank as sure as there ... God in heaven. It could not afford ... any other influence take charge of the ... powerful financial engine in the co... There is no other financial combi... which could bid against this one.

"You know how they do their work. ... would not subscribe for stock in their ... names, but they would have a multitu... dummies who would own the stock for ... and who surely would dictate the cont... the bank. I have been told that this ... bination of capital, which we call for ... venience the Standard Oil company, a... controls a string of 100 banks, rea... across the country from New York to ... Francisco.

Would Control Nation's Credit.

"If that be the case, and if they cont... the central bank, with its power of is... currency based on commercial paper, ... would then be in a position to control ... tirely the credits of the whole country.

"They would be less than human if ... did not build up their own banks at t... pense of others in their vicinity, and ... many years had passed we would fin... the rate of interest to the ordinary bu... man and the discount rate, which settl... question of importation and exportati... gold, would both be fixed by the cote... capitalists in Wall street.

"Most of us are agreed that the go... ment ought to get out of the busine... issuing notes. I think the tendency a... the Philadelphia bankers would be to ... the creation of a great central bank, be... that is theoretically the application ... sound and scientific system. The diffi... of course, lies in the question of contr... in none of the plans which have been f...
